Quebec to Guard Minority Rights

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson says Quebec will proceed to make French the working language but also would protect minority English rights.

He said at a press conference today the province wants "to encourage all Quebecers to acquire a working knowledge of the prevailing language."

He also said Quebec did recommend to Ottawa a republic form of government "but this is a working document, not the official position of the province.

"We cannot permit rights as important as language rights to be manipulated by local bodies such as school boards," he said at a press conference.

The premier had been asked about the situation in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard, where the local school board has decided to replace present bilingual classes in elementary school with classes in French only.

He said language rights are too important to be changed by a local vote, but it is equally important that the French-speaking majority "does not allow itself to be assimilated." "We would be stupid to spend $1,000,000,000 a year to educate students in French and not to take steps to insure that they can work in French.

"It is absolutely necessary that Quebec be as French . . . as Ontario is, and will remain, English."

It was the premier's first public statement since his return last week from Bermuda, where he had been resting following a mild heart attack he suffered here July 3.

After arriving in Montreal he spent a few days with his family and returned to his legislature office Tuesday.

Mr. Johnson leaves Oct. 11 for a five-day visit to Paris and talks with French President de Gaulle, a trip which is expected to increase the strain on relations between Paris and Ottawa.

PLAN BIG RECEPTION

Paris spokesmen say he will receive the full red carpet treatment usually reserved for a visiting head of government, including a state dinner at the Grand Trianon Palace in Versailles.

The trip, originally to have been made in July, was postponed because of the premier's heart attack.

Mr. Johnson is to leave Paris Oct. 16 and return to Quebec in time for the legislature session which resumes Oct. 22.

The premier said his Paris talks will be aimed at giving "vigor and scope" to the France-Quebec educational and cultural exchange agreement of 1965, but he declined to go into details.

French investment in Quebec would be welcomed, because "French investment brings French technology."

Asked about Prime Minister Trudeau's accusation that France had sent an "agent," government official Philippe Rossillon, to "agitate" among the French-speaking people of Manitoba, Mr. Johnson said he thinks the incident was "greatly exaggerated."

The Rossillon visit to Manitoba "does not seem as serious" as the prime minister had presented it.

WILL BE NO DIFFERENCE

On the language issue, Mr. Johnson said immigrants "here now or arriving in Quebec" will be treated on the same basis as other Quebecers insofar as language rights are concerned.

"We do not want to have any second class citizens."

He made the statement in reference to the conflict in St. Leonard, where nearly half the population is of Italian origin and has been insisting on English-language classes.

Mr. Johnson said Quebec's language policy will be drafted after the government receives a report from a commission investigating school boards on the Island of Montreal.

The report was expected Oct. 12 or 13.

The premier noted that language problems have arisen on both sides of the fence.

On many occasions before 1960, he had urged Protestant school boards to provide classes in French for French-speaking Protestants, a minority in Quebec's Protestant system

In the St. Leonard case, the Roman Catholic board was denying classes in English to English-speaking Catholics, another minority.

Mr. Johnson refused to be pinned down on whether government action is planned in the St. Leonard case. He said the government is awaiting the report of its commission before making any decisions.

Mr. Johnson said his government will see to it that linguistic rights are incorporated in a Quebec constitution and that they will not be subject to change by a single school board or other similar body.

Quebec was not going to allow its minority to suffer what French-Canadians had suffered in other parts of Canada for years.

A person would have to be childish or to be dreaming in color to believe that one law would advance the use of French in business or industry. Great progress was being made in the use of French in many large industries and this would continue to be encouraged.

The premier said he does not believe in legislation that would force people to use a certain language in business. If some Chinese wished to open a business in Montreal they should not be compelled by law to speak French among themselves. If they wished to do business among Chinese they should be able to speak Chinese. If they wanted to do business with French-Canadians, then they would learn French.

Threats Received In Mail

TORONTO (CP) — A warning that the terror campaign against them will continue was delivered through the mails today to 13 executives connected with the Hawker Siddeley industrial empire, whose homes and property were bombed early Tuesday.

Arriving in plain envelopes, the warnings were contained in stencilled messages which read:

"You have been judged guilty of active complicity and our aim is to continue the campaign against you until you desist."

The Hawker Siddeley group has been accused by anti-Vietnam war adherents of sending war materials to South Vietnam.

Police Chief James Mackey said all but one of the 13 messages were mailed Tuesday in Toronto and postmarked 11 a.m. Another was postmarked 1:30 p.m.

NOW 13 BOMBED

Earlier Wednesday, police, who had at first thought only 10 executives' homes were bombed, raised the figure to 13 after three more executives found evidence Tuesday night that bombs had gone off near their homes.

A police spokesman said today:

"We raised the number last night after three more went out and found the remains of bombs on their lawns.

"I guess they heard noises Tuesday morning but didn't pay any attention until they heard about the other bombings. And those things were hard to find unless you look in the right place. We had trouble ourselves."

The latest discoveries were made by Frank A. Stanley and Alex J. McIntosh, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. directors, and Phil Garratt, former managing director.

Mr. McIntosh found the remains of a bomb in bushes outside his home after hearing reports of the other bombings. His wife said a noise woke her about 4 a.m. Tuesday, but she thought it was the furnace and went back to sleep.

Mr. McIntosh said he is curious about how the bombers got the addresses of the directors.

"There are only about 20 shareholders in Canada, and an-

ISRAELI ATTACK 'NEAR'

By United Press International

The Soviet Union today accused Israel of "dangerous provocations" against Arab countries that could lead to "serious consequences"

In London, Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad said "a new outbreak can be expected in the Middle East at any time."

In Rome, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel wants a stable Middle East peace. He said he intends to talk to UN Middle East envoy Gunnar Jarring next week in an effort to set up peace talks with the Arabs.

●

Israeli and Jordanian border units today exchanged gunfire for the 19th time this month, according to a Jordanian report. It said no casualties were reported from the 30-minute fight across the Jordan River near Um Ashshurat.

●

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Gomhouria played up the potential war situation saying "Israel is paving the way for new aggression by lodging a complaint with the United Nations Security Council."

Riad conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson en route to the United Nations, where he is expected to lead a vigorous Arab diplomatic thrust against Israel.

All Signs Are Pointing To New Image for Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Signs emerged today that an effort at a massive change in image of Premier Bennett's administration is under way to tone down the materialistic aspects in favor of cultural progress.

Some comments by Mr. Bennett and a speech by Resources Minister Ray Williston called up a vision of British Columbians enjoying a smog-free Sunday drive through preserved natural beauty and stopping at an inn for a Sunday dinner treat—complete with a glass of wine.

For the kids in school, there will be more books in the libraries and a more humanistic education to avoid developing technological Philistines.

Both men suggested the emphasis of future government activity will shift to a new direction aimed at the finer and more pleasant things of an affluent life.

Mr. Bennett, queried here about Coquitlam school board complaints that a money squeeze forced it to institute a shift system, replied this morning that he has sent out word that "if more (money) is needed I have stated as minister of finance I will provide it."

He recalled his announcement earlier this week that another $8 million in borrowings for school construction will be allocated to various school boards and insisted the new money will not be restricted solely to narrowly-defined "essential" classrooms.

FOR LIBRARIES

"For (school) libraries? Yes," he replied to a question but declined to detail any other amenities the government would exempt from its current strict interpretation of what constitutes "essential" classrooms.

Library rooms, activity rooms, gymnasiums, assembly halls and some kinds of administration offices have virtually been banned from school board construction programs around the province by the education department, bringing an outcry for months by trustees and citizen groups.

Inadvertently or deliberately, his reaction to rumors that he is on the verge of announcing a new liquor policy permitting Sunday drinking in the province's hotels and dining rooms for the first time since prohibition days only intensified the speculation.

SKIPPED LECTURE

A tee-totaller who normally expresses abhorence for the idea of Sunday drinking, Mr. Bennett skipped his usual good-humored lecture about the evils of drink and with a sober expression said only:

"When the premier has a policy to announce, he will announce it."

Reminded of his usual response and asked if his reply today was a hint of a change, he would only repeat "when the premier has a policy to announce, he will announce it."

TROOP withdrawals from Vietnam will not be made by the U.S. "either by next June or at any time in the foreseeable future," Defence Secretary Clark M. Clifford said today, following an assertion by Melvin Laird (Rep.—Wis.) in Seattle that forces would likely drop 90,000 by June.

Quake Wrecks Homes

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — Thousands of homes were destroyed in a sharp earthquake which rocked eastern Anatolia Tuesday, reports reaching the capital said today.

Surrey Association Censures Driediger

SURREY (CP) — The Surrey Social Credit Constituency Association Tuesday night passed a motion of non-confidence in George Driediger, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League.

The vote was 17 to 3 with six abstentions. Mr. Driediger, at the meeting, began to defend his position, then withdrew, saying he'd fight the motion at the provincial convention Nov. 1-2.

Dan Lengert, president of the local association, whose executive approved the motion last week, opened fire by saying there had been a substantial drop in membership and he'd been unable to get figures.

"Danny, what are you doing to our organization?", Mr. Driediger called from the rear of the hall. One member then complained that Mr. Driediger had no right to insult the chair at the meeting.

DRIEDIGER
. . . 'what are you doing?'

At one stage, Mr. Driediger was heard to say: "It's no wonder we did not win this constituency." The seat was won in 1966 by Ernest Hall, provincial secretary of the New Democratic Party.

'WAY, WAY UP'

Mr. Driediger said membership is "way, way up" from when he took office.

If it had dropped since the last election it was because "some of the members who were signed up to pack nominating meetings have let their memberships lapse."

He said figures could not be made public but the books are open to the constituency organization. Countered Mr. Lengert: "If I can get the membership, why not tell us tonight?"

Mr. Lengert said officials have claimed Mr. Driediger interfered in their organization.

RICHTER WANTS TIME TO CONSIDER BIDDING

Mines Minister Frank Richter today said he will sleep on Tuesday's spectacular rush for previously-unwanted oil and gas exploration rights before deciding whether the successful applications would be accepted.

He told reporters his delay in confirming the dispositions did not involve any fears that any laws were broken but centred on the worry a bad impression in the public mind had been created.

Mr. Richter, after preliminary consultation with his department officials, said he had not found any reason yet to withhold confirmation but intended to study the matter intensively for at least another day to consider all the "unusual" aspects before setting any precedent.

HIGHER TAXES INDICATED AS OTTAWA SPENDING UP

OTTAWA (CP)—The government presented Parliament today with a revised spending bill for the current fiscal year, including medical care insurance and old age pensions, totalling a record $12,251,930,598.

Despite budget trimming in nearly all branches, the total amount is three per cent more than the $11,865,732,032 included in the original 1968-69 spending estimates, tabled last February.

The estimates are for the fiscal year that began last April 1, and now is almost half gone.

The fact that spending now is scheduled to be higher than originally forecast seemed to indicate higher taxes will be levied.

The increase is mainly attributable to higher costs of welfare and of education programs that are geared to provincial spending. It also includes another $67,157,700 for interest and service costs on the public debt, now totalling $1,474,006,900.

The first costs of medical care insurance are included, an amount of $35,000,000 for the balance of this fiscal year.

Expenditures by the regular departments of government, called budgetary estimates now are planned to total $10,670,930,598, including medical care insurance.

Expenditures from the old age security fund—which are paid for by special income, corporation and sales taxes outside the normal budget—are estimated at $1,581,000,000.

Finance Minister Benson and Mitchell Sharp, former minister, have said the government intended to hold its budgetary spending this year to $10,300,000,000.

MADE MANY CUTS

Mr. Benson, then treasury board president, said last February the figure could go to $10,500,000,000 and still remain within the goal because invariably some sums voted by Parliament are not spent by the end of the year and lapse.

There were cuts in all branches of government except the appropriations for the office of the Governor-General, and for the cost of running Parliament itself.

One of the projects recently thought a possible victim in the budget chop—the proposed Prince Edward Island Causeway—remains, with an appropriation of $5,000,000 for work to be done this year.

DEFENCE COSTS

Defence appropriations, listed Feb. 12 as $1,728,591,800 are down $13,637,000 to total $1,714,954,800.

Finance Minister Benson, preparing a taxing budget for Parliament next month, has said that only small adjustments will be needed in taxing and spending to bring the budget into balance.

The revised blue-covered book of estimates was tabled by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board. He said in a statement they represent reductions in controllable spending, more than counterbalanced by the natural growth of spending program which Parliament is already committed and by some new projects.

REDUCTION of NATO military strength in Europe is out of the question, unless the Soviet Union withdraws its troops from Czechoslovakia, West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger said today in a major foreign policy address reopening the Bundestag Parliament.

Flamethrower Brigade Halted

SAIGON (AP) — A guerrilla battalion of about 300 men armed with flamethrowers was cut down early today trying to overrun a special forces camp close to the Cambodian border.

It was believed about 400 South Vietnamese plus 10 to 12 American Green Beret advisers were in the camp when the assault came.

U.S. Headquarters said 11 South Vietnamese were killed.

The attackers left behind four flamethrowers, 25 assault rifles, 17 rocket grenade launchers, 1,000 rocket grenades, a command radio and a stock of mines in addition to the blocks of plastic.

Far to the north in coastal Quang Ngai province, a sweep by the U.S. troops hit a strong North Vietnamese force today in the same spot where 92 were slain Tuesday. Helicopter gunships and tactical jet strikes were called in, and 77 more insurgents were killed, headquarters said.

Along the demilitarized zone, American marines uncovered two mass graves containing 48 North Vietnamese bodies. Earlier this week the marines had found similar graves containing about 170 dead North Vietnamese.

SAIGON (Reuters) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has dismissed his education minister for disagreeing with Premier Tran Van Huong, it was announced today.

The dispute followed charges by some Lower House deputies that there was organized cheating in recent high school examinations.

GANG SHOOTS GUARDS, FLEES WITH $209,000

MONTREAL (UPI) — Three gunmen ambushed two Brinks guards in an elevator today, shot them and got away with $209,000 in one of the biggest holdups in recent Montreal history.

Neither guard was regarded as in serious condition by doctors who treated one for a hand wound and the other for a bullet in his shoulder.

Bishops Defend Conscience

By MURIEL BOWEN

LONDON (WP)—The most forthright defence of "the rights of conscience" made by an English-speaking Roman Catholic hierarchy since the Reformation came Tuesday from the 26 Roman Catholic bishops of England and Wales.

Both in spirit and in words the bishops' statement on Pope Paul's controversial encyclical continuing the church's ban on contraceptives, was in sharp contrast to the stand being taken on "obedience" by Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle of Washington.

The rights of conscience, on the one hand, and authority, on the other hand, were not seen as incompatible by the bishops.

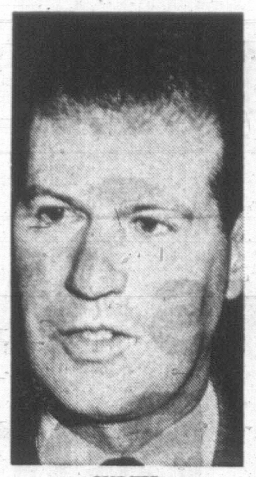

"Neither this encyclical, nor any other document of the church, takes away from us our right and duty to follow our conscience," the statement boldly proclaims.

TEMPERANCE URGED

"The pope, bishops, clergy and faithful must all be true to conscience. But we are bound to do everything in our power to make sure that our conscience is truly informed."

Open discussion of the papal encyclical—published eight weeks ago—is to continue in England and Wales, where 4 million Catholics live. All that the bishops asked is that "bishops, priests and laity" conduct their discussions in a responsible and temperate manner. "co-operating in a Christian spirit."

The statement was taken here to mean that if a person, having studied the encyclical, cannot in conscience agree with it, he can, in certain circumstances— to be defined in the confessional—practise birth control with a clear conscience, provided he keeps an open mind on the church's teaching on marriage, which is constantly being added to.

CURTIS
. . . debate off

Opponents Rent Hall

There will be no head-on debate between Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis and Gordon Campbell over Saturday's sewerage collection referendum.

But Mr. Campbell announced today he is hiring a school auditorium to present his views on the same night council had allotted him 30 minutes at another meeting.

Previous commitments and lack of available time prevented the debate since Mayor Curtis accepted Mr. Campbell's challenge late last week.

REFERENDUM

Mr. Campbell, an opponent of the referendum and supporter of land disposal of sewage, said his meeting will be at Mount View High School Tuursday at 8 p.m.

Council has already arranged a public meeting at the same time for Gordon Head Elementary School and set aside 30 minutes then for Mr. Campbell to bive his views.

Mr. Campbell said half an hour isn't good enough, "so I called my own meeting and will have at least two hours to say why we are opposed to the referendum and other aspects."

Meet Applauds Sewage Plan

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Saanich council won more support than criticism on its proposed sewer program Tuesday night.

Site of the fourth public meeting to explain Saturday's sewerage referendum was the Glanford Gardens area, where there have been frequent complaints of sewage-filled ditches.

The area is part of 3,400 acres stretching from west to east across Saanich, adjacent to the existing sewered area, to which sanitary sewers will be extended during the next five years if the referendum passes.

Forty-five residents, who currently use septic tanks to dispose of household wastes, attended the meeting in Glanford elementary school.

Their mood was apparent at the conclusion of a spirited speech by Ald. Foster Isherwood who urged approval of the referendum. His remarks were greeted by loud applause.

ALL UNANIMOUS

He said council should have instituted the measures proposed in the referendum without going to ratepayers, but the majority on council wanted a public vote. All were unanimous in their support of the proposal.

Divisive talk by opponents of the referendum was not for the good of Saanich, he said.

"This enterprise will not contribute to pollution one iota," he said.

"If it is not passed it will probably contribute to pollution."

If provincial authorities rule that sewage must be treated before disposal into the sea, then the area should have it.

But that isn't the issue in the referendum which is about collection of sewage, he said.

'WILL HAVE FLAWS'

"This proposal is fundamentally fair," he concluded. "No matter which system you have you probably will have flaws."

Earlier in the meeting, one of the opponents of the referendum, James Gorst, said commercial enterprises were not paying their fair share under the proposal, compared to houseowners.

He guessed that Town and Country Shopping Centre has 50 sewer connections. It is on one parcel of land so it pays the common charge of $22.14, less $8.70 rebate because it is in a sewered area, plus 50 maintenance charges of $7 each.

The houseowner would also pay the same common charge, because his dwelling is on one parcel of land, and pay one maintenance charge.

But Town ad Counntry Shopping Centre was probably worth $5 million against $20,000 for a house.

This, he said, meant that while Town and Country Shopping Centre represents a real estate value 250 times more than the average house, it only pays roughly 10 times the sewer costs.

Municipal comptroller-treasurer John Tribe said Town and Country is in the existing sewered area so it is already paying sewer charges. The referendum allowed for use of any excess on maintenance charges to be applied against the outstanding general debt and the maintenance charge could be increased.

FLAT RATE

Another referendum opponent, Gordon Campbell, was told it is correct that the legislation on which the bylaw is based allows for a flat-rate sewer charge or one based on assessed values.

Why then, he asked, did council choose the flat rate over assessed values?

"Council felt it should charge an equal rate for an equal service," replied Mr. Tribe.

"If you have two parcels of land and one is of 100 foot frontage, obviously the assessment is higher than 50 foot frontage.

"If a duplex is on the 50-foot one, the man with the lower assessed value should pay more than the higher assessed one because of the use of the land.

One member of the audience said he couldn't see the reasoning.

"Assessment is based on land," replied Mr. Tribe. "If assessment is on improvements the man with open land pays nothing. That is playing into the hands of the man who is holding vacant land."

OPPONENT SCORED

Ald. Alan Newberry spoke in favor of the referendum and criticized opponent Gordon Campbell.

"The leader of the opposition is a man who tried to get on council. I ask you to draw your own conclusions," he said.

(Mr. Campbell was unsuccessful in the reeveship contest last December against Hugh Curtis in a campaign dominated by the issue of sewage, its collection and its disposal).

Saturday's referendum, in brief, would consolidate the existing separately-financed sewerage areas into a common utility and define an additional area of 3,400 acres of adjacent land to which sewers would be extended in the coming five years.

There would be a common annual debt charge (initially) of $22.14, a common annual maintenance charge of $7 for those connected to sewers and an annual rebate of $8.70 to existing sewered areas, the rebate to last as long as the area had been paying for sewers.

Saanich has opened a personal and telephone information service at the municipal hall this week, between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m., to explain the referendum.

nual reports containing their names are scarce," he said.

Mr. Stanley found his car engine damaged after driving to the office. Police later discovered remnants of a bomb in his home driveway.

Police are investigating the possibility that anti-war groups may be behind the bombings.

"We don't know just what the reason is behind the bombings," a company spokesman said. "If it is an anti-war group, then all I can say is it is a very misguided group."

The spokesman said the Hawker Siddeley group does not send war materials to Vietnam.

"We were also accused recently of sending planes to South Africa. It was about three years ago that we sent any and that was only two or three planes."

Police Chief James Mackey announced a $10,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the persons who executed the carefully-planned attacks. The bombings took place between 3:47 and 5:04 a.m. in the western part of the city. No one was injured.

Police explosives experts said the bombs, which weighed about eight pounds each, were the work of a plumber and a student of chemistry.

They were made of a threaded conduit pipe believed filled with ammonia salts similar to that used in modern hand grenades. They were triggered by a compound of mercury and lead.

The Hawker Siddeley Canada Ltd. group, which includes de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., has been a target of leftwing demonstrators for a year on the grounds the companies were supplying aircraft parts which eventually ended up in Vietnam.

The first and worst explosion Tuesday morning occurred at the home of Darwin G. Kettering, vice-president of marketing and planning for Hawker Siddeley.

Other explosions followed at the homes of William D. Walker, vice-president of manufacturing services; Paul Y. Davoud, vice-president marketing; W. Wallace Muir, vice-president personnel; John H. Ready, vice-president and secretary; Ivan E. Bull, comptroller; Archibald A. Baillie, senior vice-president, and William Boggs, de Havilland president.

The homes of two former Hawker Siddeley executives—Russell Bannock and Larry Clark—also were bombed.

A company official said the attacks could not be ascribed to labor troubles because there were none.

Deputy Police Chief Harold Adamson said it was obvious that no one bomber could have placed all the bombs at the 10 houses during the hour and 17 minutes they exploded. Some of the homes are 10 miles apart.

Sanctuary Ended

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Symbolic sanctuary for draft dodgers in the Unitarian Universalist Church here was discontinued Tuesday when the congregation voted 145 to 82 to rescind the practice.

Bugging Bill Due

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Turner said today the government intends to introduce legislation on wiretapping during the current session of Parliament.

Planning Group Backs Bylaw

The Saanich Advisory Planning Commission voted unanimously Tuesday to support Saturday's sewerage referendum.

The commission is a council-appointed group of eight private citizens and one alderman which makes recommendations on zoning and land use.

A statement from the commission said the referendum is essential to the further development of Saanich and is consistent with good community planning in which an integrated sewage collection system is a basic health requirement.

"The commission further recognizes that the sewer enterprise is required in Saanich regardless of the regional problem of disposal methods," it said.

"Failure of the referendum will have a serious retrogressive effect on the community."

14 Arrested For Burning Draft Records

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Fourteen persons, including five Roman Catholic priests, were arrested after the destruction of thousands of draft records seized from a selective service office Tuesday.

The 14 sang, prayed and waited for arrest while the flames ate at the piles of paper they carted in burlap sacks from the office building to a park across the street.

Their action was designed to prevent induction for a 27,000 draft eligibles.

Col. Bently Courtenay, Wisconsin selective service director, said inductions probably will not be prevented or delayed.

The 14 were held in bond ranging from $25,000 to $30,000. All were charged with arson, burglary and criminal damage to property.

An additional charge of theft was lodged against two of the 14 for allegedly snatching a key to the draft board office from a cleaning woman. The raid was staged just after the office closed for the day.

The Silent Struggle

VIETNAM, RACIALISM, POVerty, violence—these problems understandably are engaging the chief attention of the United States presidential candidates and their audiences throughout the country as the campaign swings into its final weeks. They provide the flame that inspires oratory and crowds, and the heat of emotion in which the issues are being hammered out.

But behind these more spectacular topics another, much quieter, battle is going on, and its outcome will in the end perhaps prove more important than the front page struggles. The quieter contest is that of the experts fighting to direct the country's economy away from hazards and towards continued prosperity.

Since the recent measure was wrestled through Congress providing for an increase of $10 billions in revenue through a surtax, and a decrease in federal spending of $6 billions, a careful watch has been kept to see if the effects were as forecast. The fiscal restraint may be somewhat less than was anticipated through the tax increase; and exemptions from the heavy slash in expenditures—such as the Vietnam war effort and interest on the public debt—have tempered the effects of the spending cut. Borrowing from public funds has kept cash available to the public and so counteracted to some extent the decrease in government spending.

The battle lines of the background struggle are drawn between two schools of economic thought: the monetary and the fiscal. The monetary economists see the economy dependent on—and controllable through—the money supply. The fiscal advocates, on the other hand, place chief importance on government spending, taxation and deficits in determining the trend of the economy.

The former look to an increase in inflation, a continued acceleration of the economy and no change in America's balance of payments, if the present forces persist. The latter experts, however, interpret existing fiscal conditions as producing an economic slowdown, and perhaps even a slight recession in the new year.

Mr. Nixon, if successful in his bid for the presidency, is expected to favor restraint on budgetary deficits and an anti-inflationary climate even at the expense of a small increase in unemployment. Neither candidate, however, has stressed economic issues in his campaign, and in the current political and social atmosphere in the United States the subject would fill few halls or hold few television audiences. But the tug-of-war continues nevertheless, and will in the end decide the ability of the country to finance its war, its domestic social programs and its overseas commitments.

Put Them With the Water Pipes

IT IS ENCOURAGING THAT UNderground wiring is receiving active consideration in Saanich and was even discussed at last week's conference of the Union of B.C. Municipalities. There are two major blots on our urban scenery these days—one, the steady and apparently unavoidable increase of surface parking lots which, empty or full, offer little to please the eye; and the other the archaic system of curbside poles loaded with wires.

Cities of the future will not have this type of power delivery. One of the best improvements ever made in Victoria was the elimination of the overhead wiring through the city centre, and the process should be undertaken on a regularly scheduled basis in an ever-widening perimeter. No urban renewal project should be planned with other than underground wiring, for it will be wasteful to try to create a 20th-century environment with 19th-century facilities. Other communities have "gone underground" and still more are doing it today. We cannot, of course, effect a change overnight. But more economic methods and materials are gradually being developed and we should keep the ultimate objective continually before municipal councils and utility planners.

By the Shores of Okanagan . . .

RECREATION AND CONSERvation Minister Kiernan has replied with some encouragement to a brief from the Okanagan-Similkameen Parks Society urging establishment of a Class A public park on the shore of Okanagan Lake about mid-way between Kelowna and Penticton. The proposal sounds like an excellent one, for the area in question contains scenic canyons, small lakes and a variety of mountain and lakeshore sites admirable for picnics, camping, and both land and water recreation.

While much may be criticized in the provincial government's handling of the major parks, where industrial entry has been permitted to the detriment of these natural museums and recreation areas, the record is very much better in regard to the smaller camping and picnic areas that have been set aside throughout the province. The public's heavy use of these sites is proof of their wide appeal and also proof that the program of park acquisition and development should proceed without hesitation.

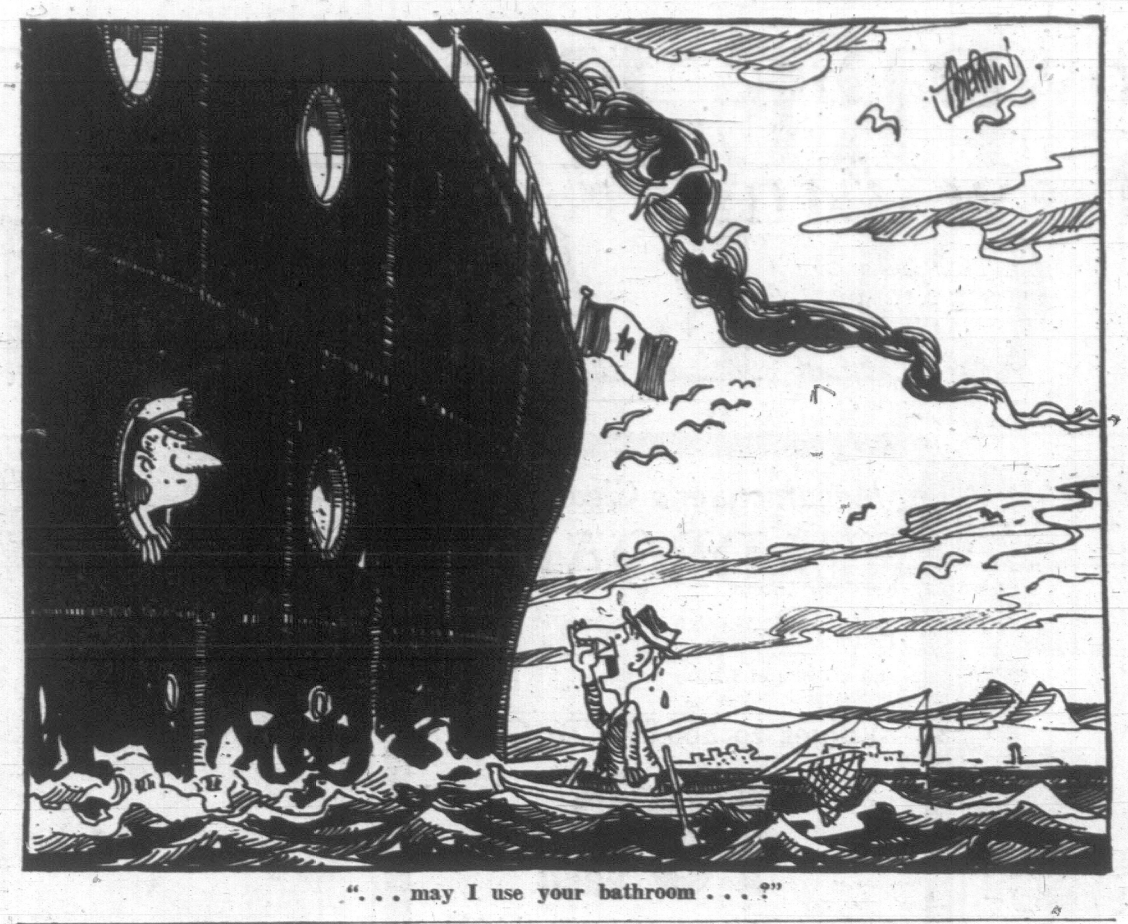

The proposed Okanagan site would be an excellent addition to the provincial parks system, and Mr. Kiernan's referral of the brief to his Parks Branch gives promise of welcome action.

Lost Cause

IT IS DISTRESSING TO READ of the separatist meeting in Montreal where the rallying cry was "Hang Trudeau." Outspoken opposition to the prime minister's policies is one thing, but Canada can do without mob-rousing invective. It creates the climate of hatred and violence which exists in many unsettled countries but which has not often been evident here.

These may have been just words flung out in the passion of the moment, but it is unfortunately true that assassination attempts can be seeded by such incitement.

There is little hope of persuading the Quebec extremists to keep the debate within civilized bounds. The only advantage is that in the long run the irresponsibility of their words will be self-destructive. Although he has lapses from time to time, man ultimately decides an issue on the basis of reason. The fact that the separatists have abandoned the rational approach indicates the futility of their cause.

". . . may I use your bathroom . . . ?"

Letters

Still Remembering

A few days ago I received a card from Butchart Gardens. My dear little granddaughter sent it to me when she was with her family there, on their holiday.

This card reminded me about the wonderful days my husband and I had in Victoria for a few months, last year. I would like to give Victoria a big bouquet of roses, for all the beautiful things we saw. The parks in particular. All the festivities in connection with Canada's Centennial Year. We were also very impressed by Princess Alexandra's opening of the university's sportsground. And not to forget the parade, which was so wonderful too.

In the Middle of May we visited Butchart Gardens. It was very difficult to find words for such a beautiful place and all the flowers. My husband, I think, expresssed really what we felt: "The garden of Eden."

We had many lovely memories to bring with us back from your beautiful city. Congratulation Victoria, for your children and youths. Wherever we met them, in the streets, on the bus, or other places, they were happy, friendly and helpful.

I am grateful to Victoria for the good memories I have.—Mrs. Miriam Sjoqvist. Hackstavagen 10 D - Stockholm, Akersberga, Sweden.

The Axe for Canada Council

Since Mr. Trudeau has embarked on his axe-wielding program, eliminating what he considers unwise or unnecessary expenditures, he might with justification turn his attention to the wasteful expenditures of the Canada Council.

The grants made by this council are supposed to be in support of cultural activities from which the public, who foot the bill, will derive some benefit.

Instead we find grants being made to all kinds of off-beat activities.

The latest of the Council's foolish expenditures is the payment to Ralph Ortiz, the axe-wielding artist from New York. Here's a report from the Victoria Times: "Ortiz opened his performance at Vancouver by swinging his axe at an old record player. His next target was a piano, holding four live white mice and draped with plastic bags of cow's blood. The mice scrambled to safety as the piano splintered." And this edifying spectacle is supposed to be of sufficient cultural value to warrant the Canada Council's expenditure of money obtained from Canadian taxpayers.

It is difficult to find a single grant made by the Council from which the Canadian public has received any cultural benefit.

A Loaded Glove for the Duty Punch

THE consumers of this country have suffered innumerable wounds inflicted by the concealed protective weapons of their federal governments. For this reason their representatives in Parliament should look with intense suspicion on Mr. Benson's latest masterpiece, the white paper on anti-dumping. There is something disarming and ultra-respectable about the term, white paper. In the present case any critic must overcome initial inhibitions because it is generally known that the proposed anti-dumping statute is related (more or less) to the GATT anti-dumping code which in turn is related (more or less) to the Kennedy Round, which is liberal and virtuous. The importance of non-tariff barriers to trade has long been recognized and the general proposition that such matters be regulated by international rules is rarely i ever challenged nowadays.

Western

It is important to be clear on two points. First, the proposed bill is not part of the Kennedy deal. As Mr. Grey, the assistant deputy minister, department of finance, told a House committee last January: "There is no technical or mechanical link between our tariff concessions and the anti-dumping convention. We did not ask for tariff concessions from other countries for the changes we were prepared to contemplate in our anti-dumping provisions. Nor did other countries ask tariff concessions from us for the changes they were prepared to accept in their procedures."

Rude Questions Invited

Thus an inquisitive member of Parliament need not feel that in asking rude questions about Mr. Benson's bill he is in some way suggesting that we should rat on our proper obligations to foreign powers. They might well be overjoyed by the sacrifice of much in this bill.

Secondly, the concern of our hard-fighting negotiators was not solely to liberalize trade. It was this in part; they sought assurances, very properly, that our exports would not be exposed to the arbitrary use, or threat of use, of any dumping duties in other countries. But they were also charged by Mr. Sharp with a second objective; to ensure, in Mr. Grey's words, "that under any new set of rules the Canadian government would have the clearly recognized right to apply any dumping duties quickly and effectively when dumping threatened Canadian industry, and exporters to Canada would not be allowed to dump without running the risk of incurring dumping duties in respect of the period during which the question of injury was being looked into."

Formidable Achievement

How successful they were in their first task will doubtless become apparent over time. Their formidable achievement in the second is evident in Mr. Benson's proposed bill.

If our present anti-dumping law is Draconian, as importers have frequently alleged, what adjective will do justice to Mr. Benson's suggested replacement?

The rule has been that a Canadian firm, in order to set the anti-dumping machinery in action, had to show that the products affected were of a class or kind made in Canada. There had to be substantial Canadian production amounting, according to a long-standing regulation, to ten per cent of normal Canadian production.

In other words, the consumer could not be put to this particular form of tax torture unless there was an established Canadian industry suffering actual injury or threatened by injury from dumped goods.

There is now to be a huge change. If Mr. Benson's bill becomes law, it will be possible at the expense of consumers to protect an industry which is not more than a gleam in the eye of some calculating friend of the government.

The bill says that dump duties may be levied on the basis of a finding that the entry of goods "has materially retarded or is materially retarding the establishment of the production in Canada of like goods."

In other words all a manufacturer has to do is to satisfy a tribunal that, if goods are made more expensive for the public, he will launch a venture protected from birth.

There is even a provision to cover the case of reticent manufacturers who may be hesitant to make representations of this sort to government. A kindly deputy minister will do it for them if he is "of the opinion that there is evidence" that prospective Canadian production is being retarded by the foreign goods being purchased by wayward consumers.

The importer, as he appears in the clauses of Mr. Benson's bill, is a highly suspect, probably subversive, person. What happens if Mr. Smith buys some attractively priced goods and the tribunal, about the same time, is advised by the ever-alert deputy minister that a provisional dumping determination is made (thus protecting industry against the first whiff of competition)? The tribunal goes into action to find out, among other things, if Mr. Smith was aware "or should have been aware" that the exporter was practising dumping. If it turns out that he has been less vigilant than, say, the RCMP or FBI, he gets smacked with an extra duty.

It should not necessarily be assumed that everything in the bill is bad, although it might be prudent for MPs to treat it as Mr. Benson does the importer — suspecting the worst until purity of motive is established beyond doubt.

For example, the code has caused some bother in Ottawa by ruling out dumping duties, combined with arbitrary valuations, where no dumping exists. (This has been the method for dealing, for example, with imports of certain seasonal products.) So the former sections which permitted this are repealed, thus preserving Canadian virtue.

The duty vacuum, is, however, being promptly filled. In a situation where, without dumping, Canadian producers are being injured — in the opinion of the minister of finance — the government at its discretion may impose surtaxes in addition to duties. Such an order may remain in effect without parliamentary approval for 180 days.

It is a very complicated bill which will be studied in committee. One has the impression that it deserves a great deal of study and, in advance of the committee hearings, most careful analysis by importers and by consumer organizations.

FROM WASHINGTON — By RICHARD PURSER

A Ping-Pong Debate on Nuclear Arms

THE tense Arab-Israeli relations in the Middle East do not constitute the only sensitive international issue to be made a plaything of in the U.S. presidential election campaign. East-West relations have also suffered: directly in the emergence of a political controversy over the pending nuclear weapons non-proliferation treaty, indirectly in the question of the NATO-Warsaw Pact power balance along the European dividing line.

Purser

The treaty controversy can be simply stated: Democratic candidate Hubert Humphrey is speaking out for early ratification by the Senate, and Republican Richard Nixon favors a delay.

But in upholding their respective points of view, neither candidate grapples with the issues raised by the treaty. Both favor the treaty, but Mr. Nixon wants its final enactment into international law delayed to show U.S. displeasure with the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, and not because of any intrinsic short-comings of the treaty.

Mr. Humphrey has been warning that Senate failure to act quickly on the treaty will prolong the danger of a nuclear arms race developing among smaller nations, and so prolong the danger of nuclear war. Mr. Nixon's attitude, he said, showed him to be the unregenerate "cold warrior" of his past.

The merits of the treaty have been lost in this debate. If the treaty is basically worthy, as Mr. Humphrey insists vociferously and as Mr. Nixon appears to accept, then the Czechoslovakian or any other unfortunate international affair is irrelevant. It should be approved forthwith. If it is basically unworthy, the Czechoslovakian tragedy is equally irrelevant and it should be disapproved.

But the content of the treaty has not entered into the discussion, which has been limited to slogans. Mr. Nixon, if he believes the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia warrants suspension of the treaty's ratification, must in all logic believe that the U.S. agreed to the treaty out of some desire to do the Soviet Union a favor.

This was not the U.S. intention, as Mr. Nixon could find out in a trice by consulting the state department. The U.S. sought the treaty because it felt the spread of nuclear weapons to non-possessing powers was inherently dangerous: the likelihood of nuclear weapons being used increased with the number of nations possessing them.

Mr. Nixon's case falls flat because it deals with irrelevancies. He could do much better if his aides would draw his attention to the text of the treaty so that he could deal with its inherent shortcomings. There are enough of them to enable Mr. Nixon to put Mr. Humphrey over a barrel on the issue.

He could do so by making two points:

- The treaty does not stop non-nuclear nations from becoming nuclear, because it contains no effective enforcement provisions. It is not even morally binding on nations that do not sign it (Brazil, for example) and will be rendered meaningless in the eyes of any non-nuclear signing nation if it someday decides acquisition of nuclear weapons is in the interest of its own survival.
- The treaty asks certain nations actually or potentially under the gun of nuclear powers — Germany, Japan, India, Israel and-or the Arab states — to abstain should the need arise to counter their enemies and to put their trust in a vague guarantee of succor by the signing nuclear nations. Citizens of the threatened countries are bound to ask eventually whether a major nuclear power — for example, the United States — is really going to open itself to incineration on their behalf.

Talking in Circles

The political candidates are both talking circles around an issue which could determine the fate of the world. This tossing around of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty has immediate repercussions on the East-West front line in Europe.

Germany, especially, has been worried about the avoidance of substance in U.S. political discussion of the treaty, and it has been making its fears known to officialdom here. German feeling is that the treaty, which Germany is being virtually demanded by both sides to sign, can have the eventual result of leaving the country unprotected.

This does not reflect, as the Soviets believe (or profess to believe), a lust to acquire nuclear weapons. It reflects a desire not to be sold short in the process of East-West give-and-take.

Germany feels that the U.S. has underestimated the significance of the Czechoslovakian affair because it has not altered the boundaries of the European power blocs or upset the basic balance of power.

But, they say, it has reflected the ever-growing Soviet paranoia over Germany and has brought a new Soviet troop concentration to the Bohemian-Bavarian border. The Soviets succumbed to their delusions about Czechoslovakia in invading that country; and they have plenty of delusions about Germany.

Arms control and the NATO-Warsaw pact power balance claim attention. One has to tear one's eyes away from the issues as they are seen here in the political campaign: as ping-pong balls being batted back and forth between the candidates.

Looking Back

From the Times, Sept 25, 1908.

NANAIMO — The large stone quarries on Newcastle Island adjacent to this city from which many handsome structures have been built, including many notable buildings on the Pacific coast, have been taken over by an American concern. Several contracts have already been secured in Seattle, Tacoma and other points.

The company has a fine piece of property, for there is no better stone for building purposes on the coast than is to be obtained on the Island.

Super-Power 'Scorpions' Set for New Arms Race

By GEORGE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON—The forced march of nuclear technology has brought the United States and the Soviet Union to the foot of a new mountain of weapons. They have the choice of going on up that mountain—perhaps toward an armageddon—or veering off.

The two nuclear superpowers—likened by the late Robert Oppenheimer to two scorpions in a bottle—for the first time face the choice as near equals. There is no "missile gap" on either side.

In fact, both the United States and the Soviet Union are on the verge of producing doomsday weapons that may so upset the present balance of terror that it can never be restored. This fact is adding a sense of urgency to arguments in favor of a treaty limiting the offensive and defensive missiles on both sides.

President Johnson wants to start negotiating that treaty as soon as he observes an appropriate mourning period for the Czechs. The Soviets, for their part, passed the word after their invasion of Czechoslovakia that they are still interested in discussing a missile freeze.

If such a treaty cannot be negotiated, the U.S joint chiefs of staff have a clutch of proposals for bombers, missiles and other new strategic weapons that would easily add another $100 billion to the military budget, Vietnam war or not.

Their Soviet counterparts also are poised for a big advance in weaponry. They have installed far fewer anti-ballistic missiles around Moscow than U.S. intelligence leaders predicted but, unbraked by a treaty, they could plunge ahead with an extensive ABM system that would force the United States to take more countermeasures.

Takes Eight Years From Drawing Board

Unlike automobiles, weapons take eight or more years to get from the drawing board into steel. Both superpowers have now progressed to the point of readiness to put the latest models into production. But, happily for those who want to keep new weapons strictly on paper, the ability of each side to negotiate from strength may make it easier to reach a missile freeze agreement.

Intercontinental ballistic missiles are a case in point. American and Soviet leaders know that they are about even in ICBMs. The United States elected not to build more than 1,000 Minuteman and 54 Titan ICBMs; the Soviets pushed on to get what is called "nuclear parity," which they will reach as early as next year.

The next president of the United States and the Kremlin leadership both can look good if they describe the nuclear balance in carefully chosen terms.

The next president can declare in all honesty that the number of ICBMs on launchers does not mean anything any more; it's what's up front that counts.

And up front, the president can say, the United States is well ahead. It has MIRV (multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles). This makes the old ICBM act like a new bomber—dropping its load of hydrogen bombs off at different targets. Since one missile is no longer limited to carrying one bomb, why worry about who has the most ICBMs?

With equal honesty, the leaders in the Kremlin can declare that the mighty red rocket forces have far surpassed the United States in number and power of ICBMs. And they, too, would be right.

This leaves long-range bombers and missile-carrying submarines. Here, again, it is a matter of looking at the same facts in different ways.

Bomber Ratio Better Than Four to One

The American president can safely declare that the United States has plenty of bombers—far more than the Soviet Union. The ratio is better than 4 to 1. If he wants to remain unprovocative and save money, he can refuse to build the new bomber the air force wants. In any strategic nuclear war, the bomber will be a launching pad for missiles and the B-52, he can argue, is good enough for that.

The Kremlin leadership can point to the continued production of the Blinder bomber—the B-52 assembly lines have long since closed down. The Soviet Tu-144 supersonic transport, to fly soon, might also be portrayed as fit for the bomber role, a possibility foreseen by chairman John Stennis (D—Miss.) of the Senate preparedness subcommittee.

Knocking out American bombers, the Kremlin could argue, would be easy, thanks to the Soviet lead in space weapons. The Soviets have made 12 test flights of a fractional orbital bombardment system (FOBS).

This is a satellite that could rain H-bombs on American bomber bases. Any American bombers that escaped FOBS, the Soviets could reason, would be shot down by the Tallinn air defence system protecting the northeastern approaches to Russia.

Knocking out American bombers, the Kremlin could argue, would be easy, thanks to the Soviet lead in space weapons. The Soviets have made 12 test flights of a fractional orbital bombardment system

As for submarines, the Soviets have already started a Polaris-type fleet and have high-speed killer subs under construction. Soviet leaders can quote the testimony of U.S. Navy leaders about the surprisingly high speed of existing Russian attack subs.

To win the support of the military leaders in both countries, the missile treaty would have to allow continued research and development work on weapons while limiting their deployment. Limiting deployment, it can be hoped, would in turn reduce the incentive for production.

The Soviet Union also has closed the gap in military research. John S. Foster Jr., director of Pentagon research, told the Senate preparedness subcommittee earlier this year that in 1961 the Soviet Union spent $6.1 billion on atomic energy defence and space research compared to $8.1 billion for the United States. Since then, the Soviets have "more than doubled" their research, Foster said, while the United States increased its effort by 35 per cent.

One of the products of the research by both sides is the spy satellite. Originally designed to pry out information that would help each country design new weapons, the observation satellite could end up as the policeman for the treaty designed to reduce the need for such weapons.

Satellite Spying Kept Under Wraps

Both sides keep their satellite reconnaissance activities very much under wraps; Pentagon security is even tighter than the Kremlin's in this area. But, with a little space detective work, a great deal can be learned about how the United States and the Soviet Union keep each other on camera most of the time.

The Soviets launch their eyes in the sky from Plesetsk and Tyuratam. The satellites used to stay up for eight days, but more recently for 12. The cameras are turned on when the satellites go over areas of special interest, such as U.S. military bases or the fleet deployed for the recent French nuclear tests.

In June, when the French were setting up for their nuclear tests off Tahiti, the Soviets flew five observation satellites—a record for this year. They bore the cover names of Cosmos 223, 224, 227, 228 and 229.

Western space specialists believe the Soviet eye in the sky is a modified Vostok spaceship, the type flown by the first cosmonauts. The craft and its load of film is brought down to earth in deserted reaches of the Soviet Union. As it floats down to earth by parachute, the spacecraft sends out radio signals so it can be found quickly.

The United States launches its observation satellites from the air force's western test range in California. The rocket used has been perfected to enable the spacecraft to swoop down as close as 50 miles above the earth for close-up pictures—presumably by a zoom lens.

But unlike the Soviet spacecraft, the U.S. satellite does not make a soft landing on the earth. Instead, its package of film is jettisoned out over the ocean and snatched in mid-air by a plane dispatched to make the highly secret rendezvous. The capsule is designed to sink if there is a miss.

'Fantastic Detail' Reported in Photos

On most days, there is at least one observation satellite looking down from space. The pictures they take are described as "fantastically detailed" by American officials who have seen them. U.S. officials used to brag that they could take a picture of an object as small as a dinner plate. Now they claim they can pick out a button on a man's shirt.

This kind of detail enables the superpowers to keep track of missile deployment and troop movements. They can even count horses and tractors to get an idea on how advanced an economy is.

The observation satellites, as one specialist put it, make monitoring a missile treaty mechanically "an acceptable risk." They may prove the way of getting around Soviet objections to on-site inspection that have derailed arms negotiations in the past.

If a formal missile treaty is negotiated, its endorsement by the joint chiefs if vital to hopes for Senate approval. The chiefs supported the nuclear test ban treaty and might well back a missile freeze if they could be convinced the treaty would not allow the Soviets to make a weapons breakthrough.

● Improved capability missile (ICM)—This would be a nuclear "Big Bertha," its warhead several times the power of the one-megaton Minuteman 3. It would be buried deep in the ground so an enemy H-bomb could not destroy it. The Soviets have an SS-9 ICBM which can lift a bomb of between 12 and 25 megatons. The ICM would be partly in answer to the SS-9.

● Anti-ballistic missiles (ABM)—The chiefs want to invest up to $20 billion in a defence against Soviet missiles, beyond the $6 billion Chinese shield under way. McNamara fought this as a waste of money. He said that Soviet ICBMs would get through any defence, no matter how elaborate, and that the defence sought by the chiefs would end up costing $40 billion. The chiefs not only still want this thick defence but are looking into putting anti-missile missiles on ships and in planes.

Supersonic Bomber Could Fly in Low

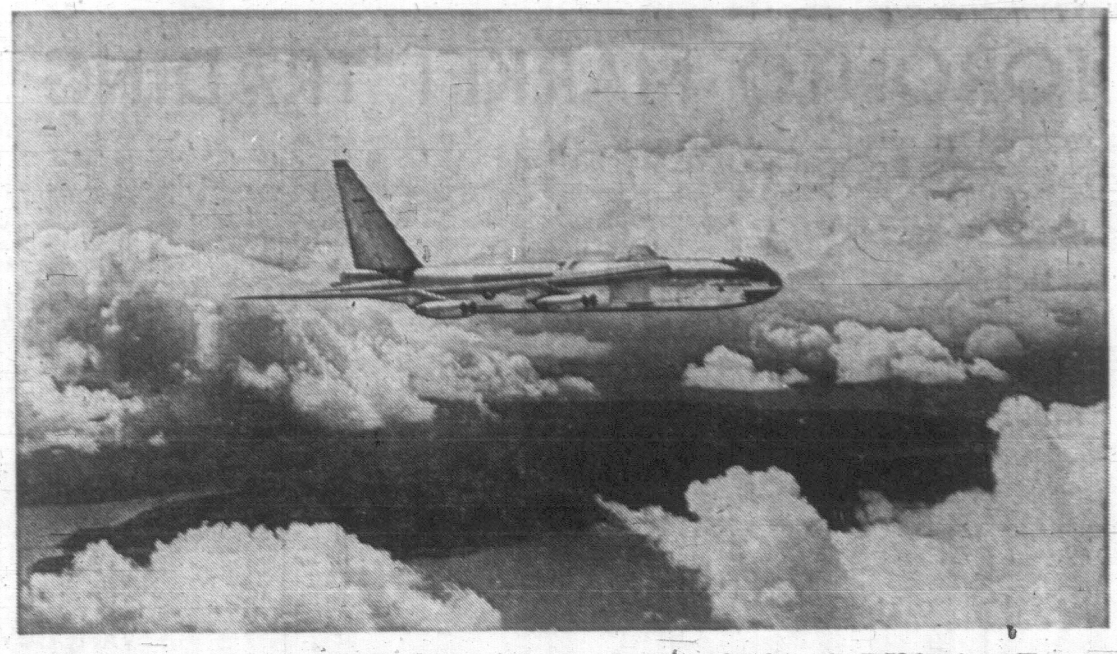

● New bomber—The air force considers the bomber version of the F-111A only a stopgap, a replacement for the older B-52s. The service wants a supersonic bomber that could fly in low, under enemy defences. Cost estimates are $8 billion for 210 of the new bombers and $23 billion to buy and maintain them for 17 years. Lawmakers protest that a new bomber has been kept in the study stage too long. Many insist it is time to get started.

● New bomber defence—The Soviet Union is not building up its bomber force, but it might. So the joint chiefs want to build a defence just in case. The present bomber defence around the United States does little good against planes flying in low. The new system would put the detection radar up in an airplane so it could look down to pick out any low-flying bombers. The F-12 fighter to go with this new system would cost about $20 million a copy. The price tag for the whole system would be $14 billion.

The Soviets would take countermeasures against these and other weapons advances by the United States. This action-reaction phenomenon is what increases arms spending on both sides.

The nuclear missile treaty—like a holy grail of man's hopes—may never be within any closer reach than it is right now.

(The Washington Post)

BACKBONE of United States nuclear defence forces in recent years has been the B-52 bomber. The questions facing the country now is: should it be replaced by a newer, faster bomber that would cost some $23 billion over the next 17 years. Some maintain that the B-52 is still adequate as the launching pad for missiles in the event of nuclear war.

Rand Defies Economic Facts of Life

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

There are many points at which a union will sign a collective agreement. If plotted on a graph these points shift downward as negotiations proceed. There are many points at which management will sign, and on a graph these drift upward during negotiations.

Fisher

The basic assumption in collective bargaining is that it is in the public interest that the two should bargain and engage in such activities as are prescribed and regulated by law until a "point" of each coincides, or until the two part company.

The main recommendation of the Rand Report on Labor Disputes in Ontario is that this system which harmonizes the collective action of workers with the demands of the free market economy should be scrapped. It is to be replaced by arbitrary fiats of an all-powerful tribunal.

Crowe

The first question to be asked (and it has been asked and discussed in countless publications), is: How would the tribunal determine where the vital point of settlement would be?

The Rand Report certainly does not offer a clue. And for good reason, Even if it were not indicated by the text of the report, it is clear from the facts of economic life that the tribunal's verdict would be fortuitous and unaccountable.

Let it be made clear that Mr. Justice Rand is not talking about guidelines for bargaining, as in Sweden (although he does make untenable references to Sweden), laid down for the whole economy, then for segments of it, within which a given union and a given management reach a settlement.

That is an entirely different matter. It is a device to be considered along with a whole set of controls of the economy, in a nation with high minimum levels, full employment, and where the major parties are essentially socialist in their outlook.

Mr. Justice Rand is speaking of a labor court which would set the price which management would be forced to pay for its labor, and which the union would have to accept for the workers. (But which the individual workers would not necessarily accept.)

How would this price be determined by the judges of the tribunal? They could not use the "going" increase of the Province because they have to set it.

Would they accept the average Quebec wage increase as the standard for Ontario? Would they use national productivity figures for Ontario with its higher-than-average productivity? Would they make a wild guess at what Ontario's average productivity figures would be if they were computable?

Would they apply this figure across the board regardless of the firm's ability to pay, or would they compute separate figures for each firm's productivity performance and apply it regardless of the workers' contibution to that productivity, or conversely, regardless of his ability to pay his grocery bills?

Would the tribunal assume that all wages now paid are equitable and apply uniform increases, or involve itself in a great splurge of rectifying existing inequalities?

One thing we can predict is that it would do what labor courts have done in Australia. And that is to build into the pricing system such entrenched wage rigidities that the allocation of resources to more efficient and productive parts of the economy would be seriously hampered.

Another thing we can predict is that it would fail totally to attract into its service any competent economists. Economists are in great demand and they are unlikely to waste their time and talents in an activity which would be offensive to their profession.

A baroque digression in the report underlines its level of economic analysis. The commissioner appears to assume that wage increases, as a rule, must cause price increases, and that this is harmful.

He may be right. But as a judge and not an economist he should at the very least say that on both points most economists do not agree with him.

●

Mr. Justice Rand uses these parts of John Kenneth Galbraith which allege that unions do contribute to a problem of inflation, but not those parts which allege that the union contribution is much less important than that of corporations.

In the fields of history, public order, industrial relations, and now economics, Mr. Justice Rand has isolated himself from scholarship and insulated himself from reality.

A Cricket Delivered Summer's Valedictory

By ART STOTT

Stott

My sister's letter from the Atlantic seaboard glows with a Westerner's appreciation for the late September color of the Maritimes' hardwood forests. It is a sight I have yet to see and to contrast with the more sober, but still rich, change of the seasons on the south of this Island.

There are a few splashes of brilliant paint glowing at Shawnigan. Some of the wild Oregon grape sport leaves of crimson and scarlet, some a shiny yellow. And, with the first touches of frost, the poplar on Smith's point up the lake will lift like a candle flame. But our maples seldom achieve more than an overnight flash of yellow among green leaves that quickly brown and rustle to the earth. Around the shoreline the evergreens have a new-washed look, the hues of cedar, pine, hemlock, blasam and Douglas fir forming the backdrop for arbutus trunks, while the alders move toward a conventional subdued tweed.

We watched summer end there this year in the light haze of slash burning dulling the yellow light of early September and softening the evenings. A cricket delivered his valedictory in the quiet of a still-warm dusk, chirping from stones of the little jetty.

In the morning the mist lingered longer on the water, breaking like fragile veils, and on the hillsides the small patches of cloud dissolved under the sluggish sun.

Cheekie, the squirrel, found a temporary playmate of his kind and raced in dizzy revolutions around the bole of a big fir. But, in another day, the playmate had gone and Cheekie returned to his quest for the seeds in cones, stripping them as a hungry boy eats his sweet buttered corn.

The deer that had made regular night visits to the lake to drink, sought higher ground, and the mink that fished all summer from the jetty apparently found other foraging ground.

The rains came, chilling the water and beating a drumroll on the roof in the darkness. Even on relatively clear nights, a low haze obscured lights across the lake, but overhead the stars shone in a moonless sky, the Big Dipper clear in its swing around the Polar Star and the Milky Way a misty smear diagonally across the heavens.

It is not yet the time of Nature's deep sleep at the lake. A pair of herons swing in measured flight low over the surface. A hawk sails high. Ravens flap among the tree tops and each gives its call to the bush and water life below.

The tempo, though, is subdued. The holiday youngsters with their cheerful noise have gone. The roar of speedboats is reduced to occasional flips by drivers now numbered on the fingers of one hand, no longer in the scores.

There is a nip in the breeze which ruffles the lake to which fishermen have returned.

Soon clean-up fires will dot the shore, their blue wood smoke drifting upward through the firs and, in the dusk, their flames lending bright splotches of warm color to the surrounding gloom.

The boats are being taken in. Summer homes are being sheeted against the driving gales of winter. Indoors, open fireplaces draw family members together, tied closer by the radiating warmth.

It is a time, now, of gentle melancholy for the bright days that have been spent and for the memories their spending brought. The incidents of the summer are pictured again, drowsily, in the flickering dance of flames and changing red embers.

A man no longer young sees in his mind's eye the determination stamped on the face of a small child fighting valiantly to cover a set distance in his private swim test, the beam of exultation that replaced the frown of effort when the goal was reached.

He thinks of the bright imagination that wove stories into the conversation of the four-year-old sharing, with his grandfather, a first leisurely trolling expedition for trout that did not bite.

His memory recalls the kindly talk of friends at the little beach on days of heat and leisure and he can look forward to another year when the little ones will swim farther, when the grandsons will catch their first fish, when September evenings will fall like a benediction on a quieting lake, when the beat of rain on the roof will be a lullaby.

The woods of Shawnigan create no painter's masterpiece at this time. They are dull by contrast to the magnificence of flaming autumn foliage in the east. But there is still color and warmth to the countryside and enjoyment for the person who builds his house among the trees and enjoys the serenity that flows with the season before the grey days of winter set in.

Neon-Imbrex

Neon Products of Canada Ltd. said Tuesday it has received a formal agreement protecting it from any loss occasioned by a lawsuit involving Imbrex Ltd. of Montreal.

Neon said it therefore will be able to proceed with acquisition of Imbrex, Canada's largest distributor of carpets and floor coverings.

The agreement protects Neon and Imbrex in a lawsuit brought by Arthur B. Green of Port Credit, Ont., former Imbrex director, against Imbrex and a number of major shareholders and directors.

Oshawa Wholesale

Oshawa Wholesale Ltd. had consolidated net profit of $2.28 million or 40.92 cents a share in the 28 weeks ended Aug. 10, compared with $1.86 million or 34.51 cents in the similar 1967 period.

Sales totalled $141.3 million compared with $117 million.

McGavin Boosts

Bread prices in the Interior are up two cents, according to Allan McGavin, president of McGavin Toastmaster.

He said the price of a 16-ounce loaf is increased from 24 to 26 cents, the same price as a loaf in Vancouver.

Bow Valley Looking

Daryl K. Seaman, president of Bow Valley Industries Ltd., said Tuesday the company plans to seek interests in Computamatics Ltd. of Calgary and Mainland Foundry and Engineering Ltd., of Vancouver.

Mr. Seaman said Bow Valley directors had approved signing of letters of intent involving a 50 per cent equity interest in Computamatics and all issued and outstanding shares of Mainland Foundry.

Computamatics would be purchased for $750,000 over five years while Mainland Foundry would be purchased for $1.55 million and 11,150 common shares of Bow Valley.

Computamatics, formed this year by McDaniel Consultants of Calgary, supplies information to the oil and natural gas industry. Mainland Foundry operates an iron foundry, machine and metal fabricating shops and an industrial supply business in Vancouver.

Mr. Seaman also said Bow Valley had sold its interest in Castle Oil and Gas Ltd. for a $684,000 profit.

Shell No. 10

Shell Anglo Harlequin D-86, the tenth well in Shell Canada's exploratory drilling program off Canada's West Coast, has been spudded said R.S. Aberg, production department manager in Calgary.

The new location is about 30 miles northwest of the ninth well, Shell Anglo Osprey D-36, and about 40 miles East of Cape St. James, Queen Charlotte Islands. The ninth well was plugged at a depth of 8,302 feet.

Billion Mark Hit By Mutual Funds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Assets of the five mutual funds operated by the Investors Group of Winnipeg have surpassed $1,000,000,000 for the first time, according to President C. E. Atchison.

He said the assets of the five funds increased by about $80,000,000 since the end of June and now total $1,002,000,000.

The five mutual funds, with the assets of each, are Investors Mutual of Canada Ltd., $578,000,000; Investors Growth Fund of Canada Ltd., $295,000,000; Investors International Mutual Fund Ltd., $91,000,000; Provident Mutual Fund Ltd., $35,000,000; and Provident Stock Fund Ltd., $3,000,000.

BLOCK TRADES EYED

By IRWIN FRANK

NEW YORK (AP) An increase of about 80 per cent in the number of big block trades on the New York Stock Exchange has aroused the concern and interest of President Johnson, the Securities and Exchange Commission and others.

The big blocks-exchanges of 10,000 shares or more—are traded as much as 50 or more times a day and can affect the price of one or more stocks. The stock market ticker carries to all parts of the country the information on the big trades—mostly by the institutional investors—and one stock goes up to points, another down one, up one-half, down two.

One of the fast-moving conglomerates, ("Automatic") Sprinkler Corp. was a darling of the mutual funds. The funds held 23 per cent of the stock.

Early this year the report hit Wall Street that earnings of "Automatic" would be disappointing. The funds began a quick sell-off, getting rid of about half their holdings. There was some buying, but not enought to counter the effect of the dumping by the funds.

The funds, with billions of dollars in the market, have hit other companies and industries hard. Their power has caused government officials and Wall Street observers to grow more and more concerned.

And as the power of the funds increases, the concern has grown to such extent that three separate investigations have been launched or are planned. Probers will look into the power and effect not only of the mutual funds but also of all institutional investment organizations.

Mutual funds have attracted the most attention because of their almost fantastic growth and because of the nature of some of their operations. The funds have grown from $500 million 28 years ago to nearly $50 billion.

Many persons who watch the market are concerned that the institutions buy and sell in such large blocks that their actions—even though not collusive—can have a major effect on the stock prices.

Manuel F. Cohen, chairman of the SEC, said the stock exchange is "an auction market which was built to take care of random orders coming from all over the world in small numbers." He said it was not designed for funds which deal in 25,000-share lots.

The funds are not content to sit back and watch their investment earn 6 per cent. Many are looking and trading for short-term gains, willing to jump in and out of a stock within weeks for a fast 20-per-cent gain, acting on information from private researchers.

Their actions can affect a particular stock.

The biggest question today on Wall Street, at the Securities and Exchange Commission and in the minds of small investors is: What are the institutions doing to the market?

The Question takes on tremendous importance when it is realized that 24 million Americans hold stocks either directly or through funds.

The fact that these institutions—mutual funds, pensions, insurance companies, trusts, college endowments—own about 40 per cent of all stock on the New York Stock Exchange gives dimension to the situation that some observers consider disturbing.

South African Gold Selling Seems Imminent

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the war of nerves between the U.S. and South Africa on the gold price question, the U.S. has adopted a tough posture.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler's speech Tuesday represented a bet that the South Africans will soon have to unload some of their gold.

Since March, when the South Africans began holding their newlymined gold off the market, their official gold reserves have ballooned at least $300 million to slightly more than $1 billion.

To earn foreign exchange, the U.S. apparently believes, the South Africans will have to allow some of the gold they have stashed away to flow into the free market.

●

The South Africans have been pressing, instead, for the right to sell gold to central banks or to the International Monetary Fund at the official $35 price, whenever they chose to.

The U.S. and its gold pool partners have rejected this idea, which would allow the South Africans to manipulate the market.

As a compromise — to protect the value of existing gold reserves — Otmar Emminger of the German Bundesbank recently suggested that the IMF provide a floor if the free market price threatened to dip below $35 an ounce.

Emminger — with strong support from IMF managing director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer — for a time thought that such a compromise might be accepted during the course of the forthcoming annual meeting. It would tend to assure, they felt, a relative stability in gold prices around the $35 level.

The U.S. attitude makes it doubtful that any deal will be made during next week's sessions.

Fowler agreed that he doesn't want to see a sharp drop in the $35 price, either.

The U.S. would offer to protect that price only for the "frozen" level of gold reserves as they existed last March 17, at the time of the Washington agreement to bar sales to speculators.

Whether over the long haul, the U.S. and other nations can force South Africa and other gold-producing nations to sell their new gold only for non-monenetary purposes remains to be seen.

So long as the dollar is in demand, the U.S. can deal from strength, as it appears to be doing at the moment. A good appetite for dollars diminishes the hunger, even among central bankers, for gold bullion.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Fringe Benefits Are Real

By
EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

Fringe benefits cost more to an employer than they appear to be worth to an employee.

To an employer all salaries and wages costs which are not direct payment for productive hours of labor may be regarded as fringe benefits. These fringe costs would include such items as holiday pay, statutory holidays, and even rest periods and coffee breaks.

But to an employee a fringe benefit is some tangible value which he can recognize as being in addition to his pay cheque. He does not see his coffee break as a value which he receives, nor would he normally count his holiday pay cheque as an extra value in addition to his regular pay cheque. These things are all part of his pay.

SEMANTIC PROBLEM

The problem is really a matter of semantics because the words "fringe benefits" have come into general use without any clear definition of their meaning. This simple difference of interpretation has been, and still is, the cause of much wasteful misunderstanding between employers and employees.

A recent survey has shown that, taking the employer's view of the words, the real cost of fringe benefits amounts to an extra one third on top of the direct costs of productive labor hours. As a general average for the country as a whole this amounts to almost $1,600 a year for each employee, an increase of 31 per cent over the $1,220 amount for 1965.

This is obviously a very large factor for most businesses and it is not surprising that it causes very serious review and determination by management to hold the line against such a rapid rise in these costs.

However, it is futile for management to complain in the boardroom about costs and percentages about which the employees have never been informed. To simply object to rising fringe benefits according to one definition is worse than useless.

CPA New Zealand Route Jeopardized

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

AUCKLAND (CP — A transportation route which goes far back in the history of Pacific travel is in jeopardy as the result of a decision of the New Zealand government.

The government has given Canada 12 months' notice of the termination of the civil air service agreement reached between the two governments 18 years ago.

The notice dates from June, so that Canadian Pacific Airlines' service from Vancouver to Auckland will have to cease by next June unless some arrangement can be made in the interim.

When most passengers travelled by sea, the Vancouver-Auckland journey was an important liner route. It was a leg of the All Red Route, from Britain, across Canada, to New Zealand and Australia.

The air connection was inaugurated soon after the Second World War by British Commonwealth Pacific Airlines. For the last 15 years it has been maintained by CPA.

The CPA service began on a fortnightly basis in 1953. The next year it was increased to once a week, and continued on that frequency until 1965.

With the introduction of DC-8 jet airliners, the service dropped to once a fortnight again. Canadian Pacific sought to have it increased again two years ago to once a week, but New Zealand would not agree.

New Zealand's international airline, Air New Zealand, has reciprocal rights to operate a service to Vancouver. It runs to Honolulu and Los Angeles from New Zealand, but maintains that there is not enough traffic offering to justify it operating a service from Honolulu to Vancouver.

The New Zealand view is that Canada has benefitted more than New Zealand from the reciprocal rights agreement.

Announcing the decision to terminate the agreement, Civil Aviation Minister J. B. Gordon said CPA had brought only about 800 Canadian passengers a year to New Zealand.

On the other hand CPA had been taking a large share of Auckland-Honolulu traffic that might otherwise be available to Air New Zealand.

LOSE $350,000

One government estimate is that the loss to Air New Zealand is $350,000 a year.

It is generally recognized in New Zealand that the whole situation is part of the complicated and tortuous process of bargaining which is a feature of air service rights.

It is known that the Canadian government already is discussing the proposed cancellation with CPA. A government-to-government approach on the matter is expected shortly.

One suggestion made in the New Zealand press is that the New Zealand government might be more amenable to CPA continuing its service from Vancouver to Auckland if Air New Zealand was given the right to fly from Los Angeles to Montreal or Toronto.

But there has been little indication that Air New Zealand is anxious to extend its services beyond the American West Coast for the time being.

Packer Faces Combines Act

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — A meat-packing company, Burns Foods Ltd. of Calgary, and two individuals were charged in magistrate's court here Tuesday with combining to lessen the beef supply to retail stores and the department of national defence base at Gagetown, N.B.

Individuals named in the charges under the Combines Act are Edward Coughlan of Regina and L. W. McLeod of Saint John.

Details were not specified in the indictments read today. Magistrate H. S. Prince set the case over to Feb. 4 pending clarification as to whether separate indictments would form part of one charge.

Cars Withheld Pending Repairs

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Pontiac Motors' division of General Motors Corp. is reported to have advised its dealers in the United States to withhold 1969-model station wagons from display or sale, pending the repair of possible defects in dual-action tailgates.

Pontiac told dealers in a letter there was a possibility that dual-action tailgates on some of the division's first-run 1969 station wagons might drop off when opened.

FIRST Japanese-built commercial aircraft to be bought by a Canadian airline is the YS-11 turbo-prop, powered by two British-built Rolls Royce engines in unusual configuration. Transair, of Winnipeg, has put two of the planes into northern service after training 12 pilots and 20 maintenance men in Japan. The plane has two-abreast first-class seating for 46 and cruises at 300 mph.

QUEBEC BUILDS CENTRE

BEAUPORT, Que. (CP) — Resources Minister Paul Allard today announced plans to establish a Quebec mineral research centre, to assist the mining industry and discover new investments to expand the province's economy.

Addressing the annual meeting of the provincial Chambre de Commerce, Mr. Allard said scientific research is necessary to the establishment and development of new industry, and hence to the improvement of living standards.

He said the new centre will be established soon, but did not specify any date.

Establishment of a provincial research centre on resources has already been promised by the government on a number of occasions, including the throne speech opening the legislature session last Feb. 20.

Premier Daniel Johnson told a delegation from the provincial chamber earlier in February, during presentation of the business group's annual brief to the government, that a provincial research council would be set up during the current session.

The session is to resume Oct. 22 after a summer recess.

Exports Rise

Exports of passenger automobiles and chassis rose by more than 50 per cent in the first seven months of this year to a value of $769 million compared with $501 million in the same period last year, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

Sales abroad of wheat were down to $404 million from $526 million, and running third to Canada's automotive and newsprint exports.

Newsprint paper sales totalled $569 million compared with $550 million in the January-July period of 1967.

Chase Bank Makes Move

NEW YORK (UPI)—Chase Manhattan Bank Tuesday reduced its prime rate to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent, effective today.

Chase, third largest U.S. bank, thus became the first of the large commercial banks in New York City to lower its prime rate—charged to large borrowers with the highest credit standing—since the federal reserve pared its discount rate to 5¼ per cent from 5½ per cent in mid-August. Irving Trust Co. and other large commercial banks said they were studying the move.

There has been only a sprinkling of prime rate cuts since the federal reserve reduced the discount rate, beginning with National Bank of South Carolina, a relatively small bank in Sumter, S.C. That almost immediately moved from 6½ to 6¼ per cent.

A few Philadelphia banks did the same earlier this month, but on Sept. 18, National City Bank of Minneapolis dropped to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent.

George Champion, chairman of Chase Manhattan and president David Rockefeller, said the prime rate cut was taken "in the light of a reduction over recent months in interest rates generally."

Chevrolet introduces 1969.

'69 Caprice Coupe

Caprice. Match this, you other 69's.

There is no joy in the land of our competitors today.

But let us ask you this.

Should we have made the Caprice shorter, instead of the longest Chevrolet ever built? Or adorned it with flashy nicknacks to make it look less expensive?

Should we not have made it possible for you to order the new washers that clean your headlights, the new variable-ratio power steering, or the liquid tire chain that you can apply to your rear wheels at the touch of a button from the driver's seat?

Should we not have included a new 327 cubic-inch engine—the biggest standard engine ever offered on Chevrolet V8 models—and let you combine it or any other Chevrolet engine with the convenience of a smooth 3-speed automatic transmission?

Should we have skipped the added interior elegance? The improvements in the Astro Ventilation system, the strength of the body, the quietness of the ride?

Some people think so.

Gov't Accused Of Cover-Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal cabinet ministers Tuesday re-buffed Opposition attempts to ferret out details of a security case involving a public servant. Conservative Leader Stanfield accused the government of a cover-up.

Mr. Stanfield told reporters the case reported in the Toronto Star "raises serious doubts" about Canadian security measures. He noted the suspect had remained on the job after he was found out.

Prime Minister Trudeau must make a statement to remove those doubts as soon as possible, Mr. Stanfield said. He could not believe, he said, that Mr. Trudeau would permit the doubt to remain.

Mr. Stanfield said the government was using security as a cover-up for whatever was going on. Justice Minister Turner had said earlier in the Commons that to protect the national interest investigations involving national security are not generally made public.

In the Commons, Mr. Stanfield broached the newspaper report, which said a public servant was forced to resign after trying to sell military secrets to the Russians.

Mr. Trudeau, justice minister when the case was brewing, referred the matter to Mr. Turner, who acknowledged existence of the case by saying the government had decided it was not in the public interest to prosecute the person involved.

SAYS DATA LACKING

Other MPs fired questions, but Mr. Turner did not shed any additional light on the case. Twice he told questioners he lacked information to answer.

Outside the Commons, the 39-year-old minister refused to repeat for television cameras the little he said about the case inside. It is routine for ministers to do so.

Inside the Commons, Mr. Turner told Mr. Stanfield, who asked most of the questions, he was not prepared to say why the public servant was let off without a trial.

To other questioners, Mr. Turner said he had no information about whether the government employee had disappeared and the RCMP could not find him.

Nor could he say on what basis the employee was either dismissed or forced to resign from the public service if no charges had been laid against him. He did say that the case was closed.

With Mr. Turner sticking to his guns, John Diefenbaker, the former Conservative prime minister, tried to get Mr. Trudeau to grant former Conservative cabinet ministers the right to see the case records.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that since the former ministers as privy councillors are sworn to secrecy, security would not be endangered and "it would avoid any suggestion of secrecy of covering up."

FENDS OFF PROPOSAL

The suggestion was fended off by Mr. Trudeau, who said the report of the royal commission on security is due soon.

Mr. Trudeau said he expected the report to deal with the question of permitting such access to secret records. He would prefer to wait until then because the report might "give us some basis on which to act."

If it did not, then Mr. Trudeau promised to discuss the matter of access with Mr. Stanfield in his role as Opposition leader.

Defence Minister Cadieux told Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary Centre) that the security suspect was not an employee of his department.

The Star said the public servant once worked for the director-general of intelligence and security, which is in the defence department, and after switching to a non-sensitive federal department, the man tried to sell his secrets. The RCMP heard about his efforts, masqueraded as Soviet agents and paid him for information.

The suspect was picked up and interrogated and a report of the case sent to Mr. Trudeau, who decided not to prosecute, the Star said.

Eventually, the public servant quit after he was told to do so or face what the Star called unpleasant action.

Retirement Deferred

Dr. Hugh Morrison, chairman of the B.C. civil service commission, has been given a further three months extension to continue working for the government. A cabinet order, noting he reached the compulsory 65 retirement age last March but was given an extension, said he was still needed in the service and added a further deferrment of his retirement until the end of the year.

Dies of Injuries

VANCOUVER (CP)—Jean S. Prentice, 64, died in St. Paul's Hospital Tuesday of injuries suffered Saturday in a fall down a flight of stairs.

UPDATING the Victoria voters' list the Association of Women Electors this week is manning a booth on the main floor of Eaton's store. From left are applicants Mr. and Mrs. Ray Ditchburn and registrars Mrs. Lillian Wright and Mrs. Walter G. Henry. The volunteers were sworn as deputy city clerks and will remain on duty until store closing time Saturday. Their job is to snare as many owner and tenant electors as possible to make sure their names are on the voters' list in time for the December civic elections. (Times photo.)

Tourist Industry Supports Proposed Convention Centre

The meeting, organized by the tourist industry sector of Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, endorsed the majority of aldermen who favor a convention centre proposed by Marathon Realty adjacent to the Empress Hotel.

About 36 men from the hotel, motel, restaurant, sightseeing, transportation and allied tourist businesses attended the meeting at the Empress Hotel.

Marathon, the real estate and development company of Canadian Pacific Railway plans a convention facility complex for which the city would contribute the cost of the meeting hall, estimated at $2.3 million.

The meeting also urged that city hall proceed rapidly with negotiations, said Leonard Ingraham, president of the Victoria Hotel Association.

Certain haste was needed, someone at the meeting pointed out, because of convention facility surveys being made by Nanaimo.

By DERYK THOMPSON

The judiciary and all municipal police departments were represented at a farewell banquet Tuesday night in honor of Saanich Deputy Police Chief Joe Armstrong.

More than 150 men were present for the ceremony held for the deputy, who retires Monday after 22 years in the force.

Speakers included Judge Montague Drake, Magistrate William Ostler, the five municipal police chiefs, RCMP officials, Neil McDiarmid, from the attorney-general's department, Lloyd McKenzie, Q.C., and Lou Hamblin, warden at Wilkinson Road jail.

PAID TRIBUTE

All paid tribute to the growth and achievement of the Saanich force during deputy Armstrong's time with it and used glowing words to describe the work of the deputy himself.

Magistrate William Ostler said Saanich has a large and smart force which all citizens could be proud of and that Mr. Armstrong could be proud of his contribution.

He said the public doesn't often appreciate what a policeman is and does. The magistrate said a policeman is really a person with many jobs, and is often called upon to be a part-time doctor, psychiatrist, lawyer, marriage counselor and sometimes a midwife.

Lloyd McKenzie, guest speaker of the evening and introduced as "honorary colonel of the Royal Saanich Light Horse" recalled the earlier days of the Saanich force at the time when he acted as Saanich prosecutor.

He said deputy Armstrong was "as good as they come."

Amidst laughter warden Lou Hamblin told the deputy "the door is always open to you." He praised Mr. Armstrong for the "very high degree of co-operation" that he enjoyed with him and Saanich over the years.

TOTEM POLE

Presentations made included a totem pole from the RCMP, a pen and pencil set from Oak Bay, a pair of binoculars from Esquimalt, a silver plate from Central Saanich, a cheque and chair from Saanich, and an emblem of the city force from Victoria.

LANE-HOGGERS TARGET OF 'NO TURN' RULING

Motor vehicle regulations aimed at preventing illegal left and right turns are not meant to stop drivers from turning into their own driveways.

Superintendent Ray Hadfield said there has been some confusion since the announcement that under the points system being used to keep track of driving offenses two demerit points will be awarded persons who make an illegal right turn between intersections.

He said the regulation is aimed at those who cut across lanes to make a right turn and that it is no offence to turn from the curb lane in mid-block.

'69 Chevelle SS 396 Sport Coupe

'69 Chevy Nova

Camaro, Chevelle, Chevy Nova. Who needs to say 'announcing' or 'new' or 'better.'

The way the '69 Camaro hangs together, it's no wonder the other sportsters are gnashing their gears. You won't find a tacky piece of gingerbread anywhere. Or a line that isn't leaning into the wind.

Think of the '69 Chevelle as the 'concentrated Chevrolet.' It's got Big Chevrolet features, but a naturally active personality all its own. Just add gas—and let the rest of the mid-size class step aside.

The '69 Chevy Nova costs very little to get into. Very little to run. And, if you order it with low cost Torque-Drive transmission, available on six cylinder models, it even lets you lose your clutch while you give your wallet a break.

Eavesdropping Controls Urged After Probe

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart says the Grant report on an inquiry into the conduct of two Toronto magistrates confirms his opinion that the use of electronic eavesdropping devices should be controlled by law.

Mr. Justice Campbell Grant of the Ontario Supreme Court found former magistrate Frederick J. Bannon, 34, unfit to hold office because of deliberate associations with Vincent Alexander 46, "who professed to have sufficient influence with magistrates and public officials to gain advantage" for accused persons.

Magistrate George Gardhouse, 60, a former law partner of Mr. Bannon, had been "very indiscreet" in some conversations with Mr. Alexander but was not guilty of misconduct and is fully capable of performing his office, the report, released Tuesday, said.

Mr. Wishart said at a news conference that Mr. Gardhouse, a magistrate since 1964, will resume his duties as soon as possible.

The report "with concern to Frederick Bannon" is being referred to Lloyd Graburn, acting crown attorney for York County, for "consideration of possible charges."

The inquiry hearings featured tapes made by Toronto police of telephone conversations while they were investigating activities of Alexander, at the time free on bail on charges of breaking and entering.

Tapes Accepted in Public Interest

Mr. Justice Grant said he had accepted wiretap evidence in the case only after ascertaining that the tapes were legitimate and because to withhold them "would be to deprive the public of most of the true facts and leave the administration of justice in a cloud of suspicion."

At his news conference, Mr. Wishart said he has written Justice Minister Turner asking him to include wiretapping control in his list of amendments to the Criminal Code.

He said he will give the federal government a reasonable time to pass legislation to control wiretapping and then give serious consideration to taking action himself. He declined to say what he mean by "a reasonable time."

Action on accepting Mr. Bannon's resignation—offered after the magistrates were suspended June 26 by Mr. Wishart—will require a conference between the attorney-general and Premier Robarts and then a cabinet resolution.

Mr. Wishart said wiretapping is used by police in the pursuit of criminals and the only proper way to control it is through changes in federal legislation.

He said police must be as well equipped electronically as criminals and endorsed the use of wiretaps by police during the "reasonable time" he has given the federal government to act.

The attorney-general was asked if he recognized the possibility that the civil rights of some persons might be violated during the time it took the federal government to pass and implement legislation.

"I suppose there is a possibility but the police use these devices in the investigation of criminal activity," he said.

NDP Leader Asks for Guidelines

Meanwhile Tuesday, Donald MacDonald, leader of the provincial New Democratic Party, said there was an immediate need for the Ontario government to spell out the conditions under which wiretapping can be used.

"Mr. Justice Grant states emphatically that the Canadian Bill of Rights provides no protection to the individual. Implicit in his report is the need for provincial government action immediately to provide such legislative protection insofar as its jurisdiction exists."

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said the inquiry clarified the problem of wiretap evidence and suggested further clarification by the courts for both provincial and federal legislation. He urged the attorney-general to move as quickly as possible.

Mr. Wishart said he has been trying to get action on wiretapping from the federal government for two years. He made a direct application to Lucien Cardin when he was justice minister and renewed the appeal to Mr. Turner.

Mr. Bannon said Tuesday he has not "been extended the courtesy of being told what's in the report."

BANNON
. . . may face charges

"I haven't had any word from the attorney-general's department," Mr. Bannon said in an interview. He said he was unable to comment further.

Magistrate Gardhouse said he felt "good" about the inquiry finding him not guilty of any misbehaviour and fully capable of performing his functions.

'I've Been Sitting Around All Summer'

"I've been sitting around all summer, just sitting and waiting for the report to come out," he said. "It's been awful."

The inquiry was ordered last June by Mr. Wishart after police investigation of Alexander disclosed a connection with the two magistrates.

Alexander admitted to the inquiry that he collected money from accused persons on allegations that he had influence with court officials that could affect their trials.

Mr. Justice Grant said Mr. Bannon helped Alexander under the guise of friendship but there was suspicion the real motive was money.

The inquiry found no evidence to impugn the conduct of any other magistrate, Crown attorney or court official.

Mr. Justice Grant said he could only rule on the use of wiretape evidence in connection with the inquiry, his terms of reference gave him no authority to comment on its general acceptance as evidence.

Tapes Need to Be Authenticated

He said, however, that if this kind of evidence is to be accepted in the courts, the Crown must follow precise procedures to prove legitimacy of the taped material and to assure the technical order of the equipment used.

"There always exists the probability that evidence of this nature may be tampered with by deleting parts and thereby altering the meaning."

Leaders of the two opposition parties in the legislature immediately demanded consideration by the attorney-general of criminal charges against Mr. Bannon.

Earlier Tuesday, Deputy Crown Attorney Lloyd Graburn said he will study Mr. Justice Grant's report, but the decision to lay charges may depend on further research into the case.

He said the report will also be submitted to the Law Society of Upper Canada which handles disciplinary matters for the legal profession.

'Little Respect . . . for His Office'

Bannon consorted with Mr. Alexander while knowing of his criminal record, continued the association after learning of his attempts to take advantage of acquaintance with magistrates, gave Alexander information on cases before the courts, persuaded a woman related to Magistrate Gardhouse to put the money for bail and joined Alexander in a real estate venture.

"His early flagrant abuse of the elementary rules of propriety on the bench were so fundamentally wrong as to lead to the conclusion that he had little respect for the obligation of his office from the beginning."

Mr. Justice Grant suggested special rules be established in the voir dire—a closed court session in which juries and spectators are excluded—before wiretaps can be approved as acceptable evidence.

Mr. Wishart said responsibility for the original appointment of Mr. Bannon as a magistrate in December, 1967, has to be shared by a committee of the Law Society of Upper Canada which approves of recommendations for appointments.

Flash Storm Sweeps Fair; Only Three Hurt by Debris

ST. MARYS, Ont. (CP) — Three persons were injured Tuesday when a wind storm that lasted only a few seconds swept through the grounds of the St. Marys fall fair, about 10 miles north of London.

Harold Kerfoot, 59, of Toronto, a midway concession worker, was in fair condition in hospital in Stratford with back and possible internal injuries. He was struck by debris and a corrugated steel wall.

Mr. Kerfoot's wife, Ruth, was released from hospital after treatment for bruises and abrasions.

Robert Vessie, a St. Marys teen-ager, is in satisfactory condition with bruises, abrasions and possible fractured ribs. Vessie was helping the Kerfoots set up a tent.

The fair was cancelled after the storm which hit about 4:30 p.m., upended a section of the main exhibition building, where handicraft and food exhibits were located. A section of sheet-metal wall was lifted and flipped over.

Ray Teahen, president of the St. Marys Agricultural Society, said there were about 100 people inside the exhibit area. "All of a sudden, the wall about 10 feet away started to move in. It came in about three feet and started to rise."

HOUSING ONLY ONE P.E.I. WOE

By DENNIS ORCHARD

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Will Prince Edward Island always float on Ottawa's subsidies?

It was a question put bluntly here Tuesday by the federal inquiry into Canada's housing problems.

Sub-standard housing is a problem in the island's cities, towns and countryside, but just part of the wider problems of a lagging economy that the federal government is trying to spur with a mix of grants and development programs.

Transport Minister Hellyer and his housing inquiry wanted to know Tuesday whether the federal money is doing the job.

"Why should we do so much to entice people to stay in Prince Edward Island" demanded Robert Campeau, the millionaire Ottawa developer who speaks for the virtues of free enterprise on the Hellyer group.

Replied Walter Cox, Charlottetown mayor and a witness at Tuesday's public hearing: Industry, such as packers of frozen fish and vegetables, can be attracted to make the island's economy self-sustaining.

MANY PROBLEMS

In housing alone, the island offered a few signs of progress, but it had many special problems.

Spokesmen for the provincial government, Charlottetown and Summerside conceded that lack of building skills and costs of importing materials added several thousands of dollars to the price of a new home.

At the same time, they said, average income is so low on the island that few can afford to borrow under terms of the National Housing Act.

George Key, Summerside mayor and the newly-elected leader of the Conservative party on the island, said even professional men earning $9,000 a year and more cannot meet NHA mortgage payments.

"We have not had one private housing start this year in the town of Summerside," he told the hearing.

Mr. Key, Mayor Walter Cox of Charlottetown and Harold Verge of the province's Economic Improvement Corp. offered a combination of programs to tailor the NHA to needs of the island's low-income families.

Their central proposal was for help to the schemes of co-operative housing already making strides here. Small groups of individuals in an income range of $3,000 to $8,500 are combining to borrow federal money at an interest rate of 6% per cent and build their own homes.

Pontiac announces the Great Break Away

'69 Pontiac Grand Prix

Grand Prix introduces a totally new concept in personal luxury cars . . . at a Pontiac price! It's based on a handy 118-inch wheelbase. The interior looks like you should be wearing Captain's wings to slide behind the wheel. Thickly-padded console and aircraft-style instrument panel are completely integrated. The Grand Prix also features a number of bright, new notions. Like a radio antenna that hides in the windshield. Like, if you order one, an electrically-heated rear window defroster. And to remind you that Wide-Tracking is still the driving man's way to go, a 400-cubic-inch, 350-hp V8 lurks under the hood. Grand Prix. Why not put one between you and the road? Soon.

'69 Pontiac Firebird

The all-new 1969 Firebird is as exciting a car as you'll find anywhere in the world. Even the bottom-of-the-line Firebird, with its 175-hp, Overhead Cam Six engine offers—as standard equipment—such things as bucket seats (wider and more comfortable for '69); black leather-grain finish on the instrument panel; full-glass picture windows; upper-level ventilation; and an anti-theft ignition, steering and transmission lock. There are four other Firebirds to choose from, each escalating a little in power and pizzaz until you get to the Firebird 400. What a great way to break away from the dull! Get in line at your Pontiac dealer's.

'69 Beaumont

Having trouble tearing your eyes from this preview of the new Beaumont? Long hood, short rear deck, wide stance, picture-window styling: Beaumont has it all. All over! What you can't see are new power teams, a new instrument panel, new fabrics and colors, new safety features and a specially-priced performance package that takes a car already great and makes it even greater. Leave the crowd behind. And break away in a '69 Beaumont.

'69 Pontiac Parisienne

Once again, along comes Pontiac to break you away from humdrum driving. This time with a magnificent new Wide-Track Pontiac. Up front, a revolutionary new color-keyed, energy-absorbing material in the bumper centerpiece can take minor bumps and bounce right back into shape. Under the new longsweep hood, more good news. A bigger, more powerful 350-cubic-inch engine is standard in every Pontiac V8 model. And every Pontiac features full-glass side picture windows, thanks to the upper-level ventilation system. While you drive along, it directs fresh air into the car through adjustable louvres. Wide-Track Pontiac. The break away car for 1969.

'69 Pontiac GTO

There are leaders. And there are followers. And The Great One, Pontiac GTO, is still kingpin. No matter how the Johnny-come-latelys try, they have yet to snatch the reins from Pontiac's ultimate road car. Small wonder. With its sleek, color-keyed, energy-absorbing front bumper; its standard 400-cubic-inch, 350-hp V8; fully-synchronized floor-mounted 3-speed with Hurst shifter; dual exhaust system; G78-14 redline wide-ovals; stiff suspension; buckets or notchback front seat; and a bookful of options that reads like a racing car manual . . . nobody else comes even close. The Great One is here. Break away.

'69 Acadian

Poised beautifully on its 111-inch wheelbase, Acadian proves conclusively that you don't have to be bland to be low-priced. Look at its exciting European-inspired fastback styling. Check out its easy handling and buttersmooth ride. Then run over its long list of options, including the amazingly low-priced Torque Drive transmission. You really can break away from ho-hum lookalikes without leaving the low-price field. Acadian for '69 is the living proof.

Every GM car has to make it before we mark it

Answer for Garbage: Burn and Dump Ashes

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Scientist at the University of Rhode Island are studying the feasibility of solving the problem of growing mountains of garbage by burning it in incinerator ships and dumping the ashes in the ocean.

Dr. Saul B. Saila, a computer expert, Dr. Candace Oviatt, a marine biologist, Dr. Kern Kenyon and Dr. Melvin First, are using an electronic computer and a small submarine to find answers to the question of what effect incinerated residue would have on marine life—could it pollute the ocean?

The might have got some answers without resorting to the computer from the New York City sanitation department. New York dumped some millions of tons of unincinerated garbage in the ocean yearly for more than a century.

"The garbage scow fleet was disbanded after a supreme court decision in 1934 ordered it stopped because so much of the refuse was washed back ashore and polluted the beaches of Long Island, Staten Island and New Jersey," a sanitation department spokesman said.

But it didn't pollute the ocean. In fact the dumped garbage attracted millions of porgies, seabass and other fish and clams, lobsters and oysters were plentiful in New York waters then.

GOING DOWNHILL

Ever since the city stopped dumping garbage in the ocean fishing has been going downhill around New York until commercial fishing is practically dead in the area.

The sanitation department says the real reason the garbage dumping had to be stopped was that the scow captains, who were contractors and not city employees, cheated. "Instead of taking the bargage more than 10 miles out to sea as required by the law, they dumped it inside the three-mile limit."

As for disposing of incinerated or non-organic waste in the ocean, the city has an experimental project going on right now in co-operation with the federal fishery service. The sanitation department dumped 500 junked automobiles in the ocean off lonLong Island last year to determine if the wrcked cars would attract fish and serve as a fish refuge and breeding ground. "If it does we'll be happy to pave a hell of a lot of the ocean floor around the city with junked cars," the spokesman said.

But up at Klngston, R.I., Saila, who previously used his computer to make studies of the migratory habits of salmon and the North Atlantic lobsters, prepared to go ahead with his team of divers and his miniature submarines. He has a grant fro the project from the national centre for urban and industrial affairs.

Saila is investigating a theoretical dumping site 18 miles off Point Judith, R.I., monitoring the tidal currents and winds and the amount of low-grade toxicity incinerated garbage would produce in the water.

Marine biologist Oviatt already has determined that clams and lobsters wouldn't be affected, but she's concerned about the effect on more sensitive marine species such as shrimp and scallops.

The New York sanitation department had one word of advice for the Rhode Island researchers: "Unless the refuse is dumped quite far out at sea, even incinerated waste would have to be dumped in sealed containers or it would wash back to shore and cause beach pollution."

His Love Life Just Academic

TORONTO (CP) — John Lee stops strangers on the streets to ask them about their love lives.

Lee, 35, is doing a doctorate thesis for the University of Sussex on the experiences of people in love and has a $5,000 Canada Council grant to support his researches in England and Canada.

Since April he's stopped about 900 people on the streets of Brighton and London in England and Toronto and Peterborough in Ontario. No one has punched him on the nose, so far.

His subjects have to be under 35 since he thinks attitudes about love have changed since the Second World War. And they have to be "mainstream, white, Christians" because he is doing a comparative study of how the average Englishman, and his equivalent in Canada, acts in love.

A former trade union officer with a master's degree from the University of Toronto, Mr. Lee said in an interview it is too early yet for him to talk about English-Canadian amorous differences.

But he has identified six theoretical types of love—adoring, obsessive, erotic, playful, companionship and realistic.

Since he has experienced all six types "it made it easier for me to identify the six types."

Mr. Lee's marriage of eight years ended in divorce last year.

He figures his study will have a practical use in marriage counselling and as an aid in preventing marriage breakdown.

Motion Tabled

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday voted 7 to 3 to table a motion by Mayor Tom Campbell to suspend the licence of the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight. Aldermen voted to await the outcome of a current court case involving the newspaper.

TREMBLAY

Withdraws Support

KELOWNA (CP) — Kelowna has withdrawn its support of a B.C. Airlines application to provide 12 interior communities with a prop-jet air service, Mayor R. F. Parkinson says. B.C. Airlines has proposed a north-south service in the interior and an east-west Vancouver - Penticton - Castlegar-Cranbrook-Calgary service.

Unilingualism Stand Linked to Votes

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP) — The issue of unilingualism or bilingualism for the province of Quebec is what all the shouting is about.

On which side do some of the more vocal provincial cabinet ministers stand?

In Cultural Affairs Minister Jean-Noel Tremblay's riding of Chicoutimi, about 135 miles north of Quebec City, about one-per-cent of the voters are English-speaking.

In Justice Minister Jean-Jacques Bertrand's riding of Missisquoi in the Eastern Townships southeast of Montreal, English-speaking persons make up about 30 per cent of the electorate.

Jean-Paul Beaudry, one of six Union Nationale MLAs on 26-seat Montreal Island, is minister of industry and commerce. His wife is an English-speaking Canadian.

Voila, as the French say, a variety of electoral, commercial and human elements figuring in attitudes of Quebec cabinet ministers on the tender issue of French-language priority in Quebec.

Mr. Tremblay takes the hard line, speaking of ending "official collective bilingualism" and obliging all employers to use French in their dealings with French-language employees.

Mr. Bertrand, who, an aide says, "has got to live with the English every day of the week," speaks a softer line, saying: "One doesn't play around with acquired rights."

Mr. Beaudry doesn't believe "in drastic measures. I believe in dialogue and persuasion. You never get anything by force."

Virtually all members of the Quebec legislature, including English-speaking members, agree on the need for greater government activity in protecting the embattled language of Quebec's majority.

The disagreements emerge on exactly what measures are needed.

When English-speaking parents in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard decided to protest the introduction of French-only instruction in Grade 1 of primary schools, they marched on Ottawa, not Quebec City.

The protest march, in a way, symbolized the apparent breakdown in communications between the Union Nationale government and a great portion of Quebec's English-speaking community.

ONE IS ENGLISH

Lack of adequate communications between the Union Nationale party and English-speaking Quebecers is reflected in the makeup of the legislature, where only one of the 56 MLAs is English-speaking.

And Raymond Johnston, the revenue minister from Pontiac riding, publicly parades as an English - speaking - only cabinet minister although he appears to understand French.

Bilingualism isn't the forte of Union Nationale MLAs. Some appear to loathe speaking English, refusing to submit to an English-language interview for radio or television.

Bilingualism has made greater strides on the Liberal side of the house, where the many Liberal MLAs from Montreal Island lead the house in their ability to flip from one language to another.

Some French-speaking Canadians feel that the MLA who speaks the best French in the house is an English-speaking Canadian, Dr. Victor Goldbloom, Liberal for Montreal's D'Arcy McGee riding.

The Liberal party has, in fact, traditionally attracted the English-speaking vote in Quebec.

BITTERNESS RESULTS

This racial unbalance between the two parties results in electoral bitterness. In an interview Marcel Masse, a minister without portfolio, once listed among Union Nationale political problems:

"The English vote. We have to concede eight or 10 seats to the Liberals because of it."

A prominent French-speaking party organizer said the only solution is for the Union Nationale to scrap its "two nations nationalism" and for the party leader to name an English-speaking "right-hand man."

The organizer said he disagrees with his party's two-nations policy, with its attitudes about France-Quebec relations and with its "wait, wait, wa policy on public affairs.

These behind-the-scenes pr lems make it all the more di cult for Premier Daniel John to apply the party's decla policy of making French "national" language of Queb

The policy risks jeopardiz the plans of Montreal-region formers who are seeking make the party a more ac rate mirror of Quebec society

It is difficult to determine head count exactly where the Union Nationale cabinet mir ters stand on the French-l guage problem. Many refuse comment.

Since the more radical nati alists within the governm party have been consisten outnumbered in the past, moderate solution is likely emerge.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 25, 1968 —PAGE 15

Arthur Mayse

On the only ice-slick day last winter, I put my car gingerly into the home driveway. Down we slid, with wicked smoothness, to fishtail around the curve of a low rock wall. There was a long, dismal crunch. I got out and sure enough, my beast's right-hand rocker panel looked as if someone had taken a sledge to it.

Up to this point, the car had preserved a reasonable degree of virginity . . . just one minor dint inflicted in a parking lot by some wild-eyed matron in her haste to make the trading-post's Confusion Day sale.

These are two instances of damage that could be avoided if Detroit would give its designers a challenging directive.

Their assignment: to develop a device by which the modern automobile's sleek but woefully defenceless body would be protected from sideswipes, door-handle dimples and other such mishaps.

Perhaps a not-too-wide shelf paralleling the car's axis on either side would do the trick. If coated with some slip-proof material, it would also serve as a handy step to be used when entering or alighting.

Naturally, it would need a name. The suggestion may sound quaint and somewhat old-fashioned, but how about "running-board"?

In plain fact, nobody enters or alights from cars. Not any more. Those terms imply grace and dignity, and we are permitted neither. Instead, we throw our hips one way, switch the knees another, and emerge doubled up as if by an acute belly-ache.

To get away from this unnatural contortion, Detroit might also consider building its cars higher. I don't mean merely lifting those slinky roofs, but hiking the entire car up so as to ensure a generous clearance between vulnerable underbody and unyielding road.

That way, those of us who like to get off the blacktop into byways whose ruts run deep could do so without risking costly damage.

About the only way to achieve this clearance is to make the wheels larger — and while we're on the subject, why not do something about tires?

Your spare, let us suppose, is immobilized in a service station miles down the dark and rainy road. The slow leak in your front offside tubeless doughnut becomes a distressingly fast one. So where do we go from here?

I look forward to the day when some daring innovator will come up with a tire that can be peeled off the rim with a tire-iron and the pointed end of a wheel-nut wrench. Inside it will be a rubber tube, and your equipment will include a repair kit consisting of handy-sized patches and cement. You will also carry a tire-pump.

In half an hour you'll be rolling again, made roadworthy by your own unassisted efforts.

Fenders, especially front ones, could also stand some re-styling. The kind I have in mind would be distinct units, with a definite trough between fender and hood. After all, why should a driver have to add a top-rack to his costs if he wants to secure some necessary object to his vehicle? Those convenient hollows would offer stowage for an over-sized dunnage-bag on one side and a bagged buck on the other.

A further innovation — one which Detroit, I believe, has fooled around with recently in a timid sort of way — would be a hand throttle mounted under the steering wheel. This to provide relief for the foot which has pressed steadily on a gas pedal for hours on end.

I am cursed with a knee that begins to twinge a trifle after about 100 miles. Another hundred and a hand throttle would be a welcome boon. Such an aid would have helped, too, the time the blasted pedal stem snapped on a mountain road.

There is much that I like about the modern car as it rolls off the assembly-lines. In most respects, it is infinitely superior to any that have gone before it. All it needs are a few of the refinements that I have listed here.

Perhaps in its eager striving for the super-buggy, Detroit will one year discover them all over again!

$9.3 Million Vote Approved For Hospitals

Polling Planned For October 26

The British Columbia Treasury Board has given the Regional District Hospital Board permission to hold a $9.3 million hospital construction referendum next month, it was announced today by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

The official green light from the provincial government means that the people will be asked to approve or reject a massive hospital updating program on October 26.

In making application to hold the referendum the regional hospital board sought permission to call a vote on expenditures totalling $11.3 million.

CUT-BACK

The two million cut-back in the announcement means that Premier Bennett is presuming that federal government grants of close to $2 million will be available in time to permit the program to move ahead without interruption.

In asking for permission to hold a vote on the full $11.3 million the regional district had attempted to provide for a continuing construction program even if the federal grants were not immediately available.

Regional district executive secretary Bill Long said that he had received official confirmation granting the district permission to hold the vote for $9.3 million but had not yet teceived full details on the two million cut.

"Presumably the provincial government is confident that the federal grants will be available in time," he said. "I think they have also cut back on certain equipment items but it will be a few days before the details are available."

VARIOUS WORK

If approved, the referendum will clear the way for construction of a new extended care hospital plus the completion of various essential projects for existing hospitals.

The October referendum is the first of two planned to launch a major construction program to bring Greater Victoria's hospital beds in line with demand.

A year from now the people will again be asked to approve multi-million dollar expenditures for the construction of a new acute care hospital.

No location has been decided on for the acute care hospital although hospital consultant Dr. Harvey Agnew has strongly recommended the general vicinity of Elk Lake.

The proposed extended care hospital will be built on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

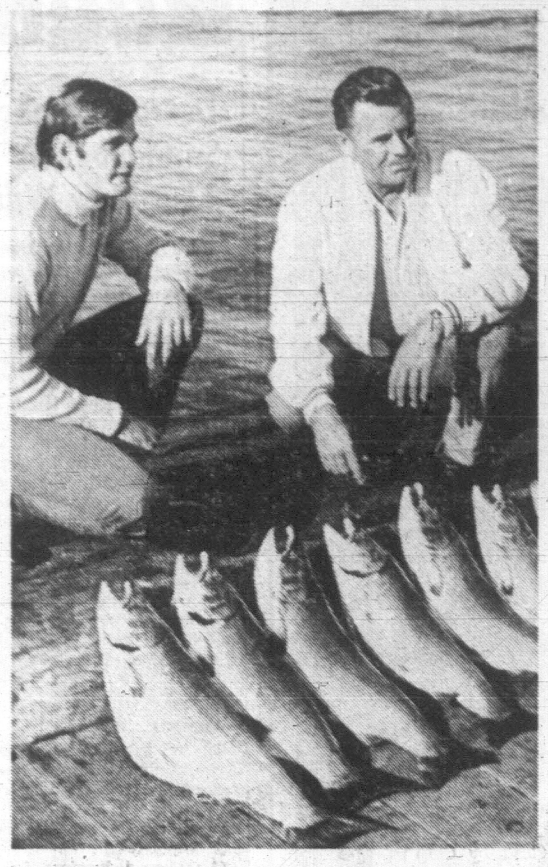

Plumbers' Annual $300 Scholarship Announced Today

Patrick Griffin, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Griffin, 1030 Joan Crescent, has been awarded a $300 scholarship.

The selection of the University of Victoria student as recipient of the annual award established by the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association was made by the university selection committee.

The award put up by the plumbing and heating industry in Victoria goes to the son or daughter of a man engaged in the industry locally and is awarded for scholastic ability.

EIGHTEEN SO FAR—that's the tally of northern coho rung up by movie actor Glen Ford, right, and his son Peter, 23. They've been fishing with guide Mike Rippingale at Campbell River. Weights ranged from 8 to 16 pounds.

Movie Star Eyeing Island in the Sun At Campbell River?

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

Men dream of owning their own island but perhaps movie star Glenn Ford will make it come true.

He will if his 23-year-old son Peter has any influence.

"This is my first trip to Campbell River and I think it's great country," said Peter as he leaned against a wharf railing at Painter's Lodge. "I don't have any money of my own but if I can just talk Dad into looking at some island property, something that's isolated and has good fishing."

Perhaps it will be easier than Peter thinks because his father, who was sorting out his fish nearby, admitted that he was going to see a realtor in the morning.

GOOD TIMING

Last year Glenn Ford holidayed at Campbell River with his wife Kathy, through a Western Airlines promotion, and liked the fishing so much he returned this season and his timing couldn't have been better. For weeks fishermen have been scouring the waters for the Northern Coho run and they have finally shown up in the past few days . . . just in time for the Ford men to hook on to 18 silver beauties, ranging in size from 8 to 16 pounds, with some assistance from head guide at the Lodge, Mike Rippingale.

Mr. Ford has just finished a film called "Smith" for Walt Disney Productions and if he thought he was going to get away from it all up here in "the great beyond" it just wasn't working out that way.

The photographic branch of the Provincial Dept. of Travel Industry has been tagging along after his boat for almost a week. Flocks of kids and autograph-seekers turn up on the wharf when the party comes in from fishing and phone calls have to be intercepted by the alert staff at Painter's.

Perhaps that explains Mr. Ford's crustiness and lack of personal warmth towards anyone who approaches him. That disarmingly slow, crooked smile just isn't there except upon request, for the camera.

The only time he looked genuinely interested on the wharf, was when the conversation turned to enquiries of where he was born.

It turned out to be Glenford, Quebec and his father, a CPR railroader, christened him Gwillyn Ford. It was only after he went to Hollywood that he changed his name to commemorate his hometown.

Peter, whose mother is dancer Eleanor Powell, Mr. Ford's first wife, talked with enthusiasm about a film he was going to do this autumn in Bogota, Columbia. He's just graduated from the University of Southern California with a degree in English.

"I fooled around a lot in college," admitted Peter, "and it's taken a long time to get through but just completing the course has given me a sense of satisfaction."

He's still not sure what he wants to do although making some money is his prime interest at the moment so that he can marry 20-year-old Lynda Gunderson whom he met at university.

Sooke School Rolls To Jump 36 Per Cent

Pupil population will jump 36 per cent over the next three years in the Sooke school district, superintendent Ernest Hyndman forecast Tuesday night.

He estimated another 44 teaching areas will be needed to meet enrolment.

Trustees set March 29 as the tentative date for a referendum which could be in the neighborhood of $2 million. Government grants will cover three-quarters of the total and ratepayers will be asked to approve long-term financing of the balance.

Mr. Hyndman made no cost estimate on the referendum and declined to speculate what the total might be beyond saying it would be over $1 million and "nowhere near" the forthcoming $4 million referendum in the Saanich penninsula school district.

In other business the school board authorized construction of three "emergency" classrooms for use by next September.

One will be at Colwood elementary and two at Savory elementary and all will be built by closing in existing covered play areas.

Enrolment in the school district is now 4,959 and the superintendent said it will climb to 6,740 by September of 1971. He estimated a 10 per cent increase in each of the next two years and 11 per cent the third year.

Boil Drinking Water, Shawnigan Lake Told

Psychologist Probes Reason In 'Pot' Case

Most people repress anger at various times, but dispose of it through other channels, a Victoria psychologist said here today.

If they don't, he added they may become anti-social and aggressive to society in general.

Dr. Leslie Navran was giving evidence at the trial of 19-year-old David Arthur Sainsbury, who pleaded guilty in County Court to trafficking in marijuana from the basement of a house at 821 Kings Road last May.

Sainsbury — quiet-mannered in court — was sentenced to six months definite and one year indefinite in the Young Offenders' Unit at Haney. Judge Montague Drake directed that he should receive psychiatric treatment at Haney.

Dr. Navran said psychological tests showed Sainsbury was "passively aggressive."

GETS ANGRY

"That is, he gets angry but avoids being overtly aggressive because he fears losing control of his temper and the dangers of retaliation.

"Because of this he has developed a rebellious feeling to society."

Earlier in the trial, Sainsbury was asked if he hoped to establish a happier pattern of life by taking marijuana.

"Yes," he replied.

Dr. Navran said he gave Sainsbury what is known as a thematic apperception test. The subject is shown a series of 12 specially-designed pictures and asked to create a dramatic story from them.

He becomes absorbed in the story he creates and says things about the characters which really apply to himself.

"What he says is recorded on tape, and it is usually very revealing."

Sainsbury, the doctor added, was capable of deep anger but controlled it and then became agressive in passive ways.

"That is, he does things which in themselves are not hostile but are an expression of aggressiveness."

Dr. Navran suggested Sainsbury should be "incarcerated for a while" in order to limit his access to drugs.

"But, if he were incarcerated with a professional criminal group, I believe they would influence him negatively."

Engineer Predicts Pollution Controls

By JIM HUME

All drinking water taken from Shawnigan Lake should be boiled or treated before consumption says William Bailey, provincial director of public health engineering.

He made the statement Tuesday in an address to the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mechanical Contractors' Association at the Red Lion Inn.

"Shawnigan Lake has now reached the point of pollution where all drinking water should be boiled or bought," Mr. Bailey said. "The water from the lake is no longer safe to drink without treatment."

Mr. Bailey said checks on the growing level of pollution at Shawnigan have been under way the past three years.

"Some people already sensibly boil their drinking water," he said. "Others do not. All I can say is that I would not drink a drop unless it had been boiled or treated in some other way first."

Mr. Bailey outlined the growing problem of pollution especially as it applied to bodies of fresh water.

"A stream, river or lake can take care of pollution but only up to a certain degree," he said. "When you start overloading a fresh water body with raw sewage or other wastes, deterioration is extremely rapid.

Recreation Values Threatened

He added that Shawnigan was typical of a lake that would eventually be destroyed as a recreation area unless tight pollution control restrictions were introduced immediately.

Although concentrating on the pollution of fresh water bodies Mr. Bailey did touch briefly on the current controversy of possible sea pollution via the dumping of raw sewage into the ocean.

"My minister (Health Minister Ralph Loffmark) feels that it is the responsibility of everyone to treat sewage in at least a minimal way before final disposal—and I agree with him," Mr. Bailey said.

"Sewage treatment is one of those responsibilities we must live up to because we must keep our environment clean for subsequent generations."

Mr. Bailey noted that some critics of treatment before disposal claim that man is an adaptable creature able to adjust to any environment.

"They point to Asian countries where sewage collection and disposal systems are virtually non-existent," Mr. Bailey said. "And it is true that millions of people live under those conditions. But they live as we would, and should, refuse to live, and disease is rampant."

Following his address Mr. Bailey showed a two-week-old color movie produced in Europe which graphically showed the disaster a community can bring upon itself by dumping untreated sewage and industrial wastes into streams and rivers.

Water Quality Standards Pending

During a brief question period Mr. Bailey was asked when the provincial government could be expected to introduce legislation calling for positive water quality standards.

"The government realizes that we must have an established water quality standard and is working on legislation now," he said.

"I don't think it will be too long before Mr. Loffmark makes an announcement."

Asked if he felt treatment was necessary even if a community was building lengthy and deep sea outfalls, Mr. Bailey replied: "Put it this way. With a deep sea outfall your beaches might be safe. With treatment before disposal you know they are safe. Yes, I am in favor of at least primary treatment before disposal.

"Taken all-round, the waters of British Columbia are quite clean at present—but the time to make sure that they stay clean is now."

North Ward Demolition Bids Called

The city of Victoria will put the North Ward school property up for sale after the ancient school has been demolished.

"We have no plans for the property," assessor Alfred Joyce said today. He added that there have been a number of inquiries and that the 3¼-acre Douglas Street property will be put on the market.

A call for demolition tenders was advertised today and bids are due next Wednesday. They will be considered by council's finance committee the following day.

MONTH-LONG JOB

Demolition may take a month because of the amount of brick in the building, said Mr. Joyce. In the meantime, a commissionaire has been on duty in the building the past two nights to stop vandalism.

Most of the windows at the rear of the school have been smashed and vandals have made a mess of the interior, the assessor said. Firemen are keeping a close eye on the structure which is generally regarded as a fire trap.

Pupils at the 74-year-old school are now attending the new Blanshard elementary school which opened this month.

Assault Set On Beaches Saturday

A small army of adults and youngsters will descend on district beaches and parks Saturday to pick them clean of litter.

The clean-up campaign, led by Outdoors Unlittered, will enlist about 400 Scouts, Guides and Junior Forest Wardens. Most municipalities are co-operating by providing trash receptacles and arranging to clear them.

Close to 50 members of Outdoors Unlittered, will also be out and invite anyone with a truck to lend a hand. Organizing the campaign are Mrs. Katherine Sherman, chairman of the group, and Dave Larkey.

Areas where the groups will be working include Island View Beach in Central Saanich, Mount Douglas Park, Cordova Bay, Cadboro Bay and Uplands Park.

In Oak Bay, trash pickers intend covering the shoreline from Cattle Point to Bowker and Willows Beach, and in Victoria, from Clover Point to Beacon Hill Park as well as Gonzales Bay.

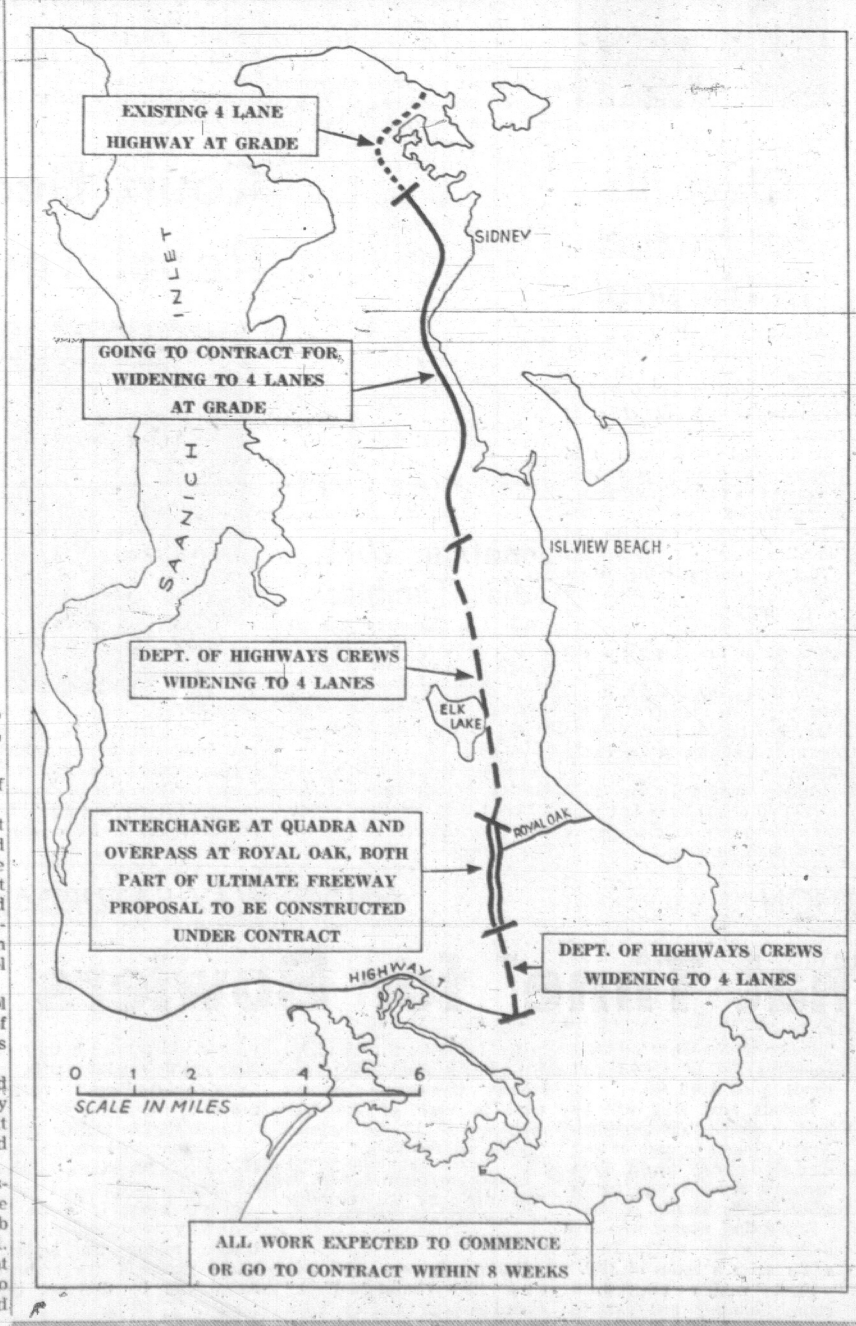

Up to 150 Scouts will turn out to work around Esquimalt Lagoon and about 20 Junior Forest Wardens will be at work around Witty's Lagoon.

Search Continues For Fisherman

A search of waters around Active Pass for George Ernest Hughes, 52, of North Pender Island, entered its third day today, RCMP at Ganges report.

Mr. Hughes is missing and presumed drowned following a fishing derby Sunday in the Gulf Islands.

Work Starts On 4-Laner To Swartz Bay

Work has started on a $5 million widening of Patricia Bay Highway in view of increases in traffic of about 10 per cent annually. Map at left shows route basically unchanged but with modern interchanges at Quadra and West Saanich Road intersections with the highway. Highways Minister Wesley Black says the project is an "interim measure" and does not detract from plans for a limited access divided freeway in the future. The job now starting just north of Elk Lake will continue until 1970. On completion the four-lane route will extend from Town and Country Shopping Centre to Swartz Bay ferry terminal. Mr. Black said during construction of the highway studies for a new route for the eventual freeway will be continued. But a new route would require at least six months just for the purchase of private lands, and the need for improvement is desperate. He said at present traffic volumes reach up to 22,000 vehicles a day. The highways minister said earlier that the road construction would entail some slowing of traffic by flagmen. But he said detouring cars to side roads is not contemplated. Some of the work will be carried out by highways crews and some by contract, as indicated in the map.

Ask The Times

Q. Is the RCMP the only federal police force in Canada?
—L.M.

A. Yes. The RCMP is under the control of the solicitor-general and its operations are directed by a commissioner from its Ottawa headquarters. To simplify control and administration, the force has divided the country into 12 alphabetically designated divisions with headquarters in provincial capitals. From these points policing of the provinces and territories is carried out through a number of sub-divisions and detachments.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

ON POLO FIELD

Powell Meets Prince

By HUMPHREY DAVY

Canada lags behind other English-speaking nations in polo playing, according to Dr. Bill Powell, of the Vancouver Island Polo Club.

The Irish-born veterinary surgeon was the only Canadian player to perform in international tournaments held in Britain this summer.

In one tournament, the Victorian's competition included Prince Charles.

Powell said that New Zealand and Australia—both with smaller populations than Canada—play more polo than Canadians.

"I would like to see Canada produce a first class-team," he said. "This may come with time. People are showing more and more interest in horses."

Dr. Powell, who is recognized as the highest handicap player in Canada, was invited to Britain to play for Rendcombe—a team captained by Freddie Wills, of the Wills tobacco family.

The Canadian played in several major tournaments, including one for the Calvary Cup at Cirencester Park. This was where his team engaged Windsor, composed of Prince Charles, Prince William of Gloucester, the Rt. Hon. George Bathhurst and R. Atkinson of Nigeria.

It was a touch-and-go match, relates Powell, with the Windsor team winning by half a goal. Prince Charles, playing No. 1 position, placed one goal.

Powell was struck by the great interest the British people display in horses.

"Everything seems to revolve around the horse," he said. "If it isn't polo, it's racing, hunting and jumping. Farmers participate in these activities, even polo."

Horse shows also draw large crowds, he added.

"The British may not be the best polo players in the world, but as hosts they are tops," he added.

Born in Dublin, Powell learned to ride at an early age but it wasn't until 1957 that he took up polo "to get away from daily routine and for relaxation."

In 1960, he was a member of a U.S. team which played New Zealand and Australia. The Island View Road resident is a familiar figure at all major Pacific Coast tournaments.

Olympics Didn't Need Extra Fire

Detroit Smokes; Salmonbellies Also Blow Warm

By The Canadian Press

Detroit Olympics, who outclassed their opposition in the Eastern Division of the National Lacrosse Association this season, hardly needed a fire Tuesday night to keep them hot.

The Olympics survived a fire in their arena and came back to defeat Peterborough Lakers 19-9 to win the second straight game of their best-of-seven eastern final series. The third game is scheduled Friday night in Peterborough, Ont.

In the Western Division final, New Westminster Salmonbellies defeated Portland Adanacs 10-7 in the first game of their best-of-seven final. The second game will be played in New Westminster Thursday night.

WARMED UP

The fire in the Detroit Olympia broke out about an hour before game time. It started in a pile of rigging on the ceiling and firemen used water and chemicals to put it out.

Gaylord Powless led the Olympics with five goals and Charlie Marlowe and John Bergmsa added three apiece. Bob Haw scored twice and Ross Jones, Glenn Lotton, Joe Krasnaj, Bruce Wanless, Mike Finnigan and Tom Conlin once each.

WINZOSKI POPS THREE

At New Westminster, Ken Winzoski scored three goals for the Salmonbellies and Wayne Shuttleworth and Al Lewthwaite added two each. Other goals went to Larry Henry, Dave Tory and Wayne Goss.

Mike Gates and Jack Barclay each scored twice for Portland and Kerry Gallagher, Bill Chomiak and Kevin Parsons scored one each.

Salmonbellies, entering the final after a tough seven-game battle with Vancouver Carlings, jumped to a 4-1 lead in the first period, extended the margin to 8-2, entering the final 20 minutes and held on.

Portland outshot the winners, 38-33, but had trouble with goalkeeper Don Wallis until the third period. Les Norman took over for Wallis part way through the period and the Adanac rally fell short.

Several fights erupted in the first period and the referees assessed a total of 92 minutes in penalties throughout the game—50 to New Westminster and 42 to Portland.

Third Straight Shutout Scored By Bucs' Blass

By The Associated Press

The Say Hey kid isn't a kid anymore, but you'll sure have a hard time convincing Houston Astros.

Willie Mays, 37, cracked his 22nd homer of the season and a two-run bunt to spark a 5-4 victory over the Astros Tuesday night that clinched second place for San Francisco Giants.

A two-run bunt?

Yep. Willie, more noted for his long hitting feats, came up with that little oddity to cap a four-run rally in the eighth inning.

Astros third baseman Doug Rader took so much time fielding the slithering little dribbler down the baseline that Dave Marshall scored from third and Jim Davenport made it from second.

Mays, whose solo blast in the first was the 586th of his career, also had a single in four trips and stole one base.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh's Steve Blass recorded his third consecutive shutout, and ninth straight victory and eighth straight complete game—and in the process helped team-mate Matty Alou grab a share of the National League batting lead—as the Pirates subdued Cincinnati Reds 2-0.

In other NL games, World Series-bound St. Louis Cardinals lost 2-1 to Philadelphia Phillies, Atlanta Braves socked New York Mets 7-4 and Chicago Cubs edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

Rose Wilts but Alou Blossoms

Blass, who hasn't been beaten since Aug. 10, aided Alou in his battle with the Reds' Pete Rose the hard way.

He struck out six Reds—fanning Rose three times.

Alou, meanwhile, had two hits in four trips, including a run-scoring double, to climb into a tie with Rose for the batting lead at .334.

Blass' late season success has been amazing. He is 18-5 now, after being only 9-5 six weeks ago, and six of his last nine victories have been shutouts.

Willie Stargell helped him out with his 23rd homer, and the victory enabled the Pirates to remain in a three-way tie for fourth with Atlanta and Chicago—one game behind Cincinnati.

Deron Johnson lashed a two-run homer and Tommie Aaron had three hits and scored two runs as the Braves squelched Met rookie Jerry Koosman's hopes for 20 victories.

However, the Cubs' Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., survived an eight-hit Los Angeles attack to win his 19th. Adolfo Phillips doubled, homered and scored twice to back him up.

Gary Sutherland's run-scoring double with two out in the eighth let the Phillies sidetrack St. Louis. Rookie Jerry Johnson, who scattered eight hits, picked up the victory, while Ray Washburn, making his first appearance since hurling a no-hitter last week, was tagged with the loss.

Wood Cures Late-Inning Headache

When late inning headaches arrive for Chicago White Sox, relief is just a Wilbur Wood away. And for Wilbur Wood, relief is just five days away.

The aching Sox called on Wood to soothe them with another scoreless inning Tuesday night in a record-setting 85th mound appearance, and Chicago went on to a 5-1 victory in 12 innings over Oakland Athletics.

But Wood, with his 1.93 ERA and 12-11 record for 153 2-3 innings probably can't wait for the season to end Sunday so he can get a bit of relief himself. Those 85 appearances have put him in the game about every other day as he broke the mark set by Ted Abernathy of the Chicago Cubs in 1965.

The rest of the league could probably use some relief, too, with only the last eight places in the standings left to be decided.

Pennant-Bound Tigers on Beam

Minnesota Twins pulled within two games of sixth-place Oakland with a 5-3 victory over California in 10 innings. Pennant winning Detroit Tigers dropped second-place Baltimore Orioles 5-3 in the other game.

Wood relieved Gary Peters in the eighth after the Athletics had scored in the fourth inning on a double steal by Sal Bando and Danny Cater, and the Sox tied it in the seventh on Duane Josephson's triple and a hit by Bill Melton.

Hoyt Wilhelm took over in the ninth as manager Al Lopez rearranged his batting order to get Tom McCraw in the ninth spot so McCraw could bat in the 10th inning instead of the pitcher.

Ken Berry singled in the tie-breaking run in the 12th, Carlos May singled in another and Buddy Bradford drove in the final two with a hit.

Ken McMullen led Washington's onslaught as he reached base five times on three singles, an error and a walk and scored four runs.

The victory kept alive Washington's slim hopes of catching the White Sox and getting out of the league cellar. They trail Chicago by 2½ games.

Mel Stottlemyre won his 21st game with a four-hitter for the Yankees in the opener, but Mike Paul stopped the Yankees on five hits until two were out in the ninth of the nightcap and Vicente Romo came in to get the last out.

Rod Carew's two-run single with the bases loaded and two out in the 10th kept Minnesota on Oakland's heels. George Brunet of the Angels had a no-hitter until Bob Allison's two-run homer in the seventh, and the Twins tied with an unearned run in the eighth.

Detroit stayed sharp for their World Series date with St. Louis Wednesday as Mickey Lolich, with relief from Daryl Patterson in the seventh, raised his record to 17-9 and Bill Freehan slugged his 25th homer. The loss all but ended Jim Hardin's hopes of winning 20 for Baltimore. He is 18-13.

RIOTERS STAY CLEAR OF OLYMPIC VILLAGE

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Athletes training for the 1968 Olympic Gantes which open Oct. 12 have not been seriously affected by gun battles between students and police.

The Olympic Village is about three miles from the University of Mexico, which has been in the hands of federal troops for a week, but there have been no demonstrations or disturbances at the village.

There are several different practice areas inside the village and not all the athletes need to leave it to practice. Those who must leave — swimmers, for instance — are transported in Olympic committee buses. Some of the buses have been detoured because of army barricades but the delays have been minor.

In Chicago, International Olympic Association president Avery Brundage said:

"I have been in communication every day with Mexico City and our people say the situation is being controlled and we are looking forward to a successful presentation of the 19th Olympiad."

Ray Latest Rave In Kicking Game

By The Canadian Press

The name of Dave Ray doesn't appear in the Eastern Football Conference statistics, but give him time—the Montreal Alouettes halfback has played only one game.

And even for a league dominated by punters and placement kickers, it was quite a debut.

Ray intercepted one pass Sunday and kicked field goals from 36, 46 and 52 yards as the Als lost 39-16 to Toronto Argonauts.

Ray's 52-yard field goal tied that of Ted Gerela of British Columbia Lions as the longest of the season.

Ray, good on 22 of 23 field-goals during his university career at Alabama, was picked up by the Als from Atlanta Falcons of the National League.

The Canadian League is tailored to his talents. The top four scorers in the Western Conference got there primarily on their kicking. In the East, three of the top four are footmen.

Whit Tucker, flanker with Ottawa Rough Riders, is the exception in the East. He has 10 touchdowns, all on passes, and leads the scorers.

Avery Denies Racial Charge

CHICAGO (AP)—Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, says racial charges against him are a "complete distortion of facts".

Brundage made the statement Tuesday after 21 Negro athletes and an assistant coach of the U.S. Olympic team training for the Games at South Lake Tahoe, Calif., signed a petition calling for Brundage's removal as head of the IOC.

Brundage, who will celebrate his 81st birthday Saturday before leaving for Mexico City, site of the Olympic Games Oct. 12-27, is reported to have made the racial statements on a U.S. national television program.

DARED PROTESTERS

The Negro group, including assistant coach Stan Wright, charged that Brundage "dared us to participate in protest and then threatened us with a quick trip home."

Brundage said the questioned remarks apparently stemmed from a question-and-answer session following a Sept. 17 speech before the National Press Club in Washington.

Brundage said: "There seems to be a complete distortion of facts in the matter. There were no dares nor threats.

"The fundamental basis of the Olympic movement is no discrimination of any kind—racial, religious or political. Every competitor is judged on his own merits.

NOT A TOOL

"The Olympic Games, however, must not be used as a tool or weapon in any controversy and they are not a forum for protest or demonstrations of any kind.

"I made a general statement that demonstrations are not permitted at the Games, that the word boycott is not used in Olympic circles and that demonstrators of any nationality would be sent home. This is a permanent Olympic policy."

Brundage's explanation followed a telephone conversation with Wright and came amid riots in Mexico City between Mexican military forces and students during which at least 15 persons were killed.

"I told Wright I never used that kind of language attributed to me in the petition," said Brundage, "and that there certainly was no challenge intended of any race or nationality."

HIGH SCHOOL GRIDDER DIES IN SEATTLE

Al Sabado, a junior end, died in hospital after he collapsed during football practice.

A coroner's office spokesman said the youth's physician reported Sabodo also collapsed two weeks ago. He had not practised until Monday, when he again collapsed.

Weiskopf Vaults Into Second Spot

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Billy Casper remains the top money-winner on the golf circuit and Tom Weiskopf has jumped into second place, according to latest PGA figures.

Casper's 1968 bankroll stands at $174,296.

GIL HODGES

Chest Ills Put Hodges In Hospital

ATLANTA (UPI) — Gil Hodges, manager of the New York Mets, was admitted to a hospital late Tuesday night when he complained of chest pains.

He said Hodges' condition was "fair."

Hodges suffered the chest pains shortly after the Mets lost to the Atlanta Braves 7-4 in Atlanta Stadium. He was admitted to the hospital about midnight.

The 44-year-old Hodges, in his first year as manager of the Mets, has piloted New York to the most victories in the club's history.

Jonathan Wins, Tolos Tumbles

Court Decision Ties Rebel Tour Planning

SELECTED, "manager-of-the-year" in Pacific Coast Baseball League is former major league pitching great Warren Spahn of Tulsa Oilers. In second season as manager, he guided Oilers to PCL championship.

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — The Professional Golfers Association obtained a temporary restraining order in U.S. District Court here late Tuesday to balk the independence plans of the rebel American Professional Golfers organization.

Chief Judge Caleb M. Wright issued the order which temporarily blocks the fledging APG from:

—"Employing documents, mailing lists and confidential information transferred from the PGA to the APG by a former PGA employee:

— "Soliciting any prospective tournament player to participate in or conduct a 1968 qualifying school."

The judge said the APG has 10 days in which to reply to his order.

The APG was formed in August by a group of dissident professionals headed by most of the PGA tour's biggest money winners. Grievances included demands for a greater voice in handling affairs, money and partial elimination of qualifying tournaments.

Billie Jean Rests

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Billie Jean King, the world's top woman tennis player, underwent surgery on her left knee this week and will be out of action for at least three months. Doctors said "a growth" and some swelling tissue were removed.

TIMES' COMPETITION . . . . . . UNDER WAY SATURDAY

It's 'That Time' for Bowlers

Members of the kegling fraternity are getting their arms in shape for Saturday's opening of the sixth annual "Bowler-of-the-Week" contest sponsored by The Daily Times.

Men and women bowlers competing in regular league play on south Vancouver Island lanes start the race for cash and trophies on Saturday.

Launched in 1963 the "Bowler-of-the-Week" contest continues for 27 weeks and winds up on April 18.

Rolloffs next May will be held to decide "Bowler-of-the-Year" winners in each of four categories—men's and women's fivepins and men's and women's tenpins.

Any rolloff winner who is a daily subscriber to The Times will receive a bonus of $100.

Each week's competition starts Saturday and extends to the following Friday night. Bowlers registering the highest three-game scratch total in each of the four divisions will be named "Bowlers-of-the-Week."

League secretaries will be responsible for the recording of high scores to the lane managers.

Contestants may win only one "Bowler-of-the-Week" award in each category. Each winner will receive a copy of their picture along with a "Bowler-of-the-Week" recognition.

Lanes eligible include those in Greater Victoria, Sooke, Duncan, Chemainus, Lake Cowichan and Youbou.

In the event of a tie in weekly competition, the bowler rolling the highest single game of the scratch series will be declared the winner.

Habs Turn It On for Claude

By The Canadian Press

New coach Claude Ruel took his Montreal Canadiens to his hometown for an exhibition game Tuesday night and the defending Stanley Cup champions coasted to an easy 7-0 victory over Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

More than 3,300 fans turned out in Sherbrooke, Que., to watch the smooth-skating Habs of the National Hockey League win their fourth straight pre-season contest.

In their earlier games, the Canadiens downed Houston Apollos of the Central Professional Hockey League by scores of 7-2, 8-4 and 5-1.

The Canadiens travel to New York Friday for their first exhibition game with an NHL team and then go on to meet Detroit and Chicago Saturday and Sunday.

In other exhibition games Tuesday night, Philadelphia Flyers defeated Rochester Americans of the AHL 5-2 in Peterborough, Ont., New York Rangers beat Boston Bruins 4-2 in London, Ont. and Oakland Seals won their fourth consecutive game, a 3-1 victory before 3,080 fans at Oshawa, Ont.

Henri Richard led the Canadiens Tuesday night with two goals and an assist. Yvan Cournoyer also scored twice and Gilles Tremblay, Jean Belliveau and Ted Harris added one each.

EARL SCORES WINNER

The Flyers scored three times in the third period to ease past Rochester. Earl Hieskala scored the tying and winning goals and single goals went to Brit Selby, Pat Hannigan and John Miszuk. Larry Mickey and Gerry Meehad scored for the Americans.

At London, Rod Gilbert scored twice for New York and Walter Tkaczuk and Al Hamilton added one each. Phil Esposito and Derek Sanderson were Boston's scorers.

A row broke out in the final minute of the game when Bryan Watson of Oakland and Gary Bergman of Detroit were involved in a stick-swinging duel. Both players were given major penalties.

Elsewhere in the NHL, injuries have sidelined two players. Left winger Dale Rolfe of Los Angeles Kings will be out of the lineup tonight when the Kings meet St. Louis Blues in an exhibition game in Ottawa. Rolfe, a former defenceman, pulled a stomach muscle during a scrimmage.

And an examination has revealed strained muscles in Orland Kurtenbach's back, making the veteran a doubtful starter for New York's weekend exhibition games.

NHL Speeds Up Playoff System

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League has taken the knife to its present Stanley Cup playoff regulations and approved back-to-back games in an effort to end the playoffs earlier this season.

The league's board of governors approved a revised set of playoff regulations Tuesday which make it possible for a team to win a best-of-seven series in five days.

BACK-TO-BACK

The new regulations include opening quarter-final play on a Wednesday with the second game the following night. Allowing one day for travel, the teams will play the third and fourth games on Saturday and Sunday.

The playoff change does away with the old regulation which had a two- or even three-day pause between games and prolonged the playoffs last season.

The rule was one of a number adopted by the NHL board at its semi-annual meeting. Governors also confirmed the present method of matching opponents in the playoffs—first against third and second against fourth in a best-of-seven series.

The league got around another playoff problem last year—catching up in the semi-finals. It ruled that in the event two semi-finalists are prepared to open a series, while the other semi-finalists are still in doubt, the two teams ready for action may begin.

NEW TV RULES

However, the pace of the series will be slowed so that each series hits the four-game plateau at the same time.

All regulations are effective this season.

The governors, who whipped through their long list of problems in one day, also approved new regulations for television during the playoffs.

The board ruled a network has priority over a local broadcast and that the size of a network, if more than one was involved, would be a deciding factor.

Since the two networks involved in NHL coverage are the CBC and the Columbia Broadcasting System in the United States, the new rule means any disagreement on any game would be settled in favor of CBS because it is owner of the "dominant broadcast."

Other items passed included an extension of Calder Trophy eligibility to 25 games from 20. This means a junior player can play up to 25 games in any one season and rate as a rookie the following year.

RELEASED by Victoria Cougars' junior hockey club is holdover winger Garth Greig. Rookie performed well last season until sidelined with a knee injury and has been plagued by back problems this season.

Eskimo Ace On Sidelines

EDMONTON (CP) — Fullback Art Perkins, Edmonton Eskimos' leading rusher, will be on the sidelines Saturday with a knee injury when the Western Football Conference club meets Hamilton Tiger-Cats, coach Neill Armstrong said Tuesday.

Perkins, who has carried the ball 110 times this season for 500 yards, fifth best in the league, received the injury in the second quarter of a game in Winnipeg last Sunday.

"We believe Art has strained ligaments, which will not keep him out too long," Armstrong said. "But another examination of the injury will be taken today."

Howie Schumm will replace Perkins.

English Cancel South African Cricket Tour

LONDON (Reuters) — British cricketers banned from South Africa because they have a colored (mixed race) player will tour India and Pakistan this winter, the Marylebone Cricket Club, the ruling body of English cricket, announced today.

The announcement followed an MCC decision Tuesday to drop the South Africa tour because South Africa objected to the inclusion of South African-born Basil d'Oliveira.

Jack Bailey, MCC assistant secretary, said financial and other arrangements have not been completed, but the tour probably would start soon after Christmas.

During the d'Oliveira crisis, which culminated with the tour cancellation, both India and Pakistan said they would welcome an MCC visit.

Neither country has cricketing ties with South Africa—regarded by many as the top cricketing country in the world.

Bailey said all 16 players selected to visit South Africa were invited to take part in the new tour.

The committee of the Marylebone Cricket Club announced the decision after a meeting attended by two members of the South African Cricket Board, Jack Cheetham and Arthur Coy.

It was the first contact the MCC have had with South African cricket officials since Premier Vorster said last week that the English team would not be welcome if d'Oliveira were included.

D'Oliveira, 33-year-old South African-born mulatto, emigrated to England eight years ago because he was barred by South Africa's race-separation laws from playing. He now is a British citizen.

HABS SIGN ROOKIE

Pros to Ignore Breakaway Group

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League shut the door in the face of the maverick Canadian Hockey Association Tuesday and ruled there should only be one central body in amateur hockey.

The CHA was formed last season when operators of junior hockey franchises in Western Canada and Ontario broke away from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in the hope of building a new amateur network.

CHA officials had hoped to get the support of the NHL, but league president Clarence Campbell stopped their bid Tuesday when the NHL reaffirmed its support in the CAHA.

"We will support the CAHA completely," said Campbell. "not only because we have a contract with them, but we think they're right and we feel there should be only one ruling body."

Campbell, interviewed after the NHL's semi-annual meeting, said the league's board of governors had ruled payment for junior graduates to professional ranks would be made only to the CAHA.

Campbell warned that players competing for the breakaway faction would find their arrival in professional hockey delayed or complicated.

Bailey's Number Returns

TORONTO (CP) — Ace Bailey, whose No. 6 was retired by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League 35 years ago, put the number back on the roster Tuesday night and assigned it to Ron Ellis.

They had to use a new sweater for the ceremony in Maple Leaf Gardens. Bailey's old sweater bearing the big 6 has vanished from the Hockey Hall of Fame.

No Leaf since 1933 has worn the number, retired when Bailey, pow 66, nearly died in one of the most celebrated incidents in hockey.

Bailey, like Ellis a right winger, was knocked out of hockey Dec. 12, 1933, at Boston Garden, 12 years before Ellis was born.

"This one is two numbers lighter than yours," Bailey said. "So you should go a little faster."

'BOUGHT AND SOLD LIKE CATTLE'

Union Invites Athletes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees today extended an open invitation to professional athletes to get into the trade union movement.

Stanley Little, national president of the 115,000-member public service union, said in a statement he has been disturbed by reports of athletes being told how to dress and cut their hair.

Professional athletes were "bought and sold like cattle," he said, a denial of basic human rights.

CUPE was prepared to sponsor a Canadian union of professional athletes as a Canadian Labor Congress affiliate.

A union spokesman said no direct approaches are being made to athletes but any request for organization help would be met quickly by CUPE's organizing staff.

Johnson Counting On Youth

BUFFALO, N.J. (CP) — Harvey Johnson, new head coach of Buffalo Bills, is looking forward a year or so when his lowly American Football League club can make full use of younger players who need experience.

"We feel we have real good young players," he said in an interview. "We feel we can improve the club this year and in another year or two . . ."

Johnson, 49, a former Canadian Football League coach, took over after Joe Collier was dropped last week when the last-place Eastern Conference team lost its first two league games.

The once-champion Bills sank from the top to the bottom of the league during Collier's tenure.

"We intend to make changes," Johnson said, without being specific. "From here on we have to get better."

ARRIVED IN 1960

Johnson, of Bridgeton, N.J., came to the Bills as defensive backfield coach and kicking coach in 1960 and became director of player personnel in 1962.

He said he had just returned from a player scouting trip to the West Coast when owner Ralph C. Wilson Jr. called him in after a 48-6 loss to Oakland and asked him to take the coaching job.

"I told Ralph our problems included injuries to both quarterbacks," said Johnson.

"Right now we've lost a top offensive tackle, Dick Hudson; one of the best offensive guards in the country, Joe O'Donnel and one of the top backs, Keith Lincoln.

PLENTY OF ROOKIES

"This means we're going with six rookies on offence, including whichever quarterbacks we use —Dan Darragh or Kay Stephenson.

"We'll take the playbook and make some variations as we go along. I think what I'll do is take out some stuff, both offence and defence and just get down to playing football."

Johnson turned to coaching after a playing career as a fullback at William and Mary and Bainbridge Naval Station and as defensive back and place kicker for New York Yankees of the old All-American Conference.

In Canada he joined Hamilton Tiger-Cats' coaching staff in 1953 and then took over the Kitchener, Ont., club in the Ontario Rugby Football Union in 1954 and won four straight titles. He says he doesn't find much difference between coaching in Canada and the U.S.

Before coming to Buffalo he was on the coaching staff of Montreal Alouettes of the CFL for the 1958-59 season.

Johnson's assistants at Buffalo are Bob Celeri, who was with him at Kitchener, and Marvin Bass, a one-time teammate at William and Mary who coached for 20 years with U.S. teams before going to Canada in 1966 as head coach for Montreal Beavers in the Continental League.

TIGER OFFICE BURIED BY TICKET REQUESTS

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit Tigers, snowed under by an estimated 500,000 applications for World Series Tickets, said late Tuesday they would take no more.

The club's publicity director, Hal Middlesworth, said any cheques received in future requests will be returned to applicants.

Limited available tickets for the third and fourth series games scheduled in Detroit will be sold to persons whose names are drawn from the pile.

Middlesworth said the $1 handling and mailing fee also will be returned to those who apply too late.

The World Series between the Tigers and the Cardinals begins Oct. 2 in St. Louis. The first Detroit game is scheduled Oct. 5.

Esks Stocked With Quarters

EDMONTON (CP)—Most football clubs are knee-deep in quarterbacks when they go into training camp, then send most of them home before they start playing for keeps.

Edmonton Eskimos, who started the current Western Football Conference season with one established signal-caller, now have four. And coach Neill Armstrong says he is in no hurry to solve the "pleasant" situation.

Three months ago the Edmonton quarterback roster began and ended with Frank Cosentino, the University of Western Ontario graduate acquired from Hamilton Tiger-Cats a year earlier. Terry Baker, who shared the job with him last season, stayed home after a salary dispute.

Behind Cosentino at training camp were Ernie Rachmistruk, an Edmonton junior graduate, and Charlie Fulton, a rookie from the University of Tennessee. Rachmistruk, primarily a fullback, was soon cut. Fulton, a halfback through most of his college career, stuck around.

The Eskimo offence bogged down and Armstrong gave Fulton a shot at the starting assignment. He promptly led the club to upset victories over Calgary Stampeders and Ottawa Rough Riders.

END WINNING STREAK

Winnipeg blue Bombers ended his winning streak last Sunday but Fulton's 2-1 record still compared well with the two wins and a tie the club produced in seven games with Cosentino in charge.

Meanwhile, more competition gathered on the sidelines.

Back in camp, after an abortive try for a National League job this season, is Randy Kerbow, who played out his option last season after three years with the Eskimos as a quarterback and flanker.

Also added to the lineup Sunday was Corey Colehour, a cut from Los Angeles Rams of the NFL.

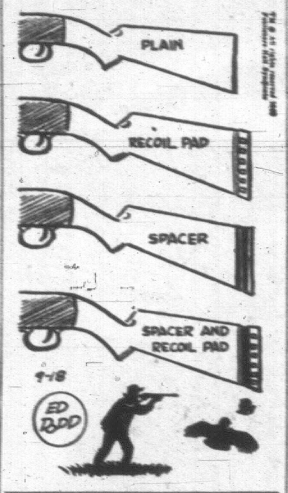

Currently, Armstrong plans to go with Fulton as No. 1 and Kerbow as flanker and backup quarterback.

"We inserted Fulton into the lineup because the club wasn't moving under Cosentino's leadership," the coach said.

"Fulton has played extremely well in three games and will continue to start until he runs into trouble. We know what Cosentino can do, so if Fulton is taken out we will likely replace him with Kerbow or Colehour."

AFL Club Signs Soccer Player

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos of the American Football League announced Tuesday the signing of a veteran British professional soccer player.

He is Bobby Howfield,31, who, in his first attempts at kicking an American football this year, averaged 62 yards on kickoffs and booted 32 of 36 field goal attempts from 40 yards.

GORD SINCLAIR

Sinclair Still a Smoothie

Gord Sinclair dropped his shoulder. A rival, trying to check the puck-carrying defenceman, shifted one way. Sinclair went the other way.

Gordie Sinclair hasn't changed.

Scrimmaging during San Diego Gulls' workout at Memorial Arena on Tuesday, the slight but solid veteran showed the finesse and ultra-fine touches that have stamped him as one of the Western Hockey League's top rearguards for 14 seasons.

Season No. 15 lies ahead, and manager-coach Max McNab makes it obvious that Sinclair, as expected, will again "be one of the leaders for us."

All of Sinclair's professional years have been spent in the Western circuit. Ready to celebrate his 36th birthday (next Monday), Sinclair is Mr. Steady. Along with flying winger Willie O'Ree, Gord was one of the sparklers in Tuesday's scrimmages as Gulls continue to prepare for the WHL campaign and a Saturday exhibition with Portland Buckaroos.

"He's one of the good ones," said McNab as he nodded towards Sinclair. "Scored 10 goals and 33 assists last year, and it looks as if he isn't ready to let up in the least.

"When he was with Seattle, Sinclair always seemed to be the 'third man' on goals involving Guyle Fielder. Fielder and Sinclair were one of the greatest forward-defence combinations in the league.

Sinclair and the return (by the parent Detroit Red Wings) of Dennis Huculak would indicate that McNab and the Gulls may have little or no worries on defence.

Huculak, who enjoyed an outstanding rookie year last season, reported to McNab along with Jim Cardiff, a forward who played for Fort Worth in the Central League.

Stuke Launches Damages Suit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Annis Stukus, 53, former general manager of Vancouver Canucks, Tuesday launched a suit against the Vancouver Hockey Club Ltd., for damages for alleged wrongful dismissal as general manager.

The former professional football coach claims he was under contract to the Western Hockey League club at the time of his dismissal on June 28.

He alleges breach of contract.

At the time of his dismissal, a club spokesman said his termination was because of "services unsatisfactory" to the club's directors.

Major Justice Reforms Proposed by Quebec Bar

MONTREAL (CP) — Sweeping reforms in the administration of justice in Quebec, including measures to safeguard the rights of victims as well as accused in criminal cases, were proposed Tuesday by the 3,000-member Quebec Bar Association.

The recommendations, contained in a 160-point brief, were presented to a provincial royal commission inquiring into the administration of justice in Quebec.

The 40-page brief proposed establishment of an "administrative" court to put an end to what it called "confusion" and "inefficiency" in the handling of statutory offences now judged by criminal courts.

The administrative court would hear all non-criminal cases involving violations of provincial or municipal statutes or by-laws, and thus free criminal courts to deal with cases of actual crime.

SEEKS NEW COURT

The bar reiterated its call for establishment of domestic relations courts to take over cases now heard by the social welfare court as well as cases dealing with divorce, separation, marriage annulment, alimony, child custody, non-support, reconciliation, paternity, tutorship and offences against the family under the Criminal Code.

The brief also recommended:

—Elimination of "politically-inspired" appointments to the bench, by giving the provincial justice minister, rather than the cabinet as a whole, final authority for such appointments;

—Application of new criteria governing appointments to government commissions, boards and other quasi-judicial bodies to eliminate the impression among ordinary citizens that these appointments are politically-inspired and that "powerful, occult protectors" operate behind the scenes;

—Passing of legislation providing an indemnity for victims of crime and creation of a board to implement such legislation;

—Compensation by the government for court costs incurred by persons wrongly accused of having committed criminal offences;

—Abolition of the right of municipal councils to enact by-laws providing for prison terms, a right the brief should be conferred only on the provincial legislature.

The brief said criminal courts should be centralized and court facilities improved by provison of adequate stenographic services and competent interpreters.

An adequate legal aid system should be established to ensure equal access to justice for all, regardless of their financial circumstances.

The Quebec government should set up improved facilities for the "re-orientation" of juvenile delinquents and improved probation and rehabilitation services for convicted persons, the bar said.

It also suggested establishment by journalists of a corporation similar in function to the bar which would set rules for court reporting to protect both freedom of the press and the rights of accused, who should be judged "by the courts and not by public opinion."

The bar spoke out against techniques employed by police in carrying out arrests and detaining prisoners, referring specifically to the Montreal Police Department.

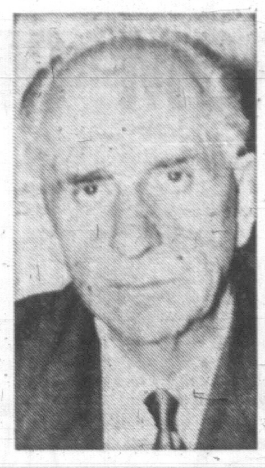

"In the fight against crime," it said, "it is not necessary to expand police powers, but rather to ensure improved recruiting in keeping with carefully established standards."

'END BRUTALITY'

It protested the practice of holding persons incommunicado during police investigations and criticized police for "treating as a privilege" the right of detained persons to consult a lawyer.

A series of reforms was suggested to ensure that persons detained for questioning enjoy their full civil rights.

FREED Monday from a six-month house arrest by the army-backed Greek government were George Papandreou, 80, left, and Panayotis Kannelopoulos, 65, former Greek premiers. It had been the second time they had been arrested for criticizing the government, which seized power in 1967, and they were warned on their release by Premier George Papadopoulos "not to make a false step again". Five other politicians were also to be released, but 50 others are still in jail.

Iranians Sleep Outside Fearing More Quakes

Ralph Joseph, Canadian Press correspondent in Pakistan, arrived in Iran for a visit just before the disastrous earthquakes in early September. In this article he describes the massive task of rebuilding which faces the stricken areas.

By RALPH JOSEPH

TEHRAN (CP) — Hundreds of thousands of terrified people, too frightened by the possibility of further earthquakes to risk staying under a roof even though their houses were spared, are still sleeping out in the open in quake-stricken Iran.

They have reason to fear. Tremors have continued to occur days after the black Saturday afternoon of Sept. 1 when a major quake killed an estimated 12,000 and left hundreds of thousands homeless, mostly in Khorassan province, northeast of this capital.

Iran lies astride a quake-prone belt girdling the earth. And the old methods of building construction account for the incredibly high death tolls when major tremors strike.

Some authorities say that to make things safe for everyone would mean rebuilding every village in the country.

While relief camps have been set up—the official figure is 182 in Khorassa—many of the survivors whose homes were levelled lack adequate shelter. Each camp consists of rows of tents ranging in total number from 50 to 200, their varied colors of khaki, orange, blue and white indicating that all available supplies are being utilized.

From the air they are easily distinguished, set out in the open beside the rubbled remains of the towns and villages.

Those homeless unable to find accommodation in the relief camps are living either in crude tents made from household sheets or blankets—or simply stretching under the trees wrapped in their quilts.

A major problem is that winter is just around the corner—and winters in Iran are severe when the Central Asian winds start blowing.

Prime Minister Amir Abbas Hoveyda, centre of the relief operations, mentioned two plans to shelter the affected people. The first, an interim plan, is to transfer them to other centres away from the actual quake-stricken area. Schools there will be closed down, and the refugees will be sheltered in them.

The second long-term plan, Mr. Hoveyda said, is to rebuild the destroyed villages into larger concentrated towns with quake-proof houses.

"I recommend this for every school"

Teacher John Killough knows what it means to learn to read 3 times faster

So many teachers who take the Evelyn Wood Reading Dynamics course say the same thing — they wish all their students could learn to read 3 times faster. "It inspires confidence. Makes you more relaxed because you quickly master your text books," says Mr. Killough, who actually increased his reading from 244 words a minute to over 2,600 words a minute by the course. "Best of all, there was no loss of comprehension," he says. "As a matter of fact I retain much more of what I read, thanks to Reading Dynamics."

WHO HAS TAKEN THIS COURSE?

Over 400,000 throughout North America . . . over 250 in the Greater Victoria area alone. This is the course President Kennedy asked his Joint Chiefs of Staff to take . . . the same course taken by over 10 Canadian Members of Parliament, and by thousands of students, workers, businessmen and housewives from coast to coast.

READ WHAT THESE LOCAL GRADUATES SAY!

Marlene Patterson—Teacher "Excellent instruction, I read much faster with more concentration and better comprehension."

Roy Hennessy, CKLG "Boss Jock"; "It enables me to increase my reading efficiency from less than 350 words per minute to over 2,000 words a minute, with increased comprehension.

W. G. Gerry—Municipal Engineer, "Good course—faster reading both for pleasure and business."

Blake Ferris—Instructor, U of Vic., "Extremely good course. I am reading seven times faster with greater comprehension and retention. Great for study reading."

Derek Hydelay — Teacher, "I recommend this course highly. I tackle my reading with more enjoyment and confidence and my recall ability is much greater."

Paul Kjekstad — Student, "I read 3 to 10 times faster with greater comprehension. All students should take this course."

Barbara MacLaren — Student, "Excellent course, has increased my speed greatly and with better understanding."

Careful Study Of Ideas Urged

Dean Robert Wallace, acting president of the University of Victoria, called Tuesday for student suggestions for improving the university.

Students should give careful consideration to all proposals for changing the university's structure and organization, he said.

Those with ideas or criticisms about the way the university is run should make them known to the senate and committees studying its structure.

He told the students if "constructive criticism is brought forward early and called to the attention of the appropriate agencies, then the problems can nearly always be solved in a rational manner."

Dean Wallace's remarks were made during the president's annual address to new students, during the noon hour in the university gymnasium.

STUDY BRIEFS

He told students to study the briefs submitted to the university senate last summer by Alma Mater Society (AMS) president Frank Frketich and make known their reaction to them.

The AMS requested changes in the academic working of the university and more student representation on governing bodies.

WALLACE

"The university is aware that, if these suggested changes were to be brought about in whole or in part, they would markedly alter the university as it now exists," Dean Wallace said.

"For that reason, I consider it of prime importance that the AMS brief be given careful study both by the students and by the faculty."

Special committees have been studying the AMS proposals and will advise the senate tonight how best to go about implementing them.

The briefs will be printed in the student paper, The Martlet, for students' information.

When the senate has made a decision students should make their views known "either in written or oral form," he said.

"The university will do whatever it can to answer your inquiries and to listen to your criticisms" although "it is not possible for every idea to prevail."

He stressed the purpose of the university was teaching and research and said every effort must be made to further it in those two areas.

(A prevalent idea in student demands for restructuring of universities is that the university is an organ for social change, not just for teaching and research.)

Any action, Dean Wallace said, which would impair these roles "would work against the best interests of both students and faculty."

HAVE LIBERTIES

"I feel certain that the students (here) would not wish to see such conditions prevail in the academic community to which each of us belongs.

"You will find that you have unusual liberties here: to debate and criticize and to assemble; you have a free student newspaper, the editorial policy of which is set by the students.

"In return, you have the responsibility of allowing others to speak, to assemble and debate without fear of disruption or intimidation," he told the students.

He said the faculty enjoys a reputation "second to none" for professional qualifications and the attention they give the students.

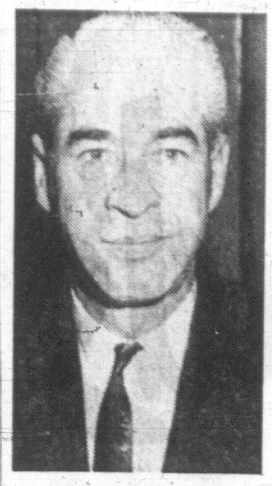

OVERCROWDING

Earlier in his address Dean Wallace touched on overcrowding and the inadequacy of facilities for students. Despite these the university has an interest and a concern for the progress and welfare of students.

He touched on financial difficulties experienced after a sparse season for student employment and stiffer control of student loans.

He also explained the introduction of a college system on the campus. Craigdarroch College, the first of several planned over the next several years, will be completed by January, he said.

Each of the planned colleges will have residence accommodation for 300 students and will include 700 non-residence students. Social, cultural and recreational facilities will be concentrated in each of the colleges.

APPOINTED accountant and office manager at St. Joseph's Hospital is John B. Murray, a former staff member at B.C. Hospital Insurance Service. A native Victorian and graduate of Victoria High School, Mr. Murray is a veteran member of the Canadian Scottish Regiment.

20% Subsidy For Recreation

Victoria city subsidized its four major recreation outlets by nearly 20 per cent of cost during 1967.

The total deficit, outlined in the recreation and community services department's annual report to the city Tuesday, was $92,725.

But that, the report stressed, was "well under the estimated operating deficit."

Money taken in at Memorial Arena from unexpected special events reduced it by more than $21,000. Profits at McPherson Playhouse, the Crystal Garden and Royal Athletic Park reduced the deficit by a further unforeseen $18,868.

Royal Athletic Park—revenue, $15,256; expenditure, $29,331; deficit, $14,075.

The cost calculations include all maintenance and staff costs, food concessions, advertising, insurance, and other minor expenses.

Funds for alterations and improvements to the four outlets not used during 1967 are being held in reserve for work this year.

Food concessions earned a one-third net profit, partially accounted for by a change in location for the concession in McPherson Playhouse late in 1966.

An increase in profit from rental of roller skates at the arena was noted.

Before the Magistrate

Two young men who earlier pleaded guilty to possession of fraudulently obtained property were sentenced Tuesday to six months in jail.

Earl Gass and John Robertson, of 3270 Douglas, wore articles of clothing Sept. 16 that had been obtained through the use of another person's credit card, court was told.

Magistrate William Ostler told the youths they were copies of so-called anti-establishment nonconformists groups.

An 18-year-old girl charged with false pretences in connection with the same incident was given a suspended sentence.

Earlier court was told she used the credit card to purchase $174.37 worth of clothes at The Bay and forged the name of the owner.

A man who Saturday pleaded guilty to obtaining lodgings by fraud pleaded guilty Monday to five counts of false pretences.

Guy Irvine, of no fixed address, was remanded until Oct. 1 for sentencing.

Court was told that between July 5 and Sept. 7 he cashed worthless cheques at area stores totalling $108.75.

William Dallos, 1355 Vining, pleaded guilty to discharging a firearm unlawfully in the city and was remanded for sentence until Oct. 2.

Magistrate Ostler asked that a pre-sentence report be made.

'Can't Turn Back Clock'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The moderator of the United Church of Canada Tuesday described Pope Paul's recent encyclical on birth control as an attempt to turn back a clock "which can't be turned back."

Dr. Robert McClure, 68, told a press conference that birth control should be a parental responsibility and information should be available to those who want it, if it is not offensive.

Dr. McClure, who retired last year after 14 years of missionary work in India, said Canadian money is providing birth control programs to combat India's population problem.

He spent much time in India organizing birth control programs and said he's convinced they will be effective.

City to View Wave-Maker

City officials will arrange a viewing of a film on wave-making devices for swimming pools as part of its planning for a pool to replace the Crystal Garden.

The recreation and community services committee decided Tuesday to contact the Flexible Company of Loudonville, Ohio, to send one of their representatives with the film.

Mayor Hugh Stephen told the committee he would like the new pool to be as unique as council could make it. The wave-making device, which simulates rollers on the surface of the water, may be a suitable way to do so, he said.

Council was to have seen the film early in August but the showing was cancelled. The committee hopes to view it within two or three weeks.

Minor Change In Rail Link To Superport

Minor route changes in the controversial B.C. Hydro proposal to build a rail link to the Roberts Bank superport were approved by the provincial cabinet Tuesday.

But the changes were made for purely engineering reasons and will not affect the placing of trackage along the Boundary Bay beaches which has drawn intense fire from recreation groups, planners and some mainland civic leaders.

The main change would relocate a rail crossing over the Tsawwassen ferry terminal road by 2,000 feet in order to avoid a curve in the highway.

Another change would relocate a level crossing near Cloverdale to remove it from a busy highway intersection and the final change in routing would alter the right-of-way slightly for about three miles between Bradner and Clayburn to take better advantage of land conturs.

Rusty Water Has Women Seeing Red

By DON DINGWALL

They blamed the municipal water supply.

New white sheets were shown turned beige after a first wash and others were streaked with rust.

The meeting of Maple Bay Ratepayers' Association approved a motion giving North Cowichan council until Oct. 30 to come up with a solution to the problem. The protesters didn't say what would happen then.

Association president Kurt Horn said the water supply is "atrocious."

He reported that the content of iron according to accepted health standards was a half part per million.

A professional analysis done by a Vancouver company showed a Maple Bay water sample to have 14.7 parts per million.

REJECTED

Mr. Horn quoted the report as saying: "This water should not be used for domestic consumption."

He alleged council has been led up the garden path by its consulting engineers regarding the quantity and quality of water to be expected from the new well supply.

Mr. Horn said most residents on the new water main were hauling water for drinking purposes.

He said there was a "suspicious" clearing of the water in the two days prior to the meeting but council members present denied use of Quamichan Lake to supply Maple Bay's system except on four occasions during the summer.

Mr. Horn said the municipal engineering staff had claimed a 450 to 650 gallons per minute capacity for the new system and said this would allow for a 60 per cent increase in users.

But Maple Bay had to endure sprinkling restrictions this summer.

'PEOPLE DUPED'

He said: "This is a lot of hogwash and the situation is difficult to assess but someone is being duped."

Mayor Donald Morton was not at the meeting but said Tuesday: "I'm quite aware of the serious problem in part of the Maple Bay water system."

He said it might be necessary to replace the type of pipes installed but said a study is being made to see if the pipes can be successfully treated at less than the $60,000 cost of replacement.

Brannan Job Won't Expand Bed Space

NANAIMO — A $173,000 expansion of school facilities will permit a more diversified rehabilitation program, not provide space for more boys, said Brannan Lake Boys' School director, John Noble.

Construction is to start next week on the addition that will include accommodation for 15 boys, dining space, hobby rooms, a classroom and social welfare offices.

A second addition, costing about $115,000, will be built later, the public works department announced.

Mr. Noble explained that the school was trying to adjust "to the fact that there is no such thing as a stereotype juvenile delinquent.

"A juvenile delinquent is strictly a legal term. We're trying to deal with individual boys."

TRAINING

With the new facilities, school staff will be able to experiment with new training techniques and attempt to evolve solutions to problems rather than snap answers, he said.

"This will allow different approaches and different ways of handling new problems, and therefore we hope to better cope with the number of boys we're getting."

NURSE SAVES ROAD VICTIM

NANAIMO — RCMP have credited Nanaimo nurse Karen Diachuk with saving the life of Glen Angus McKay, 22, of Nanaimo after he was thrown from his sports car when it struck a utility pole near her home.

Mrs. Diachuk ran from her house and administered mouth-to-mouth resusitation and external heart massage after the accident Monday.

Mr. McKay is listed in fair condition at Nanaimo Regional General Hospital.

SUMMER IS GONE near Duncan where hundreds of skaters packed into the $450,000 Fuller Lake Arena when it was opened at the weekend for twice daily sessions of free skating. Earl O'Neill, North Cowichan's recreation director, is managing the arena and limited the crowd to 700 for each session. Hockey will be getting under way soon, as some 400 boys have signed for the minor program. (Photo by Jay Powley.)

ALBERNI SCHOOLS GET APPROVAL FOR VOTE

A cabinet order-in-council Tuesday gave permission to the Alberni School District trustees to submit a referendum to ratepayers for a $1,792,200 capital school building program.

Another order approved the Greater Nanaimo Sewerage Drainage District Bylaw No. 14 involving $78,490 in improvements.

OTHER ISLAND NEWS

Hunters Out in Force

Scores of elk and deer hunters invaded the Gold River area last weekend when the 1968 hunting season opened.

Restrictions on elk hunting in all other parts of Vancouver Island and a newly paved road to this northern area resulted in the unprecedented invasion.

An estimated 250 vehicles were lined up north of Gold River on the first morning of the season.

PORT ALBERNI — The Throne Speech debate is a waste of time, according to Richard Durante, Liberal newly-elected MP for Comox-Alberni.

The MP in a report of his experience so far in Ottawa, said originally it was his intention to participate in the throne speech debate.

"But as I personally resent having my time wasted, I did not want to participate in a debate that would result in wasting the time of other members," he stated.

He believes Canadians would prefer parliament get down to serious legislative matters rather than have members expound on the merits of their constituencies.

The fire started in a pan of grease in the Turner's kitchen.

When the house quickly filled with smoke Mr. Turner sent his wife and two children outside but had the fire under control before the city fire department arrived.

'His' and 'Hers' Embassies Ruled by American Couple

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN

SAIGON (AP) — "His" embassy has an armed helicopter on the roof and a tank parked on the driveway of the official residence.

"Hers" had a cow asleep in the doorway under the great seal of the United States and, from the terrace of the official residence, a breath-taking view of the snow-covered Himalayan range.

The "his" and "hers" embassies belong to Ellsworth Bunker, U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, and Carol Laise Bunker, U.S. ambassador to Nepal, the only husband-and-wife team of ambassadors in the history of American diplomacy.

From a spanking new but already war-defaced six-storey, 240-room chancellory on Saigon's Thong Nhut Boulevard, veteran diplomat Ellsworth Bunker presides over the largest U.S. embassy in the world.

SHE'S IN NAPAL

Eighteen hundred miles west across Asia, in the medieval city of Katmandu, Ambassador Carol Laise Bunker presides over a rambling collection of whitewashed two-storey buildings.

Here at the geological roof of the world, in a land of lofty peaks such as Everest and Annapurna, East and West meet in a restrained atmosphere of nervous neutrality.

The two ambassadors bring to their separate posts a wealth of diplomatic experience, so that when they occasionally get together after a rugged 10-hour flight across Asia in a borrowed U.S. Air Force DC-6 they invariably talk shop.

"My husband," says Madam Ambassador, "has had a good deal of experience in dealing with emerging nations.

"We frequently compare experiences on the problems of economic development in a relatively traditional society."

At 74, Bunker is the very model of a modern diplomat; silver-haired, urbane, patient, immaculate. He has been in the diplomatic service since 1951, when he retired as president and chairman of the board of his father's sugar business and accepted an appointment as ambassador to Argentina.

Just turned 50, charming, attractive and energetic, but with a reputation for being tough as a negotiator and demanding of her staff where image of the U.S. is concerned, Madam Ambassador entered government service with the U.S. civil service commission in 1940.

She served as adviser to several UN delegations and to UNESCO—first secretary-political secretary actually — to the embassy at New Delhi, director of the state department's office of South Asian affairs and country director for India, Ceylon, Nepal and the Maldives.

Bunker's first wife, Harriet Allen Bunker, died in 1964. Three years later, in a quiet ceremony at the official residence in Katmandu, the ambassador-at-large married the bachelor career girl who had been first secretary when he was ambassador to India and also had held concurrent accreditation as ambassador to Nepal.

Two months after the wedding, Bunker accepted the President's appointment as ambassador to South Vietnam.

"At least we're serving on the same continent," said Madam Ambassador with resignation.

Sunday Meeting

The Toastmistress Clubs of Vancouver Island Council No. 5, Pacific Northwest Region, will gather at the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on Sunday from 11:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. for a conference and workshop sessions.

Guest speakers will attend from Tacoma and Seattle clubs.

VOICE OF WOMEN

ANNUAL MEETING IN CALGARY

Reorganize to Attract Young Members

A special membership category was set up when the Voice of Women held its national annual meeting in Calgary. The amendment is designed to encourage young people to join. As part of the program at the meeting there was an under-30 panel on "Is Democracy an Illusion?"

Concerned about the danger of chemical and biological warfare, the group's president Mrs. J. M. C. Duckworth, Halifax (unanimously re-elected as the group's head) led a delegation to the nearby Suffield Experimental Station. It is planned to learn more about the station's work and issue a statement to the station's director.

The delegates urged more publicity be made available so that an informed public could be aware of government actions and policies. Douglas Fisher, political commentator, in acting as guest speaker at a dinner for 150 delegates, dealt with the former structure of Canada and spoke on ways of influencing government policy.

Members voted to support the right of Canadians to live in a society free of discrimination, poverty and war as the group's contribution to Human Rights Year.

Two members, Mrs. Kay MacPherson and Mrs. Claire Culhane, spoke of their recent experiences in North and South Vietnam. The meeting resolved to ask the federal government to work for an end to bombing by the United States' armed services. It also voted the proceeds of a "no-lunch" to be used to buy artificial limbs for Vietnamese children.

It was decided to hold a conference in Canada for women whose countries are involved in the Vietnam war, the main delegates to be from the United States and Vietnam. Mrs. Duckworth is in Atlanta, Ga., this week to meet with Mrs. Martin Luther King, Jr.

Delegates voted their group's opposition to NATO, armed intervention, violence displayed through the communications media, and the export of war materials by Canada.

They advocated the establishment of a federal disarmament agency, the distribution of increased foreign aid through United Nations' agencies, and the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Peoples Republic of China.

A Victoria woman, Mavis De Girolamo, was elected to the national council. Other Victorians at the meeting were Valerie MacDermot and Mary Cox.

Give Youth To Your Complexion

Good results in complexion beauty are being achieved with a tropical oil that has unique properties to bring youth and peaches-and-cream loveliness to the skin. It ends wrinkle dryness and gives the complexion dewy loveliness. Many druggists here have been able to obtain this oil of Olay. Use it daily as you would a powder base and note how the complexion soon takes on a milky look.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Go to the Wedding With Head High

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married soon. Two years ago, his father and I were divorced, and his father is now married to the woman he has been playing around with for the last five years.

Under the circumstances I feel that my husband's new wife does not belong at our son's wedding.

My son and his fiancee feel that now that father finally married this little home-wrecker, she should attend the wedding.

I am considering asking them to make a choice. If they want me at the wedding, father's wife can stay home. If they want her, I'll stay home. What is your opinion?

WAITING.

DEAR WAITING. If it's common knowledge, and not just your opinion that father's wife is a "homewrecker," she doesn't belong at your son's wedding. Don't punish the young couple, however, by giving them a choice. Go and be a lady. If father's wife insists on going, too, it is she who may have difficulty holding her head high.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl, and my best girl friend is worrying me to death. She is also 14, but she is very developed (physically) for a girl her age. She looks like about 18. She told me that for the last eight months a 19-year-old boy has been coming over to her house to see her in the evening while her parents are at work. Her parents don't even know this guy exists. She tells me that all she wears when he comes over is a bikini bathing suit, and there is no place to swim within five miles of her place, so you know as well as I that this can mean big trouble.

I keep telling her to be careful, but she says nothing has happened so far, and nothing will.

What can I do to prevent trouble? I can't tell her mother because her mother will probably tell her how she found out, and my girl friend will never speak to me again. Sign me,

WORRIED.

DEAR WORRIED: Tell YOUR mother. She'll know what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for two years and have no children. Because I have no children, my friends, relatives and neighbors think I am the perfect baby-sitter. I love children, and I don't mind baby-sitting in an emergency and I never charge for my services.

Is there a nice way to tell these people to find somebody else? I am sick and tired of being used. One girl actually drops her child off at my house without even asking me first. Many times my own plans have been ruined because parents don't come back to get their child when they say they will. Thank you.

M.R.H.

DEAR M.R.H.: No one can "use you" without your co-operation. And if you are "used" once by inconsiderate, nervy acquaintances, shame on them. But if it happens twice, shame on you!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Not many years ago the woman who wore false eyelashes was considered quite daring. However, the effect was so glamorous that other women were naturally envious, although hesitant to try them. Today these cosmetic aids are a usual, everyday part of makeup.

Lowman

This is understandable considering what they can do for a face. Just this one cosmetic addition can make a wonderful difference in a woman's appearance. You have to try it to believe it! Perhaps you have had the experience of seeing a friend who suddenly looked much prettier than usual, and then discovering that false lashes were the reason. These can "pick up" average eyes and dramatize beautiful ones.

There are all kinds of lashes. Today you can buy lightweight ones which look entirely natural or you can wear those which are much heavier, thicker, longer, and frankly false. I think the majority of women prefer the lightweight variety. These are worn slightly longer than your own lashes.

Some women wear both kinds, the natural appearing ones for daytime and the dramatic ones for gala evenings. Regardless of the popularity of lashes-not-your-own, there are still many women who wish to take advantage of these beauty-zoomers but feel that they could never apply them properly. This is not true, but it may take a little practice.

You cannot expect to do a perfect job the first time you try. Pick the lashes up with tweezers. Apply a liquid adhesive (which comes with the lashes) to the lash base. You can do this most easily with a toothpick. WARNING! Do not use too much adhesive. If you do the lashes will become sticky and hard to handle.

Now look down into a mirror while you position the false lashes above your own lashes and as close to them as possible. Begin pressing them into place at the centre and work out toward the ends with your finger or a clean toothpick. A magnifying mirror is preferable.

Many lashes are already trimmed and feathered. If you cut them yourself be sure that they are not all the same length. Your own are varying lengths. These cosmetic aids have been greatly improved during the past few years and are also much cheaper.

Always Look Ageless

To get an ageless look, you must first make all the little age lines in your facial skin so inconspicuous they won't be seen by people at greeting distance from you. Or, better yet, get rid of them altogether. Ask your favorite cosmetician for a bottle of 2nd Debut, the lotion that women everywhere are calling their secret face lift. This lotion contains CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) that expands underneath lines to push them upward so they level with the skin's surface and thereby become invisible. This smoothed-out appearance of the skin gives the face an ageless look that favors its wearer with an almost unlimited variety in her choice of clothes.

A New You

PIECE OF ADVICE

For the last year I've been coloring my hair to cover up premature grey. I have had no problem achieving a shade of very dark brown that's just right for me but now my hairpieces (a wiglet and a cluster of curls) don't match. It is all right to dye the pieces with the same product I'm using for my hair?—L.F.

This can be tricky. If the pieces are real hair and if you treat them very gently, you should be able to do it.

After preparing the dye, just swish it through the hair quickly so you won't harm the mesh base. It's not necessary to leave the dye on for more than 10 or 15 minutes. Rinse carefully with warm water, blot off the excess with a turkish towel and let the piece dry on a stand overnight. Set with wig-setting lotion (available in department stores).

NAIL NEWS

My husband's nails are very soft and often split below the fingertip. He hates the way it looks (and so do I!) but he dislikes having them manicured or applying anything shiny. Can you recommend something to help him?—N.W.

There is a product on the market called R.R.P which contains protein and does not leave a shine. Apply it once a day, at a time when he won't be washing his hands for at least an hour.

You might have hot flashes and chilly spells, and feel all out of kilter. It's not nice to feel you're not the woman you used to be. It can be a little frightening. And it isn't any wonder that your feelings get jumbled up.

Well, we have something for the day you need a little comforting. Lydia E. Pinkham Tablets. They're made with gentle ingredients that work to give you a better sense of well-being. A sense of well-being that you might lose when you start changing.

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer:

I have some lovely lace which I intend to use as an edging for my wedding veil. It has been in the family for many generations, and we are afraid to have it laundered or cleaned, yet it seems so limp. Do you think we could safely wash and starch this lace?

Judy M.

Dear Judy M.:

Not knowing just what content your lace consists of, I am hesitant to tell you to wash it. Perhaps you could try a small end of it before you proceed with the entire piece. If it is merely limp and not soiled, try placing a piece of waxed paper under and over it and press with a warm iron. This does wonders for fabrics that need a little pepping up.

Canadian Cookery Is Far From Dull

By PENNY SAVER

What is Canada's national dish? This problem is as difficult to solve as bilingualism. In terms of area Canada is one of the largest nations in the world. It stretches the width of a continent and includes a wide variety of geographic and climatic conditions all governing the kinds of foods available. Much of the Canadian population is made up of immigrants or their children, so quite naturally most of the foods eaten by Canadians have their roots in other nations. On the other hand strictly indigenous dishes, smoked salmon with oolichan oil, whale blubber, fiddlehead ferns and so on, are restricted to relatively smaller regions and small groups of people. If one were to take a survey and discover what dish was eaten at some time by the majority of Canadians the winner would probably be something like roast beef, or chop suey, just because these foods are available to almost anyone, no matter where they live. How dull we would seem from th results of such a survey!

Canadian cooking is not dull, and the "Laura Secord Canadian Cookbook" is proof of that. When putting this book together the editors didn't even consider a "national dish," instead they gathered all the traditional Canadian recipes they could from all parts of the nation. Just to prove how varied Canadian cookery can be they included sample menus from the five main regions of Canada. The result of their labors is a book that is attractive to look at, fascinating to read and very tasty when its instructions are put into practice. Recognizing that the great influx of new Canadians has contributed greatly to Canadian culture, the editors include dishes with a Canadian twist even though they originated in other lands. The pioneers aren't forgotten either and this book has the recipes for such old-time favorites as apple butter or molasses pie. Color photographs and drawings are spotted throughout this $3.95 book.

Action Cookbook Begins at Basics

Men who cook always claim to be much, much better than their feminine equivalents. If this is so, I ask, why are bachelors notorious for being poorly fed? One father I know is convinced it is because their mothers won't let them practice, so when his son left for college he gave the boy a pair of cookbooks. These books come in a boxed set for $4.95. They are written by Len Deighton, author of "The Ipcress File," a man his son might be expected to admire. One book is called "Action Cookbook." It tells the budding cook everything—all about cuts of meat, refrigerators, buying food, pressure cookers—things many brides should know as well, but don't. Only then does it go on to the recipes, including what the author calls "bachelor food," or dishes that can be quickly prepared.

The second book "Ou est le Garlic" (translated to "where is the garlic") deals with French food. Like the other book it begins with basics—cuts of meat (in French), pots and pans, and a list of terms, just to make sure the author and reader both know what is going on. This is a fun cookbook to read and guaranteed to win the most apathetic cook to the cult of the stove. Need I say that this set makes the perfect gift for anyone?

If you would like to know where to shop for these cookbooks, please call me at 382-3131.

Lottery Appeal To High Court

MONTREAL (CP)—The City of Montreal lost a decision to the Quebec Court of Appeals Tuesday on the legality of its voluntary tax scheme, but decided to continue and take its case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Lucien Saulnier, chairman of the city's executive committee, said Tuesday night the committee was to meet today to study "at length" the appeal court's decision by a 3 to 2 vote that the voluntary tax is a contravention of the Criminal Code.

In Quebec City, provincial Justice Minister Jean Jacques Bertrand said Montreal could continue its efforts to raise $28,000,000—to offset a predicted budgetary deficit for fiscal 1968—if it appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada.

But if the appeal fails, he said, the law will take its course.

It was probable that the city would instruct its legal department to seek a reversal of the decision, Mr. Saulnier announced to reporters after learning of the appeal court's decision.

The city "intends to go on with the plan as in the past and we invite everybody to subscribe with more enthusiasm than ever."

INGOTS ARE PRIZES

Under the voluntary tax scheme—announced last April by Mayor Jean Drapeau as the alternative to increased taxes—151 names are drawn monthly for silver ingot prizes worth $150,000.

Three women and a man each have won the monthly top prize of $100,000 by answering "skill-testing" questions the answers to which are printed on the back of receipts for each $2 contribution.

The use of ingots as prizes and the definition of "skill-testing" questions were major factors in Tuesday's judgment.

Mr. Justice Paul C. Casey, Mr. Justice Andre Taschereau and Mr. Justice G. E. W. Owen voted that the voluntary tax is illegal under the Criminal Code.

Dissident votes were cast by Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay and Mr. Justice G. E. Rinfret.

Declaring for the illegality of the scheme, the three justices quoted Section 179 of the Criminal Code which says:

"Everyone is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years who conducts or manages any scheme of any kind for the purpose of determining who—or the holders of what lots, tickets, numbers or chances—are the winners of any property so proposed to be advanced, loaned, given, sold or disposed of."

SEES NO SKILL

Mr. Justice Owen said no skill is needed to participate, explaining that 99.989 per cent of contributors are eliminated in the draw for 151 names. The other .011 per cent were picked by "pure chance."

Chief Justice Tremblay, in his decision, said the Criminal Code states a sum of "money" as a contravention—not silver ingots. The ingots also were not "value" as held by the Code.

Mayor Jean Drapeau has maintained his "exercise of chance" is legal. It is the first of its kind in Canada.

The United States post office department has declared the plan a lottery and as such illegal, barring forms being mailed to the U.S.

WEIR

Committees To Guide Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — One of the key developments in the new management concept adopted by the Manitoba government is the establishment of two cabinet committees to centralize both planning and fiscal control of the entire administration, Premier Walter Weir said today.

Premier Weir, in announcing cabinet changes and reorganization at a news conference, said the cabinet committees are management, under the chairmanship of finance minister Gurney Evans, and planning and priorities under Labor Minister Minister C. H. Witney.

The management committee will be responsible for the execution of government policy and cost control. It is an expansion of the former treasury board and budget branch, the premier said.

Smallwood Hit For Snubbing

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Former health minister John C. Crosbie will attend Saturday's big Newfoundland rally at Grand Falls but he said today Premier Joseph Smallwood is wrong to bar another ex-minister from the meeting.

Mr. Crosbie also said the premier "misinterpreted" terms Mr. Crosbie outlined earlier this week for Mr. Crosbie's return to the party.

"I am not a supporter of the present Liberal government without reservations," he said.

Clyde Wells, former minister without portfolio, made this kind of a definitive statement on the same issue Monday and apparently this was the basis of Mr. Smallwood's statement Mr. Wells could not rejoin. Mr. Crosbie said today the same thing was implied in his reply to the premier's invitation to the meetng.

"My interpretation of the letter from Mr. Wells is that, in essence, it is similar to my own," Mr. Crosbie said.

"In my view, Mr. Wells should be entitled to attend the Grand Falls meeting. However, I cannot see any useful purpose being served by my not attending this meeting because of this decision by the premier."

Mr. Crosbie said he "will not support the present Liberal government in any way that conflicts with the principles that I have stood on. . . ."

NOT RETIRING YET

He thus crossed swords with the premier over convention matters even before the big meeting starts in the central Newfoundland newsprint town.

The premier, meanwhile, made it plain Tuesday night he plans to be around for most of 1969, although he is pledged to retire by the end of next year.

He told a television audience over a province-wide network he will spend the next 12 months leading a grassroots reorganization of the Liberal party beginning with the rally of 1,000 or more persons Saturday.

"This is the purpose of my life between now and next September," he said. ". . . Before I go I want to leave behind me a strong, powerful Liberal party. . . . I have a year in which to lead this movement. . . ."

He made no direct reference to the issue of attendance Saturday of Mr. Crosbie and Mr. Wells.

Thieves Drop Loot

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two men, one armed, fled Tuesday when accosted by a security guard and dropped $2,500 worth of property taken from the hotel room of P. A. Gaglardi, former British Columbia highways minister.

George Hearn, 38, said he questioned the men as they descended stairs in the Hotel Vancouver. One pulled a .22-calibre revolver and ordered him: "Stay there 10 minutes or I'll get you."

Mr. Gaglardi now is a minister without portfolio in Premier Bennett's Social Credit cabinet.

First Day on Job, Dog 'Noses' Suspect

CLOVERDALE (CP) — An old dog with a new trick has joined the fight against illegal drug traffic across the Canada-U.S. border, RCMP has announced. On his first day on the job, Dirk, a six-year-old German shepherd, sniffed out a marijuana cache in a U.S. car at the border at Cloverdale, about 25 miles south of Vancouver.

Frederick John Miller, 20, of Eureka, Calif., was later charged with possession of the drug.

Dirk, a veteran RCMP dog, got his nose for pot in a recently-completed intensive training class. He is the first marijuana-smelling dog to be used in the area by RCMP.

Private Bills Used as Spur To Get Government Action

OTTAWA (CP) — The New Democratic Party has again taken an early lead in introducing private members' bills in the Commons.

With the new parliamentary session seven days old, a total of 99 private bills have been introduced, 56 from the NDP.

Few if any will ever be passed—the average is about one a session.

But sponsors hope they will raise some public interest, and perhaps even be adopted by the government for action.

"They're only ideas," says Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming) who has put forward nine of the bills.

"I'm not expecting that they'll be passed but I hope they'll generate a certain amount of discussion."

Mr. Peters has introduced bills ranging from one that would drop a requirement of religious oaths in citizenship court to a measure that would permit reporters to refuse a court demand to name their news sources.

He also has a bill calling for adoption by Canada of the metric system. He says the meaure is designed to start discussion on a move that will have to come eventually.

Mr. Peters' nine bills put him second in output to NDP colleague Barry Mather (Surrey) who has 11 bills on the order paper.

They include renewal of Mr. Mather's efforts to curb cigarette advertising through three separate bills dealing with labelling and radio-TV advertising.

"The government is very hesitant to bring in legislation curbing advertising of cigarettes" Mr. Mather says.

"But they're studying it. I think they hope to convince the tobacco industry to cut out or cut down this type of advertising."

OTHERS BAN ADDS

He notes that both Britain and Italy have banned television cigarette ads for years.

Mr. Mather claims a partial victory on one of his private bills of last session, calling for mandatory breath-analysis tests for drinking drivers.

The bill was studied in committee and Mr. Mather wrote a report which was adopted by the committee and led to government legislation—still not passed—one the same lines.

"I can't claim entire credit but I feel the bill had some influence," Mr. Mather says.

Three hours a week is given over the debate on private bills for about the first four months of the session. From then on, debate is limited to two hours a week.

So far, none of the 99 bills has been printed and distributed. The Commons clerks office said the delay has been caused by translation holdups under a new procedure of printing the bills in both English and French.

BEAR STROLLS THROUGH TOWN

Witnesses said that after scaring a drunk "half to death" behind a hotel Saturday night, the bear sauntered across Arthur Street and nonchalantly ran through the glass door at a service station.

Collegiate student Jim Murray, the part-time attendant, quickly jumped onto the work bench and scrambled up into the nine-foot-high tire rack. Meanwhile the confused bear concentrated on finding the nearest exit, which eventually turned out to be the same way he had entered.

The bear made a wide right turn which brought him onto the front lawn of a funeral home. When police finally arrived minutes later they were told the bear had headed north towards Victoria Avenue, to bright lights and action.

PARKING LOT

He was last observed Saturday evening window shopping at Centennial Square.

Early Sunday he was observed in the parking lot at Fort William police station. Two constables ran out to nab him but he climbed over a high wire fence with the greatest of ease and disappeared in the vicinity of the Kam River.

Sex, Violence Alarms Vatican

VATICAN CITY (Reuters)—Increased sex and violence in the cinema are alarming the Vatican and have shaken traditional Roman Catholic guidelines on what movies young people can see.

This is reflected in new norms issued today by Italian bishops for classifying movies. The norms are due to come into force in January.

Updating is necessary because of the more subtle views on life and morals expressed in many new movies and because of today's sophisticated cinemagoers.

The new norms, issued by the executive of the Italian Bishops' Conference, stress that sex is not the only objectionable thing in movies. are movies on violence and agnosticism and those that present a "materialistic and hedonistic" view of life and go against the Christian concept of love and marriage, the bishop says.

CONDEMNED

For years, Italian Roman Catholics have had this classification to guide them—movies for all, for all with reservation for adults, for mature adults, for adults with reservation, advised against, and condemned.

The new norms are—movies for all, movies for viewers morally and culturally prepared, morally ambiguous movies requiring more knowing and responsible judgment by the viewer, and movies seriously objectionable to Roman Catholic faith and morals.

No Moment Wasted By New UN Chief

Fortunately his secretary was with him, and Arenales used the 20 minutes of delay to dictate a speech he was to deliver that night.

Friends tell the story to illustrate the energetic way he goes about his work. They say the same can be expected of him as president of the 23rd session of the UN General Assembly.

Formal election of Arenales to succeed Romanian Foreign Minister Corneliu Manescu as assembly president is scheduled for this afternoon. The election was arranged months ago by negotiation among UN members, as is the UN practice.

Arenales is a dapper, 46-year-old lawyer who has been associated with the United Nations almost since its birth. His earliest activities were with the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in 1946-47.

WENT INTO LAW

He was Guatemala's permanent representative at the United Nations in 1955-58. Then he left public service to practise law in Guatemala. He became foreign minister in 1966.

Friends say that in addition to a capacity for work — Arenales shows up at his office at 8 a.m. —he can turn on the charm for which Latin Americans are noted.

He is said to occupy a position at about centre in Guatemala's political picture. He has been in and out of government for more than 20 years, mostly in the international field, but has never sought public office.

Saanich Sewer Enterprise

QUESTIONS and ANSWERS

Q. Just what does the Saanich Sewer Enterprise By-Law do if it is approved on September 28?

A. It will combine all existing sewer areas into one Sewer Enterprise and levy an equal charge per parcel of land for debt requirements. It will provide for the defining of an area outside presently sewered areas which, in the opinion of Council, will be provided with sewers in 5 years. This present unsewered area will be subject to the annual per parcel tax even though certain oprtions of the area may not be sewered for 5 years. The By-Law will provide for an abatement for areas where a sewer tax has been levied, an abatement which will continue for as many years as the tax has been paid, or until the amount paid on principal of the debt has been rebated.

Yellow Scarf Top Prize

By PATRICIA CLOUGH

GUARENE (Reuters) — The lonely hearts business is flourishing—and Italy's matchmakers are planning to organize a European conference in 1969.

Wearing their uniform, the bright yellow scarf which grateful couples give them when they marry, the matchmakers of Baciale in North Italy held their first meeting in this town near Cuneo recently.

They agreed that, despite marriage bureaus, lonely hearts columns in magazines and fewer restrictions on young people, business is good, though different.

Once upon a time the matchmaker, usually a traveller who went from village to village buying and selling livestock, wine or fruit, would settle his client's problem of an unmarried daughter with "don't worry, I'll arrange it for her" and produce a prospective husband from another village.

PREFER CITY MEN

But now, northern country girls turn up their noses at peasants and go to the cities to look for a more exciting life and a wealthier husband.

So, the matchmakers go to the south of Italy to find country girls who do not mind living on the land and working hard, to come and marry lonely northern farmers.

Giuseppe Aimasso, 89, who claims to have arranged between 700 and 800 marriages which have produced more than 6,000 children and grandchildren, said he likes to check thoroughly whether the bridegroom's cattle are really his and whether the sacks in his granary are full of grain or earth.

Gino Chiarla of Piedmont said "once we collected information with discretion and tact."

Burglars Rob Trudeau Firm

MONTREAL (CP) — Burglars got away with more than $300,000 worth of stocks and bonds and $500 in cash from the offices of Trudeau Elliott Limited, which manages the financial affairs of Prime Minister Trudeau and his family, police disclosed Monday.

Most of the stocks and bonds were said to be negotiable.

Witchcraft Murders Increasing in India

By RAM SUNDAR
CP Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP) — A recent spurt in ritual crime is causing concern to the Indian government and private social welfare agencies.

During the last six months several gruesome murders attributed to superstitious beliefs have been reported from the provinces of Maharashtra, Madhya Pradesh, Assam, Orissa and Rajasthan. These have been mostly confined to tribal pockets where more than 90 per cent of the population is illiterate but, surprisingly, a number of ritual murders have also occurred in and around Bombay, India's most Westernized city.

Indian police currently are investigating a series of murders in Bombay attributed to a follower of a mystic cult. Raman Raghavan, the accused man, is alleged to have killed at least 20 persons within the last four years as "offerings" to Aiyanar, his village deity.

Raghavan, a native of Madras in southern India, was arrested in late summer following a manhunt by some 1,000 police detectives. He is being held in a strongroom at the headquarters of the Bombay provincial police pending a wide-ranging investigation into his antecedents.

Blamed on Cult

The general belief in Bombay is that Raghavan is no ordinary murderer. He did not kill any of his victims for profit. What is more, he selected only homeless people as his victims.

Raghavan's weapon was an iron rod with three sharp points. It resembled the "trishul" or trident carried by wandering Hindu monks as a protection against wild animals.

Did Raghavan act alone or is he a member of a cult dedicated to human sacrifice?

Two senior police officers have flown south to verify a report that the headquarters of Raghavan's mystic cult is located in a temple 50 miles from the town of Tiruchirapalli.

One report circulating here says the cult has a membership of 80 with branches in several parts of India, particularly in the tribal pockets of Maharashtra and Madhya Pradesh.

Raghavan is said to have boasted to the police that he set out from his southern hideout with the "ambition" to kill 101 persons and offer them to his god. The figure 101 has some religious significance among tribal communities.

How many persons did Raghavan kill in all? Estimates vary. According to press reports published here, he may have claimed more than 40 victims.

Killed Own Son

His activities caused terror in Bombay's suburbs. At one stage suburban residents were afraid to move out of their homes after dark. Schools closed early and markets became deserted by nightfall.

Six hundred miles from here, a ritual-murder trial has just concluded in the town of Jagdalpur in Madhya Pradesh province. A 45-year-old government official, Ram Bharose Sharma, was sentenced to life imprisonment on a charge of killing his own nine-year-old son to "propitiate" a jungle deity, the fearsome Dhanteshwari Devi of tribal legend.

Sharma and his wife told the court that they came under the influence of a tribal witch who managed to persuade them that the sacrifice of their son would bring them many hidden treasures.

Police said that the Sharma case is the first recorded instance in India of an educated person resorting to ritual human sacrifice.

Officials of the semi-government Central Social Welfare Board are planning a massive investigation into ritual crime in India's backward interior areas.

Board sources in New Delhi told this correspondent that "though there has undoubtedly been a sudden spurt in ritual crime in some areas, it is not true to say that this type of violence is becoming common."

Mania Blamed

They said that on average there are not more than a dozen ritual murders in India every year compared with the hundreds of such instances recorded nearly a quarter of a century ago. They attributed the improvement to the spread of education and the growing influence of Hindu and Christian religious missions.

Board officials said the mass murders committed in Bombay by Raman Raghavan are perhaps attributable to a "demented mind."

"It appears that Raghavan is as much a warped maniac as a follower of his mysterious religious cult," said one prominent social worker who has been operating in the tribal areas of central India for the last 30 years.

The weekly magazine Enlite published from the city of Baroda in Gujarat province reports that the Central Police Training Institute in Rajasthan province has begun a study of the relation between crime and superstition in India.

The journal says that "India's police are discovering more and more crimes linked with superstition." It says that the peasants are generally unwilling to report such crimes to the police or give evidence in courts when a case comes up.

The challenge before welfare officials is two-fold—to wean illiterate tribals away from superstitious beliefs and to convince them that it is safe for them to report ritual crimes to the government.

Fence Row Results In Murder

WINSLOW, Wash. (AP) — Authorities said a dispute over location of a property line touched off a chain of events near this Bainbridge Island community Sunday that left two men dead and a woman maimed.

Kitsap County coroner Donald Ireland said Arlis Yenne, 62, Bainbridge Island, apparently shot and killed a neighbor, Lloyd Lock, 33, and wounded Mr. Lock's wife, Gladys, 29, about mid-morning Sunday.

Shortly after that, Mr. Yenne died when an explosion ripped apart his car on a rural road near the Lock home. The coroner said Mr. Yenne apparently set off the explosion himself.

Undersheriff Glenn Pendarvis said Sunday night that Mr. Lock had called the sheriff's office the day before saying Mr. Yenne had threatened to get a gun in a dispute the two were having over the location of a fence between their adjoining properties.

Mosaic Seeks Delegates

The organizer of Mosiac, the independent high school newspaper which first appeared a year ago, is looking for representatives in local junior and senior secondary schools and private schools.

Allard Van Veen said an organizational meeting will be held in University of Victoria's Student Union Building at 7:30 p.m. tonight when editorial positions will be filled.

NDP to Hold 'Cuba Night'

Victoria NDP constituency association will hold a Cuba night in Sir James Douglas School's auditorium Friday at 8 p.m.

Dr. Harvey Richardson, unsuccessful NDP candidate in Esquimalt-Saanich during the June federal election, will present slides and tapes he took during his fourth visit to Cuba earlier this summer. A discussion on "The Socialist Countries in World Affairs" will follow.

Draft Dodger Facing Deportation Order

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Thomas Glenn Jolley, a North Carolina native who denounced his United States citizenship, may be deported as an alien. The question is to which country he would be sent.

The U.S. government contends that because Jolley, 24, gave up his citizenship at Toronto in 1967 to escape the military draft it was illegal for him to re-enter the country.

Joseph Monsanto of the U.S. immigration service, in asking for the deportation order, said Jolley "has shirked his responsibility" and shouldn't be allowed to remain in the United States.

The case, said Milton Milich, will set a precedent whatever the outcome. Milich was the federal inquiry officer presiding at the hearing.

Jolley's lawyer, Peter E. Rindskopf, argued that even if Jolley is judged to be an alien he has a right to remain because he is married to an American citizen.

DIDN'T REPORT

The government contends that Jolley had no right on any basis to return to the U.S. from Canada after his renunciation in May, 1967.

Selective Service records introduced showed that Jolley had twice been ordered to report for induction into the U.S. armed forces. A letter from Jolley to the Breman, Ga., draft board said he had renounced his citizenship "thus terminating all obligations to the United States."

Canada, Jolley said, would be his first choice, if deported. But government officials said it would be up to Canada to accept him.

An order could be issued asking him to leave the U.S. voluntarily within a 90-day period.

A decision will be rendered by the hearing officer which can be appealed to the board of immigration appeals and to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A charge of violating the Selective Service Act was dropped.

The immigration order was issued March 20, and Fred McClusky, an immigration agent, said:

"We charged that he went before the American consul in Canada May 16, 1967, and renounced his citizenship to the United States at Toronto.

"We charged that since that time, he re-entered the United States without a visa. Since then, we have lodged an additional charge against him that when he came back he was not admissable because he had departed the United States to avoid service to the armed forces."

URUGUAY EXPELS SOVIET DIPLOMAT

MONTEVIDEO (AP)—The Uruguayan government ordered Tuesday the expulsion of a top Soviet diplomat, along with two embassy administrative personnel. The order gave the three 48 hours to leave.

The public announcement gave no reason for the expulsion but a government informant said there is evidence the Russians were involved in the student-worker violence here.

The Russians were identified as Victor Glotov, the embassy counsellor, and two technicians, Anatol Lagygin and Georggy Matuikhin.

Presenting Cadillac for nineteen sixty-nine

GM

The craftsmen who engineer and build Cadillacs are accustomed to creating the finest cars, but they take special pride in these brilliant 1969 models.

A single glance at this automotive masterpiece reveals its striking poise and beauty. It is dramatically new, yet unmistakably Cadillac. For 1969, Cadillac's traditional dignity is complemented by youthful new styling that is unique in the luxury field.

New concepts in comfort and convenience.
The 1969 Cadillac is completely new inside, with major innovations in design, convenience and decor. A newly contoured "control center" instrument panel makes controls even more accessible, and virtually surrounds passengers with luxurious protection and convenience. And they'll ride refreshed on a unique Dual Comfort front seat, available on most models, that has one adjustment for the driver, and a separate one for front-seat passengers.

Cadillac's great 472 V-8 engine—the largest V-8 ever to power a production passenger car—is smoother, quieter and even more responsive. Never before has power been employed so efficiently in the operation of an automobile and its power-operated equipment.

Other mechanical refinements include new safety features and an exclusive "closed" engine cooling system. (It doesn't have to be opened to check the coolant level.) Front disc brakes are provided.

Your judgment is invited.
There are eleven different models of the 1969 Cadillac, more than is offered by any other luxury car manufacturer. Each is truly a masterpiece from the master craftsmen. Your authorized Cadillac dealer welcomes your personal inspection of this once-in-a-lifetime motor car. Drive one at your earliest opportunity.

Two More Flags to Drop British Influence

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa and Rhodesia are going to scrap their current flags—they look too British—and unfurl new ones soon.

The reasons in each case are largely political. But in both countries the switch is officially explained in lofty terms of national aspiration.

Rhodesia celebrates in November its third anniversary as a seceded British colony. A new flag is necessary, says Prime Minister Ian Smith, because the old one suggests subservience to Britain.

Similarly, in South Africa the proposed new flag is seen as a diversion for ardent Afrikaners who have been irked for years by the small Union Jack crosses on their flag. The business of selecting a new flag comes at a time when some far right-wingers in the governing Nationalist party have been grumbling about the leadership of Prime Minister Vorster.

The soon-to-be-retired flag has three horizontal stripes of orange, white and blue. Three small flags are grouped in the middle white stripe. These are the Union Jack cross designs and the flags of the two Boer republics that lost to the British, the Orange Free State and the South African Republic—now Transvaal province.

U.K. SMOKERS GAIN IN CIGARETTE WAR

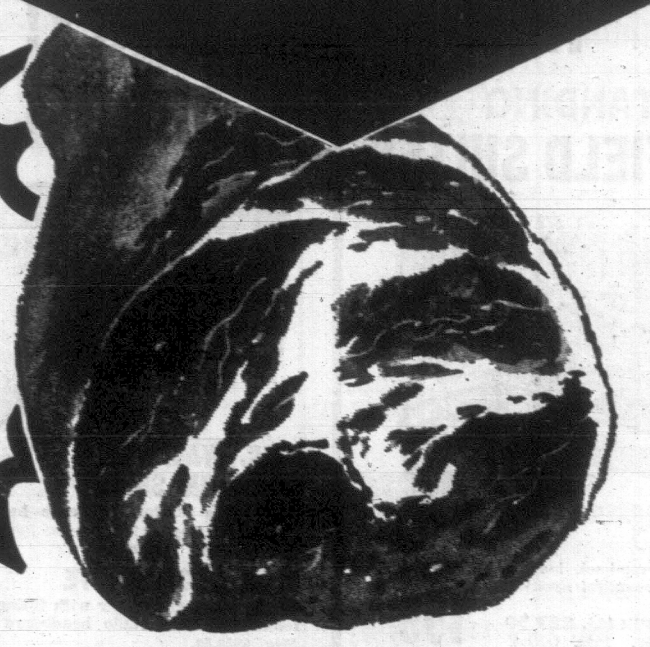

LONDON (Reuters) — British smokers, who pay 36 to 68 cents for a pack of 20 cigarettes, went on a spending spree Tuesday when supermarkets and other stores across the nation launched a price-cutting war.

The commercial battle produced cuts of up to six cents a pack.

But the price war is a blow to thousands of small storekeepers who cannot afford to reduce their prices as much as their bigger competitors.

Electric Heating in Britain On Way But It's Coming Slowly

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of Britons are getting free electric stoves and heating units as cities and towns switch from gas to electricity in certain prefabricated high-rise apartment blocks built of stacked concrete slabs without steel frames.

The apartments involved—about 3,000 in all — represent only a small portion of Britain's total high-rise dwellings but, as town councils have noted, the appliances switch is costly.

It results from the partial collapse May 16 of a 23-storey block at Ronan Point in east-end London. Five persons died in the collapse, which followed an explosion.

The full cause of this tragedy is still under investigation and a final report may not be made until next month.

But a tribunal, in an interim report, recommended that the gas be turned off in "dwellings where there are external load-bearing walls and lack of adequate continuity in jointing."

Two other neighboring blocks of similar construction are fully occupied, however, and the town council is building five more, but strengthened with steel straps at the joints.

MARKET GROWS

Both gas and electricity are used extensively in Britain for heating and cooking. The publicly-owned Gas Council was deeply concerned by the Ronan Point collapse.

But a council spokesman emphasized that public trust in that fuel remains high, construction being the basic Ronan Point issue.

"After all," he said, "we serve more than 12,000,000 consumers. The market loss caused by Ronan Point is only marginal and once these structures are strengthened we see no reason why gas cannot be resumed."

The gas market in Britain has been expanding at the rate of about 10 per cent a year.

Cost of producing electricity is high in this country, and many Britons prefer gas because it is cheaper.

An official of the Greater London Council said that body met with some resistance when it ordered removal of gas appliances and replacement with electrical units in certain of its subsidized blocks.

EQUIPMENT FREE

"We have 26 towers with 1,100 flats under our jurisdiction," the London council official said. "We have given tenants free electric cookers and will start now in distributing free electrical heating units."

Hugh Griffiths, chairman of the inquiry into the Ronan Point accident, said in his interim report that "we believe the immediate cause was a gas explosion."

But he added that "the collapse could be started by other causes—for example, accidental damage, settlement, other types of explosion."

Niall MacDermot, minister of state for housing and local government, said:

"What the tribunal . . . told us is that the damage at Ronan Point was occasioned by a gas explosion.

"That explosion not only caused severe damage in the flat where it happened, but because of the way in which the building is constructed, it caused the collapse of many flats above and below it."

The big problem and hazard with the Ronan Point structure was that the system of construction depended heavily on sheer gravity.

For example, a four-ton slab which made up the basic floor support of part of a flat would merely rest on a grooved ledge of a six-inch-thick concrete wall slab.

Part of that groove would be filled in with fresh concrete. If the outer wall were blasted by heavy pressure, the floor slab would slide into the one below, causing progressive collapse in the manner of a deck of cards.

When a municipal architect of Newham town council, which controls Ronan Point, was asked why steel frame or at least steel rods were not used in the concrete construction, he replied that this type of construction was too expensive.

Richard Johnson, chairman of the Thames Gas Board, said that "when the excitement (over Ronan Point) has died down and it is realized that all flats are going to be built to withstand normal hazards, there is no reason why we should not continue selling gas appliances on the same increasing scale as before."

Rare Coin Found

CALGARY (CP)—A rare silver coin struck by followers of the prophet Muhammed about 1,300 years ago has been found in a collection purchased by oilman Carl Nickle. The only other such coin known to be in existence is in the British Museum, the Nickle Foundation said.

9 IN MEMORIAM

PARK—In loving memory of a devoted husband, father and grandfather, Douglas Reginald Park, who passed away Sept. 25, 1960.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by his loving family.

TAHOUNEY—In loving memory of my dear husband, Herbert Tahouney, who passed away Sept. 25, 1965.
In Memory's Garden
Oft watered by tears
Sweet thoughts of you blossom
Through the dark, lonely years.
—His loving wife Sophie and family.

THOM — In treasured memory of George, a devoted husband, father and grandfather, taken suddenly from us September 25, 1964.
There is a loved one
we will always remember,
A voice we will always recall.
Of one who was dear to us all.
—Sadly missed by his wife Frances, daughter and son-in-law, Jeanie and Bob Chapman, and granddaughter Vicki.

TAHOUNEY—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather Herbert Tahouney, who passed away Sept. 25, 1965.
to blossom,
Bearing fruit for the years to come.
In the lives of those who loved you,
Precious memories of days
that are gone.

FOUR BEDROOMS
$20,500
If you are looking for a spacious family home near schools and shopping and one which your children will enjoy with its large fully fenced lot.

Do Look at this One,
This is an older very well cared for home. It is bright and airy with its large windows and high ceilings. The living room is spacious, complete with fireplace and with the lower half of the walls panelled. Two bedrooms are on the lower floor and two upstairs. The kitchen is a large one that can accommodate the whole family, and the sink and dish cupboards are in a separate pantry just off the kitchen. The utility room, also off the kitchen, is a large one and fully plumbed for washer and dryer. The full dry basement accommodates a modern automatic oil furnace, the wiring is new and the plumbing copper. It is well insulated and the heating costs are low. A really interested property that is well worth your further investigation.

STATE LIKES LIQUOR TAX AMENDMENT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A state liquor board member said Monday he is encouraged by a U.S. senate amendment to a customs bill that, if enacted by this session, will permit the state to regulate sales of duty free stores near the Canadian border to stem tax losses.

There are currently seven duty free and tax free liquor export stores operating on Washington's northern border. Canadian customs law permits an American to bring 40 ounces of duty free liquor into Canada.

Canadians can return with the same amount every four months if they were out of the country for 48 hours.

$1,675 Raised By Choir

The first was held in Memorial Arena Sept. 13; the second in Metropolitan United Church Sept. 15. The Welsh choir's visit to Victoria was sponsored by the 800 Pacific Wing RCAF Association.

Tonight at 8:30, in their Wilson Street headquarters, Ken Cutler, president of the Wing, will present a cheque for the amount to Fred Tanner, president, and Gordon Empey, treasurer, of the clinic.

"Both concerts were an outstanding success," Mr. Cutler said. "The choir said they really enjoyed their visit here and hope to return next year."

Refitted Ship Now on Trials; Men Retrained

HMCS St. Croix has been refitted and is undergoing trials before commencing work-ups on Oct. 14.

While the destroyer escort was in dockyard this summer, most of the ship's company underwent extensive trade and training courses as a large percentage of the crew is new to the ship.

Cmdr. J. M. Cumming is commanding officer of the ship. He is a specialist in navigation and his last sea-going appointment was as executive officer of HMCS Annapolis on the east coast.

BANK GUARDS WOMEN CHARGED IN BIG THEFT

PENTICTON (CP) — Royal Bank of Canada officials have placed a 24-hour guard on a home occupied by two women charged Tuesday in connection with the disappearance of $492,000.

The women, bank employee Kathleen Spiller, 26, and Frances (Bambi) Shubin, 41, a bookkeeper, appeared in court Tuesday and were remanded to October 1 on $10,000 bail each.

Miss Spiller, a Royal Bank clerk for five years, was charged with falsifying bank records and theft over $50. Miss Shubin, bookkeeper for Oliver Industries, Ltd., was charged with theft over $50.

The two women shared a recently renovated home in the exclusive resort area of Naramata, about eight miles north of this Okanagan Valley city.

Defensive Role For Soviet Navy?

By DONALD M. McNICOLL

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet navy may have switched to a defensive rather than an aggressive role, the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships suggests.

In a foreword to the 1968-69 issue of this standard work of reference on the world's navies published today, veteran editor Raymond V. B. Blackman says:

"The Soviet navy has reached out to all the oceans of the world and at first sight appears to be poised for control of all ingress and egress about narrow waters."

Blackman noted that the Soviet Union now has 55 nuclear powered submarines, 325 conventional submarines, 25 cruisers, 100 destroyers and hundreds of other warships.

But he added: "There is believed to be a subtlety about the Soviet ever-widening sea ripple which is not generally appreciated by those laymen whose pulses of alarm never fail to be stirred by propagandists who build up the sea power of the U.S.S.R. as a threat."

"A study of Soviet warships and the weapons carried in them, together with an examination of where they are deployed, would now appear to indicate that Soviet maritime strategy is defence or containing, rather than provoking or aggressive," he said.

"Most recent Soviet warships were apparently designed for a self-sufficient limited role of being able to reply to any attack made on them rather than to pose an attitude of strike action."

Blackman, however, warned against ignoring the increase in the size of the Soviet navy and its formidable penetration of the Mediterranean and concentration in the Far East and elsewhere.

He also said the United States could effectively protect itself and its allies against the Chinese missile threat by building a few relatively inexpensive nuclear-powered anti-missile

The Pentagon was reported last year to have begun a study of whether such ships should be built in a project designated SABMIS—for sea-based anti-ballistic missile intercept system. No decision has been announced.

Blackman writes:

"The SABMIS concept provides for tracking-missile ships which could be deployed to intercept enemy ICBMs early in their flight before multiple warheads and penetration decoys break away from the launching rocket.

"Thus, a sea-based ABM—anti-ballistic missile—would have one target per enemy ICBM whereas a land-based ABM system in the target area would have to cope with several re-entry packages for every enemy missile which is fired.

Jane's is a private publication which draws its information from many private and official sources. In addition, it has its own correspondents in various parts of the world.

HOME GARDEN

How to Winter Fuchsias

By HILDA BEASTALL

Because fuchsias are such lovely summer flowers and they grow so well here, gardeners are apt to buy them without thinking how they will care for them during winter.

Hilda

When not prepared to look after them for the long dormant period, a gardener would do better to discard them each fall and buy new small plants each spring.

However, the calls continue to come in, asking for advice.

In most gardens there exists a corner which receives very little cold winter wind and seldom frost, and there lies the easiest way to keep fuchsias.

With the possible exception of a few more tender hybrids, fuchsias will survive outdoors if heeled into well drained soil with some of it drawn around the lower six inches of stem to protect growth buds needed to make next year's plant.

Sand can be used for this hilling around the stem.

Wait until leaves fall from the fuchsia, then cut back the branches to about one foot.

If the winter weather should become severe, add some twiggy boughs of evergreen around each plant for further protection, and even sacking or matting over that for a night or two if needed.

Alternately, fuchsias may be wintered under cover indoors, but, temperatures must be cool (about 40 to 50 deg. F.), light must be good after March as growth begins, and watering needs the most careful judgment.

Few homes today have suitable conditions for wintering fuchsias — this is an unfortunate fact. Yet garderners could, if they wished, construct a suitable shelter at a few dollars expense which would serve many plant storage purposes.

A walk-in coldframe attached to the house preferably on the east or south side, opening from the house or basement, with glass on sides and top, would fill the need for winter storage space for many desirable plants.

YOUR HEALTH

Migrane Caused By Foods?

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Recently a physician reported what had been known for many years—foods can produce attacks of migraine. What generally hasn't been known is commonly if a physician asks a woman if she knows some foods can cause her headaches, she will say, "Oh, yes: I know if I eat much chocolate or drink much milk or eat one or two other foods, I can get a headache. But long ago I quit eating the harmful foods, and still I get my headaches."

Alvarez

During my 25 years at the Mayo Clinic I must have seen some two or three thousand women with migraine; I studied their problem with great care, and rarely was I able to help one of them with diet alone. In fact, I can remember only one woman who I cured of very severe and frequent headaches in this way. When I heard she was extremely sensitive to milk, and knowing there is often milk in bread, I asked her if she ate bread, and she said she did. I then asked a cook—a patient of mine—to bake her a loaf of bread without milk, and with that she was immediately freed of her headaches.

For all my long life, I have had a tendency to migraine, but like most men, I get only the scotoma, or blind spot with a bright zigzag line which goes away in 20 minutes. I am tremendously sensitive to chicken fat and to chocolate, but years ago, before I learned to leave those two foods alone, neither of them ever gave me a migrainous attack.

During a long medical life, during which time I must have seen many hundreds of paitents with gallstones, I have had little patience with the statement found in most textbooks and articles that the person with a gallstone must never touch fats. For year, I kept asking doctors, "Why no fats?" And they said, "Because bile helps to digest fats."

But as I said, even when the gallbladder is so packed full of stones it has no function, still the bile that is constantly coming out of the liver, where it is formed, goes down a tube into the bowel. The main difference is it is not concentrated in the gallbladder. That such concentration is not needed is shown by the fact many and many a person without a functioning gallbladder has the "digestion of an ostrich."

I myself have had gallstones for most of my life, and so far they have never bothered me in any way. Oftentimes I remind my medical friend he is not logical, because while he insists all his patients with gallstones eat no fats—even when they can eat with comfort all the fats they want—after a surgeon has removed the gallbladder, he does not care what the person eats.

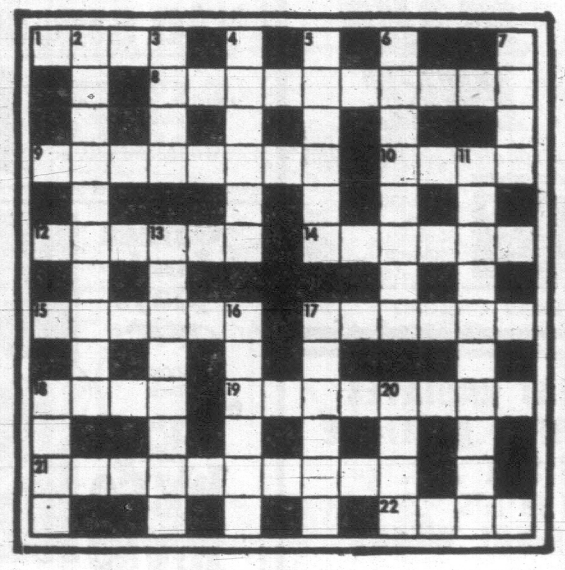

Then perhaps my friend will say, "A fatless diet may keep more stones from forming." But then I remind him there is no proof of this; and besides, in hundreds of cases the gallbladder is so completely filled with stones one could not squeeze another one in. Then, perhaps, the doctor falls back on the old argument commonly used to justify any silly medical behavior; "There must be some good reason for this diet, because it is to be found listed in all the books." But many a writer copies what he finds in an old book into his new one.

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Ottawa Celebrated Victory by Borden

By BOB BOWMAN

When Pierre Elliot Trudeau was elected leader of the Liberal party early this year there was a celebration that looked more like a Grey Cup victory than the windup of a political convention. Ottawa hadn't seen anything like it since Sir Robert Borden defeated Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the "reciprocity election" of 1911.

A few months before the election a Conservative victory seemed to be impossible. Sir Robert Borden was so discouraged that he wanted to resign as leader of the party, but was persuaded to stay on. Laurier's strong card was a reciprocal trade deal with the U.S., something that many Canadians had wanted for years. It looked as though Laurier would sweep the country again, and he had been prime minister since 1896.

Suddenly the trend changed. Some leading American politicians and newspapers began predicting that reciprocity would lead to Canada being annexed by the U.S. Champ Clark, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, said "We are preparing to annex Canada."

That was enough ammunition for Borden and the Conservatives. They were supported by the CPR and other powerful Canadian industries that wanted trade to move between east and west, not north and south. Some leading Liberals refused to support their own party. One of them was Sir Clifford Sifton who owned the Winnipeg Free Press, yet the Free Press continued to support Laurier and the reciprocal trade deal.

Before the election the Liberals had 133 seats, and the Conservatives 86. When the votes were counted, the position was exactly reversed: Conservatives 133 and Liberals 86. Borden had performed a miracle! He had been in his constituency in Nova Scotia on election day, but returned to Ottawa on Sept. 25. His supporters staged a celebration that was not emulated until Trudeau's victory this year. Borden rode through the streets of Ottawa in an open carriage with leading Conservatives acting as the horses. He served as prime minister until the end of the world war.

Other events on Sept. 25:

1726 — Acadians took oath of allegiance to Britain with proviso that they would not have to fight against France.

1872 — Interoceanic Company was organized to build CPR.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Mary Edith Lowery, aged 13, of Sandston, Virginia, for her question:

What exactly are pulsars?

We ordinary space-agers do not pooh-pooh the notion of radio contact with other worlds. Neither do the expert astrophycists. However, early this year the introduction of the first pulsar somewhat stunned us all. Its strange radio pulses just might be intelligent signals from beings on some remote alien world—or so it seemed.

The first pulsar was discovered almost by accident. Astrophysicists in Cambridge, England, built a special radio telescope to capture fast bursts of radio energy from celestial sources. The rectangular dish is a grid of 16 rows, each made of 128 special copper rods. It measures 470 metres from east to west and 40 metres from north to south. Its original purpose was to filter out interferences from the solar wind and from interplanetery plasma. Operations began in July, 1967, and very soon the new radio telescope made an astonishing discovery. It traced a repeating short-short pattern of radio bursts from a fixed spot in the heavens. This was a brand-new type of celestial phenomenon.

The first excitement was followed up with more tests and checks. No doubt about it. The regular radio signals were coming at 1⅓ second intervals day after day, month after month. The source of the pulsing energy was estimated to be around 100 parsecs—closer to us than Polaris. In January of 1968, this newly discovered type of celestial object was introduced to the world as a pulsar.

And the everyday world was agog. Those short pulses of radio energy are far more interesting than repeated up and down peaks on a graph. Each brief pattern jerks and jogs with amazing variations of frequncies and intensities. The details are checked and charted in milliseconds, or units of 1,000 parts of a second. The impossibly short pulses plus their infinite variation caused even the experts to wonder whether the pulsar was sending intelligent radio signals across the universe.

Many Theories

Such excitement sent worldwide astronomers in search of more evidence. Two more pulsars pulsing at similar intervals were located in our part of the Galaxy. Another with a pulse rate of one-quarter second was located. The excitement has not died down—far from it. But astrophysicists now take the view that pulsars are natural cosmic events, unrelated to signals from intelligent beings. They are busy gathering evidence to discover what kind of celestial object can possibly emit such short, rhythmical radio pulses. At present, a half dozen or so likely theories have been suggested. But nobody knows for certain.

Most experts suspect that the strange radio emissions comes from either very ancient white dwarf stars or from nucleon stars that could be debris of supernova explosions. Every effort is being made to measure and pinpoint these invisible cosmic radio stations. The dimensions of CP 1919, the first pulsar to be introduced to our star-gazing world, are estimated to be at least as small as the planet Mercury. However, the busy little body may contain almost as much matter as our massive sun.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Rosemarie Darychuk, age 13, of Grand Forks, B.C., for her question:

How did the Nobel Prizes originate?

These world-famous prizes are awarded because an inventor had a world-wide idea about his invention. He was Alfred Nobel, born in Sweden in the year 1833. In 1867 he invented dynamite. This explosive mixture of chemicals astonished mankind and also shocked Alfred Nobel himself. Like many others, he saw the damage his dynamite could do if armies used it in warfare. Dynamite, of course, is a wonderful worksaver on construction jobs and it has many worthwhile uses. But its explosive nature makes it hard to handle and it can be devastagingly dangerous. Nobel knew this. He had the idea that his invention was such a dangerous weapon that no country would dare to use it.

We know now that Nobel was wrong in this idea. A new and deadly weapon does not stop people from making war. Far from it. But Nobel thought, or hoped, that future scientific projects in chemistry, physics and other sciences would turn men's minds from war. For this reason he willed his fortune to a yearly program of prizes for persons who make outstanding contributions in these fields.

Julie Andrews Discards Mary Poppins' Image

PARIS (Reuters) — British movie actress Julie Andrews is moving further away from the wholesome image which brought her fame in Mary Poppins and The Sound of Music.

In her latest movie, Darling Lili, now being shot in Paris, she plays Lili Smith, a fictitious London singing star during the First World War who turns out to be a German spy.

In one scene, she and a truckload of soldiers sing the bawdy song of the period, Mademoiselle from Armentieres, and in another she tries to seduce co-star Rock Hudson to obtain war secrets.

JULIE
. . . German spy

Although Miss Andrews is probably best known for her clean-cut, healthy roles in movies, she also has played parts which have shown another side of her talents.

She was sexy and witty in a non-speaking role in The Americanization of Emily and recently played the glamorous, temperamental Gertrude Lawrence in Star.

SCENE CHANGES

Darling Lili, directed by Blake Edwards, has been shot in Ireland, Belgium and France. The company will move to Hollywood later for more filming.

One of the main settings in the movie is the facade of the Paris home of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. Their mansion on the edge of the Bois de Boulogne is shown as Lili's Paris home and the drive leading to it one of the centres of the high life of 1914 Paris.

Miss Andrews, born at Walton-on-Thames, near London, 33 years ago, became a hit on Broadway in the early 1950s as the dizzy flapper Polly Brown in Sandy Wilson's musical spoof of the 1920s The Boy Friend.

She followed this with a spectacular success as Eliza Doolittle in My Fair Lady.

Logger Killed

PENTICTON (CP) — Edward Thomas Klinosky, 20, of Greenwood, was killed Tuesday when hit by a falling tree. Police said the accident occurred about 50 miles east of here, where Klinosky was working in the bush for Cox Contractors Ltd. of Greenwood.

FIGHTS BREAK OUT AT PRO-CASTRO PLAY

NOW YORK (UPI) — Fights broke out between police and Cuban demonstrators Tuesday night as the audience emerged from the Henry Miller Theatre after viewing the pro-Castro play, "The Cuban Thing."

At least four persons were arrested.

As the audience came on to the sidewalk one demonstrator across the street shouted loudly at a policeman, then tried to charge the barricade.

Three others joined him and fights broke out between the 60 patrolmen and 40 demonstrators on the scene.

New Boats Said Eligible For Licences

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salmon fishermen currently building vessels should have no difficulty in obtaining licences for their craft, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Monday.

"If the owner can provide tangible evidence that construction was going on at the time, he stands a very good chance of having his licence approved," he said.

The minister said a permanent appeals board will be set up to handle fishing regulations so that fishermen may seek individual rulings on the licensing of their boats.

The board will decide on the status of boats now under construction by examining the owner's bank credits, building invoices and other matters before ruling on whether the boats should be licensed, the minister said.

Under new regulations, salmon boats must be licensed before they can be used for commercial fishing. The purpose of the regulations is to establish a moratorium on the number of boats in service.

Ottawa Efficienc Studied

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal statisticians hope to be able within a few years to measure how efficiently civil servants do their jobs and how much the government produces.

For years, statisticians have been able to measure the real output of the commercial economy, and draw up indexes which show gains or losses in productivity.

But many agencies and departments of the federal, provincial and municipal governments produce services which are impossible to measure.

Governments—and taxpayers—know what governments cost. But no one has been able to say what the output of government is worth.

The problem has been tackled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, working with several universities, municipal authorities, and the federal and Ontario treasury boards.

Writing in the latest issue of the Canadian Statistical Review, W. B. Bolton, director of the governments division of DBS, says:

"There is hope that within the next few years DBS will be able to formulate some standards of performance—units of work or such—which might permit some measuring of productivity in the government area."

MUST SET CRITERIA

What the statisticians hope to do is relate expenditures to the level of services provided, and so determine the administrative efficiency of government. This involves identifying all the programs of government, setting performance criteria for each, and then determine the efficiency of operations.

"The setting of performance criteria or work measurement standards is not an easy task, and relatively few such measures exist at present within government," Mr. Bolton writes.

"Apart from the necessity of making sure the work can be reduced to countable units, and that the work measure is valid for making budget projections, there must be a general agreement that the standard is fair."

J. L. Pickard, deputy treasurer of Metropolitan Toronto, has pointed to some of the difficulties. Work units must be countable, reflect work effort, be consistent, and be expressed in simple, familiar terminology.

How, for instance, can the output of the Bank of Canada be measured in assuring monetary stability? Or the food and drug directorate in policing the safety of medicines? Or the National Gallery in preserving and generating interest in art treasures?

The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities has commissioned a study of data on the range and cost of physical services. Professor Vladimir Salyzin of the University of Alberta has so far made only a preliminary report to the mayors.

The treasury boards of the federal and Ontario governments are developing standards of measurement for use within their governments.

NEW PILL BEATS HANGOVER

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The possibility that researchers may soon develop a pill to prevent drunkenness, sober you up or cure hangovers was raised by a Swedish researcher at the 28th International Congress on Alcohol and Alcoholism here.

Dr. Leonard Goldberg, chief of research on alcoholism and drugs at the Karolinska Institute, said such qualities seem to be found in the common tranquillizer librium (chlordiazepoxide).

Goldberg said this was the only tranquillizer that seemed to help prevent drunkenness while all the others increased the effect.

He based his conclusions on tests involving more than 1,000 human volunteers who were given five ounces of liquor and then tested for sobriety. The tests involved such things as talking and physical co-ordination.

Those given librium, a prescription drug, experienced no alcoholic effects.

Goldberg also found that the drug cures hangovers and sobers up drinkers twice as fast as coffee or other home remedies.

However, Goldberg felt that further research is needed to determine if the mixture of drugs and alcohol is harmful.

THIRD IN LENGTH

The Rio Grande is the United States' third longest river. It falls behind the Mississippi and the Missouri.

GIRLS LOOK, TOO

VANCOUVER (CP) — Those strip-tease shows at summer exhibitions across Canada—aimed at the red-blooded Canadian male—often attract audiences half composed of women, promoters claim.

Women at a show entitled Bonnie Clyde and her 38s, which recently ended a two-week run at the Pacific National Exhibition, when asked why they went, replied "to see if they've got anything we haven't" or "to see what the men see in it."

But the strippers have another theory: In every housewife lurks a secret desire to be a seductive, slinky belly-dancer, a la Little Egypt.

"After the show I've seen them in the washroom, trying out a few bumps and grinds in front of the mirror—they looked all embarrassed when they saw me," says Jennie Lea, a statuesque redhead.

Another stripper, a blonde who gives her name only as Marilyn, tells the housewives: "Don't worry, lady, I only get to boil the water—you get to brew the tea."

"It's a job," says Marilyn, who is working her way through college. Education costs money, she says, claiming that being a stripper has fewer hazards than being a waitress, a job many college girls take during the summer.

"Up here we're away out of reach," says Marilyn, explaining that girls who wait on table are much more liable to be pinched than strippers on a runway.

ISLAND HISTORY

Help Asked To Uncover First Women

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forty years ago, the Women's Canadian Club of Victoria sponsored and published The Pioneer Women of Vancouver Island, 1843-1866. The book was written by N. de Bertrand Lugrin and edited by John Hosie, then provincial librarian and archivist. It was a limited edition. Today each copy is a collector's item eagerly sought and carefully preserved.

Forbes

In the introductory chapter, the author wrote: "The composite story of the pioneer women of this last west is a plain one. It has to do with the great issue of loving and mating, of birth and death and the struggle for existence under terrible odds."

★ ★ ★

It was more than a story, she said. It held all the drama of the changing seasons, fur-trader's ships, cabins in clearings and the woman's love for her mate and her children.

This last was "very primitive but the truest thing in the world, and the one fact responsible for the birth of a nation."

In the foreward it was pointed out that because of a certain time period (1843 to 1866), it was impossible to include in the book all women who had played a prominent part in the growth of Vancouver Island.

Because of these omissions "a second volume is under consideration." That was in 1928.

On several occasions since then, the Victoria Women's Canadian Club has considered producing that second volume. Rising costs of printing and publishing always kept a cautious hand on recurring discussions.

This year, however, still mindful of that long-ago promise, it was decided to at least prepare a manuscript for a second edition. Then, if the manuscript met qualifications, to consider ways of publishing it.

Willard Ireland, now provincial archivist and librarian, has consented to act in an advisory capacity. I have been authorized (with the assistance of a small committee) to prepare the manuscript.

One of our first steps in this ambitious project is to ask you, the readers of this newspaper, to give me names of women you think contributed much to our pioneer growth.

They must have lived and worked within the time period of 1866 to the turn of the century. They will include women of the church, women who were early leaders in education, music, nursing and in business and professions, women of the farms and women in more urban areas.

We hope to hear from descendants of such women who can tell us something of their life stories. Also from those who will direct us toward such descendants.

We do have some names now but we are eager to hear of more. You can help to make this manuscript a warm and vital word picture of those who lived and worked back down the years.

There is only one thing to remember. Because you offer me the name of a pioneer woman for consideration does not mean that name will automatically be included in the manuscript. As in the case of the first edition, a selection will be made.

★ ★ ★

We are looking not only for women of southern Vancouver Island, but also of Comox, Nanaimo, Cowichan and of the nearby islands.

Going back to the introductory chapter in the first book, the author pointed out that in nearly all histories of exploration and development of the Pacific Northwest, man has played the title role. Women appear with "little frequency."

The Victoria Women's Canadian Club is eager that the new manuscript continue the story of pioneer women from where the Lugrin edition ended. For it is as true today as it was in 1928 that while the history of a country may be written from the lives of men, it is "from lives of the women we learn best of a nation's soul."

Transit Cost High

EDMONTON (CP)—A special committee reported to city council Tuesday that the cost of a proposed rapid transit system here will be about $47,500,000. The committee said more than 8,000,000 persons would use it each year, at 25 cents a ride. It's scheduled for completion by 1978.

Quebec to Guard Minority Rights

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Daniel Johnson said Quebec will proceed to make French the working language but also would protect minority English rights.

He said at a press conference today the province wants "to encourage all Quebecers to acquire a working knowledge of the prevailing language."

He also said Quebec did recommend to Ottawa a republic form of government "but this is a working document, not the official position of the province.

"We cannot permit rights as important as language rights to be manipulated by local bodies such as school boards," he said at a press conference.

The premier had been asked about the situation in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard, where the local school board has decided to replace present bilingual classes in elementary school with classes in French only.

He said language rights are too important to be changed by a local vote, but it is equally important that the French-speaking majority "does not allow itself to be assimilated."

"We would be stupid to spend $1,000,000,000 a year to educate students in French and not to take steps to insure that they can work in French.

"It is absolutely necessary that Quebec be as French . . . as Ontario is, and will remain, English."

It was the premier's first public statement since his return last week from Bermuda, where he had been resting following a mild heart attack he suffered here July 3.

After arriving in Montreal he spent a few days with his family and returned to his legislature office Tuesday.

Mr. Johnson leaves Oct. 11 for a five-day visit to Paris and talks with French President de Gaulle, a trip which is expected to increase the strain on relations between Paris and Ottawa.

PLAN BIG RECEPTION

Paris spokesmen say he will receive the full red carpet treatment usually reserved for a visiting head of government, including a state dinner at the Grand Trianon Palace in Versailles.

The trip, originally to have been made in July, was postponed because of the premier's heart attack.

Mr. Johnson is to leave Paris Oct. 16 and return to Quebec in time for the legislature session which resumes Oct. 22.

The premier said his Paris talks will be aimed at giving "vigor and scope" to the France-Quebec educational and cultural exchange agreement of 1965, but he declined to go into details.

French investment in Quebec would be welcomed, because "French investment brings French technology."

Asked about Prime Minister Trudeau's accusation that France had sent an "agent," government official Philippe Rossillon, to "agitate" among the French-speaking people of Manitoba, Mr. Johnson said he thinks the incident was "greatly exaggerated."

The Rossillon visit to Manitoba "does not seem as serious" as the prime minister had presented it.

WILL BE NO DIFFERENCE

On the language issue, Mr. Johnson said immigrants "here now or arriving in Quebec" will be treated on the same basis as other Quebecers insofar as language rights are concerned.

"We do not want to have any second class citizens."

He made the statement in reference to the conflict in St. Leonard, where nearly half the population is of Italian origin and has been insisting on English-language classes.

Mr. Johnson said Quebec's language policy will be drafted after the government receives a report from a commission investigating school boards on the Island of Montreal.

The report was expected Oct. 12 or 13.

The premier noted that language problems have arisen on both sides of the fence.

On many occasions before 1960, he had urged Protestant school boards to provide classes in French for French-speaking Protestants, a minority in Quebec's Protestant system

In the St. Leonard case, the Roman Catholic board was denying classes in English to English-speaking Catholics, another minority.

Mr. Johnson refused to be pinned down on whether government action is planned in the St. Leonard case. He said the government is awaiting the report of its commission before making any decisions.

Mr. Johnson said his government will see to it that linguistic rights are incorporated in a Quebec constitution and that they will not be subject to change by a single school board or other similar body.

Quebec was not going to allow its minority to suffer what French-Canadians had suffered in other parts of Canada for years.

A person would have to be childish or to be dreaming in color to believe that one law would advance the use of French in business or industry. Great progress was being made in the use of French in many large industries and this would continue to be encouraged.

The premier said he does not believe in legislation that would force people to use a certain language in business. If some Chinese wished to open a business in Montreal they should not be compelled by law to speak French among themselves. If they wished to do business among Chinese they should be able to speak Chinese. If they wanted to do business with French-Canadians, then they would learn French.

Threats Received In Mail

TORONTO (CP) — A warning that the terror campaign against them will continue was delivered through the mails today to 13 executives connected with the Hawker Siddeley industrial empire, whose homes and property were bombed early Tuesday.

Arriving in plain envelopes, the warnings were contained in stencilled messages which read: "You have been judged guilty of active complicity and our aim is to continue the campaign against you until you desist."

Chief James Mackey said all but one of the 13 messages were mailed Tuesday in Toronto and postmarked 11 a.m. Another was postmarked 1:30 p.m.

NOW 13 DOMBED

Earlier Wednesday, police, who had at first thought only 10 executives' homes were bombed, raised the figure to 13 after three more executives found evidence Tuesday night that bombs had gone off near their homes.

A police spokesman said today:

"We raised the number last night after three more went out and found the remains of bombs on their lawns.

"I guess they heard noises Tuesday morning but didn't pay any attention until they heard about the other bombings. And those things were hard to find unless you look in the right place. We had trouble ourselves."

The latest discoveries were made by Frank A. Stanley and Alex J. McIntosh, de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Ltd. directors, and Phil Garratt, former managing director.

Mr. McIntosh found the remains of a bomb in bushes outside his home after hearing reports of the other bombings. His wife said a noise woke her about 4 a.m. Tuesday, but she thought it was the furnace and went back to sleep.

Mr. McIntosh said he is curious about how the bombers got the addresses of the directors.

"There are only about 20 shareholders in Canada, and an-

By United Press International

The Soviet Union today accused Israel of "dangerous provocations" against Arab countries that could lead to "serious consequences"

In London, Egyptian Foreign Minsiter Mahmoud Riad said "a new outbreak can be expected in the Middle East at any time."

In Rome, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Israel wants a stable Middle East peace. He said he intends to talk to UN Middle East envoy Gunnar Jarring next week in an effort to set up peace talks with the Arabs.

Israeli and Jordanian border units today exchanged gunfire for the 19th time this month, according to a Jordanian report. It said no casualties were reported from the 30-minute fight across the Jordan River near Um Ashshurat.

●

In Cairo, the newspaper Al Gomhouria played up the potential war situation saying "Israel is paving the way for new agression by lodging a complaint with the United Nations Security Council."

Riad conferred with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson en route to the United Nations, where he is expected to lead a vigorous Arab diplomatic thrust against Israel.

All Signs Are Pointing To New Image for Bennett

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Signs emerged today that an effort at a massive change in image of Premier Bennett's administration is under way to tone down the materialistic aspects in favor of cultural progress.

Some comments by Mr. Bennett and a speech by Resources Minister Ray Williston called up a vision of British Columbians enjoying a smog-free Sunday drive through preserved natural beauty and stopping at an inn for a Sunday dinner treat—complete with a glass of wine.

For the kids in school, there will be more books in the libraries and a more humanistic education to avoid developing technological Philistines.

Both men suggested the emphasis of future government activity will shift to a new direction aimed at the finer and more pleasant things of an affluent life.

Mr. Bennett, queried here about Coquitlam school board complaints that a money squeeze forced it to institute a shift system, replied this morning that he has sent out word that "if more (money) is needed I have stated as minister of finance I will provide it."

He recalled his announcement earlier this week that another $8 million in borrowings for school construction will be allocated to various school boards and insisted the new money will not be restricted solely to narrowly-defined "essential" classrooms.

FOR LIBRARIES

"For (school) libraries? Yes," he replied to a question but declined to detail any other amenities the government would exempt from its current strict interpretation of what constitutes "essential" classrooms.

Library rooms, activity rooms, gymnasiums, assembly halls and some kinds of administration offices have virtually been banned from school board construction programs around the province by the education department bringing an outcry for months by trustees and citizen groups.

Inadvertently or deliberately, his reaction to rumors that he is on the verge of announcing a new liquor policy permitting Sunday drinking in the province's hotels and dining rooms for the first time since prohibition days only intensified the speculation.

SKIPPED LECTURE

A tee-totaller who normally expresses abhorence for the idea of Sunday drinking, Mr. Bennett skipped his usual good-humored lecture about the evils of drink and with a sober expression said only:

"When the premier has a policy to announce, he will announce it."

Reminded of his usual response and asked if his reply today was a hint of a change, he would only repeat "when the premier has a policy to announce, he will announce it."

TROOP withdrawals from Vietnam will not be made by the U.S. "either by next June or at any time in the foreseeable future," Defence Secretary Clark M. Clifford said today, following an assertion by Melvin Laird (Rep.—Wis.) in Seattle that forces would likely drop 90,000 by June.

ISTANBUL (Reuters) — Thousands of homes were destroyed in a sharp earthquake which rocked eastern Anatolia Tuesday, reports reaching the capital said today.

REDUCTION of NATO military strength in Europe is out of the question, unless the Soviet Union withdraws its troops from Czechoslovakia, West German Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger said today in a major foreign policy address reopening the Bundestag Parliament.

Surrey Association Censures Driediger

SURREY (CP) — The Surrey Social Credit Constituency Association Tuesday night passed a motion of non-confidence in George Driediger, president of the British Columbia Social Credit League.

The vote was 17 to 3 with six abstentions. Mr. Driediger, at the meeting, began to defend his position, then withdrew, saying he'd fight the motion at the provincial convention Nov. 1-2.

Dan Lengert, president of the local association, whose executive approved the motion last week, opened fire by saying there had been a substantial drop in membership and he'd been unable to get figures.

"Danny, what are you doing to our organization?" Mr. Driediger called from the rear of the hall. One member then complained that Mr. Driediger had no right to insult the chair at the meeting.

At one stage, Mr. Driediger was heard to say: "It's no wonder we did not win this constiuency." The seat was won in 1966 by Ernest Hall, provincial secretary of the New Democratic Party.

'WAY, WAY UP'

Mr. Driediger said membership is "way, way up" from when he took office.

If it had dropped since the last election it was because "some of the members who were signed up to pack nominating meetings have let their memberships lapse."

DRIEDIGER . . . 'what are you doing?'

He said figures could not be made public but the books are open to the constituency organization. Countered Mr. Lengert: "If I can get the membership, why not tell us tonight?"

Mr. Lengert said officials have claimed Mr. Driediger interfered in their organization.

RICHTER WANTS TIME TO CONSIDER BIDDING

Mines Minister Frank Richter today said he will sleep on Tuesday's spectacular rush for previously-unwanted oil and gas exploration rights before deciding whether the successful applications would be accepted.

He told reporters his delay in confirming the dispositions did not involve any fears that any laws were broken but centred on the worry a bad impression in the public mind had been created.

Mr. Richter, after preliminary consultation with his department officials, said he had not found any reason yet to withhold confirmation but intended to study the matter intensively for at least another day to consider all the "unusual" aspects before setting any precedent.

HIGHER TAXES INDICATED AS OTTAWA SPENDING UP

OTTAWA (CP)— The government presented Parliament today with a revised spending bill for the current fiscal year, including medical care insurance and old age pensions, totalling a record $12,251,930,598.

Despite budget trimming in nearly all branches, the total amount is three per cent more than the $11,865,732,032 included in the original 1968-69 spending estimates, tabled last February.

The estimates are for the fiscal year that began last April 1, and now is almost half-gone.

The fact that spending now is scheduled to be higher than originally forecast seemed to indicate higher taxes will be levied.

The increase is mainly attributable to higher costs of welfare and of education programs that are geared to provincial spending. It also includes another $67,157,700 for interest and service costs on the public debt, now totalling $1,474,006,900.

The first costs of medical care insurance are included, an amount of $35,000,000 for the balance of this fiscal year.

Expenditures by the regular departments of government, called budgetary estimates now are planned to total $10,670,930,598, including medical care insurance.

Expenditures from the old age security fund—which are paid for by special income, corporation and sales taxes outside the normal budget—are estimated at $1,581,000,000.

Finance Minister Benson and Mitchell Sharp, former minister, have said the government intended to hold its budgetary spending this year to $10,300,000,000.

MADE MANY CUTS

Mr. Benson, then treasury board president, said last February the figure could go to $10,500,000,000 and still remain within the goal because invariably some sums voted by parliament are not spent by the end of the year and lapse.

There were cuts in all branches of government except the appropriations for the office of the Governor-General, and for the cost of running Parliament itself.

One of the projects recently thought a possible victim in the budget chop—the proposed Prince Edward Island Causeway—remains, with an appropriation of $5,000,000 for work to be done this year.

DEFENCE COSTS

Defence appropriations, listed Feb. 12 as $1,728,591,800 are down $13,637,000 to total $1,714,954,800.

Finance Minister Benson, preparing a taxing budget for Parliament next month, has said that only small adjustments will be needed in taxing and spending to bring the budget into balance.

The revised blue-covered book of estimates was tabled by C. M. Drury, president of the treasury board. He said in a statement they represent reductions in controllable spending, more than counterbalanced by the natural growth of spending program which Parliament is already committed and by some new projects.

Flamethrower Brigade Cut

SAIGON (AP) — A guerrilla battalion of about 300 men armed with flamethrowers was cut down early today trying to overrun a special forces camp close to the Cambodian border.

It was believed about 400 South Vietnamese plus 10 to 12 American Green Beret advisers were in the camp when the assault came.

U.S. Headquarters said 11 South Vietnamese were killed.

The attackers left behind four flamethrowers, 25 assault rifles, 17 rocket grenade launchers, 1,000 rocket grenades, a command radio and a stock of mines in addition to the blocks of plastic.

Far to the north in coastal Quang Ngai province, a sweep by the U.S. troops hit a strong North Vietnamese force today in the same spot where 92 were slain Tuesday. Helicopter gunships and tactical jet strikes were called in, and 77 more insurgents were killed, headquarters said.

Along the demilitarized zone, American marines uncovered two mass graves containing 48 North Vietnamese bodies. Earlier this week the marines had found similar graves containing about 170 dead North Vietnamese.

SAIGON (Reuters) — President Nguyen Van Thieu has dismissed his education minister for disagreeing with Premier Tran Van Huong, it was announced today.

The dispute followed charges by some Lower House deputies that there was organized cheating in recent high school examinations.

GANG SHOOTS GUARDS, ESCAPE WITH $209,000

MONTREAL (UPI) — Three gunmen ambushed two Brinks guards in an elevator today, shot them and got away with $209,000 in one of the biggest holdups in recent Montreal history.

Neither guard was regarded as in serious condition by doctors who treated one for a hand wound and the other for a bullet in his shoulder.

Neon-Imbrex

Neon Products of Canada Ltd. said Tuesday it has received a formal agreement protecting it from any loss occasioned by a lawsuit involving Imbrex Ltd. of Montreal.

Neon said it therefore will be able to proceed with acquisition of Imbrex, Canada's largest distributor of carpets and floor coverings.

The agreement protects Neon and Imbrex in a lawsuit brought by Arthur B. Green of Port Credit, Ont., former Imbrex director, against Imbrex and a number of major shareholders and directors.

Oshawa Wholesale

Oshawa Wholesale Ltd. had consolidated net profit of $2.28 million or 40.92 cents a share in the 28 weeks ended Aug. 10, compared with $1.86 million or 34.51 cents in the similar 1967 period.

Sales totalled $141.3 million compared with $117 million.

McGavin Boosts

Bread prices in the Interior are up two cents, according to Allan McGavin, president of McGavin Toastmaster.

He said the price of a 16-ounce loaf is increased from 24 to 26 cents, the same price as a loaf in Vancouver.

Bow Valley Looking

Daryl K. Seaman, president of Bow Valley Industries Ltd., said Tuesday the company plans to seek interests in Computamatics Ltd. of Calgary and Mainland Foundry and Engineering Ltd., of Vancouver.

Mr. Seaman said Bow Valley directors had approved signing of letters of intent involving a 50 per cent equity interest in Computamatics and all issued and outstanding shares of Mainland Foundry.

Computamatics would be purchased for $750,000 over five years while Mainland Foundry would be purchased for $1.55 million and 11,150 common shares of Bow Valley.

Computamatics, formed this year by McDaniel Consultants of Calgary, supplies information to the oil and natural gas industry. Mainland Foundry operates an iron foundry, machine and metal fabricating shops and an industrial supply business in Vancouver.

Mr. Seaman also said Bow Valley had sold its interest in Castle Oil and Gas Ltd. for a $684,000 profit.

Shell No. 10

Shell Anglo Harlequin D-86, the tenth well in Shell Canada's exploratory drilling program off Canada's West Coast, has been spudded said R.S. Aberg, production department manager in Calgary.

The new location is about 30 miles northwest of the ninth well, Shell Anglo Osprey D-36, and about 40 miles East of Cape St. James, Queen Charlotte Islands. The ninth well was plugged at a depth of 8,302 feet.

Billion Mark Hit By Mutual Funds

WINNIPEG (CP) — Assets of the five mutual funds operated by the Investors Group of Winnipeg have surpassed $1,000,000,000 for the first time, according to President C. E. Atchison.

He said the assets of the five funds increased by about $80,000,000 since the end of June and now total $1,002,000,000.

The five mutual funds, with the assets of each, are Investors Mutual of Canada Ltd., $578,000,000; Investors Growth Fund of Canada Ltd., $295,000,000; Investors International Mutual Fund Ltd., $91,000,000; Provident Mutual Fund Ltd., $35,000,000; and Provident Stock Fund Ltd., $3,000,000.

BLOCK TRADES EYED

By IRWIN FRANK

NEW YORK (AP) An increase of about 80 per cent in the number of big block trades on the New York Stock Exchange has aroused the concern and interest of President Johnson, the Securities and Exchange Commission and others.

The big blocks-exchanges of 10,000 shares or more—are traded as much as 50 or more times a day and can affect the price of one or more stocks. The stock market ticker carries to all parts of the country the information on the big trades—mostly by the institutional investors—and one stock goes up to points, another down one, up one-half, down two.

One of the fast-moving conglomerates, ("Automatic") Sprinkler Corp. was a darling of the mutual funds. The funds held 23 per cent of the stock.

Early this year the report hit Wall Street that earnings of "Automatic" would be disappointing. The funds began a quick sell-off, getting rid of about half their holdings. There was some buying, but not enought to counter the effect of the dumping by the funds.

The funds, with billions of dollars in the market, have hit other companies and industries hard. Their power has caused government officials and Wall Street observers to grow more and more concerned.

And as the power of the funds increases, the concern has grown to such extent that three separate investigations have been launched or are planned. Probers will look into the power and effect not only of the mutual funds but also of all institutional investment organizations.

Mutual funds have attracted the most attention because of their almost fantastic growth and because of the nature of some of their operations. The funds have grown from $500 million 28 years ago to nearly $50 billion.

Many persons who watch the market are concerned that the institutions buy and sell in such large blocks that their actions—even though not collusive—can have a major effect on the stock prices.

Manuel F. Cohen, chairman of the SEC, said the stock exchange is "an auction market which was built to take care of random orders coming from all over the world in small numbers." He said it was not designed for funds which deal in 25,000-share lots.

The funds are not content to sit back and watch their investment earn 6 per cent. Many are looking and trading for short-term gains, willing to jump in and out of a stock within weeks for a fast 20-per-cent gain, acting on information from private researchers.

Their actions can affect a particular stock.

The biggest question today on Wall Street, at the Securities and Exchange Commission and in the minds of small investors is: What are the institutions doing to the market?

The Question takes on tremendous importance when it is realized that 24 million Americans hold stocks either directly or through funds.

The fact that these institutions—mutual funds, pensions, insurance companies, trusts, college endowments—own about 40 per cent of all stock on the New York Stock Exchange gives dimension to the situation that some observers consider disturbing.

South African Gold Selling Seems Imminent

By HOBART ROWEN
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — In the war of nerves between the U.S. and South Africa on the gold price question, the U.S. has adopted a tough posture.

Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler's speech Tuesday represented a bet that the South Africans will soon have to unload some of their gold.

Since March, when the South Africans began holding their newlymined gold off the market, their official gold reserves have ballooned at least $300 million to slightly more than $1 billion.

To earn foreign exchange, the U.S. apparently believes, the South Africans will have to allow some of the gold they have stashed away to flow into the free market.

●

The South Africans have been pressing, instead, for the right to sell gold to central banks or to the International Monetary Fund at the official $35 price, whenever they chose to.

The U.S. and its gold pool partners have rejected this idea, which would allow the South Africans to manipulate the market.

As a compromise — to protect the value of existing gold reserves — Otmar Emminger of the German Bundesbank recently suggested that the IMF provide a floor if the free market price threatened to dip below $35 an ounce.

Emminger — with strong support from IMF managing director Pierre-Paul Schweitzer — for a time thought that such a compromise might be accepted during the course of the forthcoming annual meeting. It would tend to assure, they felt, a relative stability in gold prices around the $35 level.

The U.S. attitude makes it doubtful that any deal will be made during next week's sessions.

Fowler agreed that he doesn't want to see a sharp drop in the $35 price, either.

The U.S. would offer to protect that price only for the "frozen" level of gold reserves as they existed last March 17, at the time of the Washington agreement to bar sales to speculators.

Whether over the long haul, the U.S. and other nations can force South Africa and other gold-producing nations to sell their new gold only for nonmonentary purposes remains to be seen.

So long as the dollar is in demand, the U.S. can deal from strength, as it appears to be doing at the moment. A good appetite for dollars diminishes the hunger, even among central bankers, for gold bullion.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Fringe Benefits Are Real

(This is a service provided by the Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C.)

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, C.A.

Fringe benefits cost more to an employer than they appear to be worth to an employee.

To an employer all salaries and wages costs which are not direct payment for productive hours of labor may be regarded as fringe benefits. These fringe costs would include such items as holiday pay, statutory holidays, and even rest periods and coffee breaks.

But to an employee a fringe benefit is some tangible value which he can recognize as being in addition to his pay cheque. He does not see his coffee break as a value which he receives, nor would he normally count his holiday pay cheque as an extra value in addition to his regular pay cheque. These things are all part of his pay.

SEMANTIC PROBLEM

The problem is really a matter of semantics because the words "fringe benefits" have come into general use without any clear definition of their meaning. This simple difference of interpretation has been, and still is, the cause of much wasteful misunderstanding between employers and employees.

A recent survey has shown that, taking the employer's view of the words, the real cost of fringe benefits amounts to an extra one third on top of the direct costs of productive labor hours. As a general average for the country as a whole this amounts to almost $1,600 a year for each employee, an increase of 31 per cent over the $1,220 amount for 1965.

This is obviously a very large factor for most businesses and it is not surprising that it causes very serious review and determination by management to hold the line against such a rapid rise in these costs.

However, it is futile for management to complain in the boardroom about costs and percentages about which the employees have never been informed. To simply object to rising fringe benefits according to one definition is worse than useless.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 25, 1968 —PAGE 15

Arthur Mayse

On the only ice-slick day last winter, I put my car gingerly into the home driveway. Down we slid, with wicked smoothness, to fishtail around the curve of a low rock wall. There was a long, dismal crunch. I got out and sure enough, my beast's right-hand rocker panel looked as if someone had taken a sledge to it.

Up to this point, the car had preserved a reasonable degree of virginity . . . just one minor dint inflicted in a parking lot by some wild-eyed matron in her haste to make the trading-post's Confusion Day sale.

These are two instances of damage that could be avoided if Detroit would give its designers a challenging directive.

Their assignment: to develop a device by which the modern automobile's sleek but woefully defenceless body would be protected from sideswipes, door-handle dimples and other such mishaps.

Perhaps a not-too-wide shelf paralleling the car's axis on either side would do the trick. If coated with some slip-proof material, it would also serve as a handy step to be used when entering or alighting.

Naturally, it would need a name. The suggestion may sound quaint and somewhat old-fashioned, but how about "running-board"?

In plain fact, nobody enters or alights from cars. Not any more. Those terms imply grace and dignity, and we are permitted neither. Instead, we throw our hips one way, switch the knees another, and emerge doubled up as if by an acute belly-ache.

To get away from this unnatural contortion, Detroit might also consider building its cars higher. I don't mean merely lifting those slinky roofs, but hiking the entire car up so as to ensure a generous clearance between vulnerable underbody and unyielding road.

That way, those of us who like to get off the blacktop into byways whose ruts run deep could do so without risking costly damage.

About the only way to achieve this clearance is to make the wheels larger — and while we're on the subject, why not do something about tires?

Your spare, let us suppose, is immobilized in a service station miles down the dark and rainy road. The slow leak in your front offside tubeless doughnut becomes a distressingly fast one. So where do we go from here?

I look forward to the day when some daring innovator will come up with a tire that can be peeled off the rim with a tire-iron and the pointed end of a wheel-nut wrench. Inside it will be a rubber tube, and your equipment will include a repair kit consisting of handy-sized patches and cement. You will also carry a tire-pump.

In half an hour you'll be rolling again, made road-worthy by your own unassisted efforts.

Fenders, especially front ones, could also stand some re-styling. The kind I have in mind would be distinct units, with a definite trough between fender and hood. After all, why should a driver have to add a top-rack to his costs if he wants to secure some necessary object to his vehicle? Those convenient hollows would offer stowage for an over-sized dunnage-bag on one side and a bagged buck on the other.

A further innovation — one which Detroit, I believe, has fooled around with recently in a timid sort of way — would be a hand throttle mounted under the steering wheel. This to provide relief for the foot which has pressed steadily on a gas pedal for hours on end.

I am cursed with a knee that begins to twinge a trifle after about 100 miles. Another hundred and a hand throttle would be a welcome boon. Such an aid would have helped, too, the time the blasted pedal stem snapped on a mountain road.

There is much that I like about the modern car as it rolls off the assembly-lines. In most respects, it is infinitely superior to any that have gone before it. All it needs are a few of the refinements that I have listed here.

Perhaps in its eager striving for the super-buggy, Detroit will one year discover them all over again!

$9.3 Million Vote Approved For Hospitals

Polling Planned For October 26

The British Columbia Treasury Board has given the Regional District Hospital Board permission to hold a $9.3 million hospital construction referendum next month, it was announced today by Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

The official green light from the provincial government means that the people will be asked to approve or reject a massive hospital updating program on October 26.

In making application to hold the referendum the regional hospital board sought permission to call a vote on expenditures totalling $11.3 million.

CUT-BACK

The two million cut-back in the announcement means that Premier Bennett is presuming that federal government grants of close to $2 million will be available in time to permit the program to move ahead without interruption.

In asking for permission to hold a vote on the full $11.3 million the regional district had attempted to provide for a continuing construction program even if the federal grants were not immediately available.

Regional district executive secretary Bill Long said that he had received official confirmation granting the district permission to hold the vote for $9.3 million but had not yet teceived full details on the two million cut.

"Presumably the provincial government is confident that the federal grants will be available in time," he said. "I think they have also cut back on certain equipment items but it will be a few days before the details are available."

VARIOUS WORK

If approved, the referendum will clear the way for construction of a new extended care hospital plus the completion of various essential projects for existing hospitals.

The October referendum is the first of two planned to launch a major construction program to bring Greater Victoria's hospital beds in line with demand.

A year from now the people will again be asked to approve multi-million dollar expenditures for the construction of a new acute care hospital.

No location has been decided on for the acute care hospital although hospital consultant Dr. Harvey Agnew has strongly recommended the general vicinity of Elk Lake.

The proposed extended care hospital will be built on the grounds of St. Mary's Priory, Colwood.

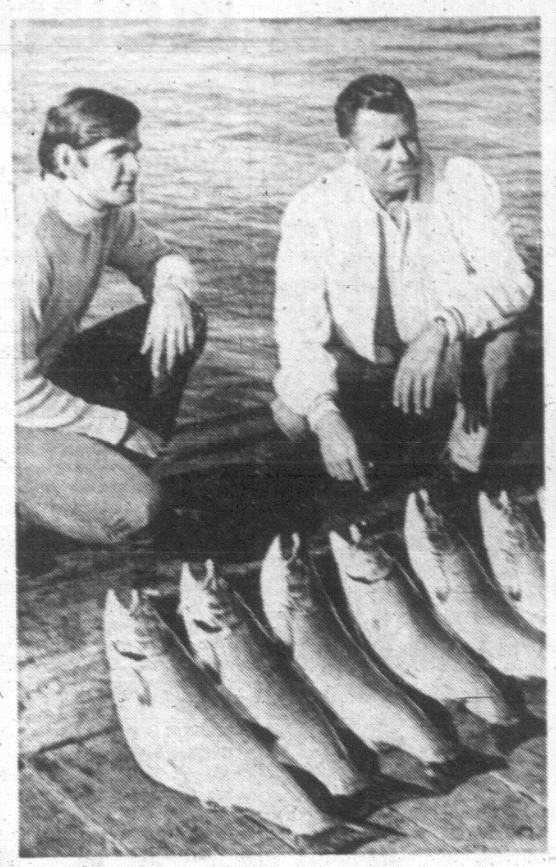

Plumbers' Annual $300 Scholarship Announced Today

Patrick Griffin, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Griffin, 1030 Joan Crescent, has been awarded a $300 scholarship.

The selection of the University of Victoria student as recipient of the annual award established by the Victoria Branch of the Canadian Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association was made by the university selection committee.

The award put up by the plumbing and heating industry in Victoria goes to the son or daughter of a man engaged in the industry locally and is awarded for scholastic ability.

EIGHTEEN SO FAR—that's the tally of northern coho rung up by movie actor Glen Ford, right, and his son Peter, 23. They've been fishing with guide Mike Rippingale at Campbell River. Weights ranged from 8 to 16 pounds.

By MORGAN MacGREGOR

Men dream of owning their own island but perhaps movie star Glenn Ford will make it come true.

He will if his 23-year-old son Peter has any influence.

"This is my first trip to Campbell River and I think it's great country," said Peter as he leaned against a wharf railing at Painter's Lodge. "I don't have any money of my own but if I can just talk Dad into looking at some island property, something that's isolated and has good fishing."

Perhaps it will be easier than Peter thinks because his father, who was sorting out his fish nearby, admitted that he was going to see a realtor in the morning.

GOOD TIMING

Last year Glenn Ford holidayed at Campbell River with his wife Kathy, through a Western Airlines promotion, and liked the fishing so much he returned this season and his timing couldn't have been better. For weeks fishermen have been scouring the waters for the Northern Coho run and they have finally shown up in the past few days . . . just in time for the Ford men to hook on to 18 silver beauties, ranging in size from 8 to 16 pounds, with some assistance from head guide at the Lodge, Mike Rippingale.

Ford has just finished a film called "Smith", for Walt Disney Productions and if he thought he was going to get away from it all up here in "the great beyond" it just wasn't working out that way.

The photographic branch of the Provincial Dept. of Travel Industry has been tagging along after his boat for almost a week. Flocks of kids and autograph-seekers turn up on the wharf when the party comes in from fishing and phone calls have to be intercepted by the alert staff at Painter's.

The only time he looked genuinely interested on the wharf, was when the conversation turned to enquiries of where he was born.

It turned out to be Glenford, Quebec and his father, a CPR railroader, christened him Gwillyn Ford. It was only after he went to Hollywood that he changed his name to commemorate his hometown.

Peter, whose mother is dancer Eleanor Powell, Ford's first wife, talked with enthusiasm about a film he was going to do this autumn in Bogota, Columbia. He's just graduated from the University of Southern California with a degree in English.

"I fooled around a lot in college," admitted Peter, "and it's taken a long time to get through but just completing the course has given me a sense of satisfaction."

He's still not sure what he wants to do although making some money is his prime interest at the moment so that he can marry 20-year-old Lynda Gunderson whom he met at university.

Boil Drinking Water, Shawnigan Lake Told

Psychologist Probes Reason In 'Pot' Case

Most people repress anger at various times, but dispose of it through other channels, a Victoria psychologist said here today.

If they don't, he added they may become anti-social and aggressive to society in general.

Dr. Leslie Navran was giving evidence at the trial of 19-year-old David Arthur Sainsbury, who pleaded guilty in County Court to trafficking in marijuana from the basement of a house at 821 Kings Road last May.

Sainsbury — quiet-mannered in court — was sentenced to six months definite and one year indefinite in the Young Offenders' Unit at Haney. Judge Montague Drake directed that he should receive psychiatric treatment at Haney.

Dr. Navran said psychological tests showed Sainsbury was "passively aggressive."

GETS ANGRY

"That is, he gets angry but avoids being overtly aggressive because he fears losing control of his temper and the dangers of retaliation.

"Because of this he has developed a rebellious feeling to society."

Earlier in the trial, Sainsbury was asked if he hoped to establish a happier pattern of life by taking marijuana.

"Yes," he replied.

Dr. Navran said he gave Sainsbury what is known as a thematic apperception test. The subject is shown a series of 12 specially-designed pictures and asked to create a dramatic story from them.

He becomes absorbed in the story he creates and says things about the characters which really apply to himself.

"What he says is recorded on tape, and it is usually very revealing."

Sainsbury, the doctor added, was capable of deep anger but controlled it and then became agressive in passive ways.

"That is, he does things which in themselves are not hostile but are an expression of aggressiveness."

Dr. Navran suggested Sainsbury should be "incarcerated for a while" in order to limit his access to drugs.

"But, if he were incarcerated with a professional criminal group, I believe they would influence him negatively."

Engineer Predicts Pollution Controls

By JIM HUME

All drinking water taken from Shawnigan Lake should be boiled or treated before consumption says William Bailey, provincial director of public health engineering.

He made the statement Tuesday in an address to the Victoria branch of the Canadian Mechanical Contractors' Association at the Red Lion Inn.

"Shawnigan Lake has now reached the point of pollution where all drinking water should be boiled or bought," Mr. Bailey said. "The water from the lake is no longer safe to drink without treatment."

Mr. Bailey said checks on the growing level of pollution at Shawnigan have been under way the past three years.

"Some people already sensibly boil their drinking water," he said. "Others do not. All I can say is that I would not drink a drop unless it had been boiled or treated in some other way first."

Recreation Values Threatened

He added that Shawnigan was typical of a lake that would eventually be destroyed as a recreation area unless tight pollution control restrictions were introduced immediately.

Although concentrating on the pollution of fresh water bodies Mr. Bailey did touch briefly on the current controversy of possible sea pollution via the dumping of raw sewage into the ocean.

"My minister (Health Minister Ralph Loffmark) feels that it is the responsibility of everyone to treat sewage in at least a minimal way before final disposal—and I agree with him," Mr. Bailey said.

"Sewage treatment is one of those responsibilities we must live up to because we must keep our environment clean for subsequent generations."

Mr. Bailey outlined the growing problem of pollution especially as it applied to bodies of fresh water.

"A stream, river or lake can take care of pollution but only up to a certain degree," he said. "When you start overloading a fresh water body with raw sewage or other wastes, deterioration is extremely rapid.

Mr. Bailey noted that some critics of treatment before disposal claim that man is an adaptable creature able to adjust to any environment.

"They point to Asian countries where sewage collection and disposal systems are virtually non-existent," Mr. Bailey said. "And it is true that millions of people live under those conditions. But they live as we would, and should, refuse to live, and disease is rampant."

Following his address Mr. Bailey showed a two-week-old color movie produced in Europe which graphically showed the disaster a community can bring upon itself by dumping untreated sewage and industrial wastes into streams and rivers.

Water Quality Standards Pending

During a brief question period Mr. Bailey was asked when the provincial government could be expected to introduce legislation calling for positive water quality standards.

"The government realizes that we must have an established water quality standard and is working on legislation now," he said.

"I don't think it will be too long before Mr. Loffmark makes an announcement."

Asked if he felt treatment was necessary even if a community was building lengthy and deep sea outfalls, Mr. Bailey replied: "Put it this way. With a deep sea outfall your beaches might be safe. With treatment before disposal you know they are safe. Yes, I am in favor of at least primary treatment before disposal.

"Taken all-round, the waters of British Columbia are quite clean at present—but the time to make sure that they stay clean is now."

North Ward Demolition Bids Called

The city of Victoria will put the North Ward school property up for sale after the ancient school has been demolished.

"We have no plans for the property," assessor Alfred Joyce aid today. He added that there have been a number of inquiries and that the 3¼-acre Douglas Street property will be put on the market.

A call for demolition tenders was advertised today and bids are due next Wednesday. They will be considered by council's finance committee the following day.

MONTH-LONG JOB

Demolition may take a month because of the amount of brick in the building, said Mr. Joyce. In the meantime, a commissionaire has been on duty in the building the past two nights to stop vandalism.

Most of the windows at the rear of the school have been smashed and vandals have made a mess of the interior, the assessor said. Firemen are keeping a close eye on the structure which is generally regarded as a fire trap.

Pupils at the 74-year-old school are now attending the new Blanshard elementary school which opened this month.

Assault Set On Beaches Saturday

A small army of adults and youngsters will descend on district beaches and parks Saturday to pick them clean of litter.

The clean-up campaign, led by Outdoors Unlittered, will enlist about 400 Scouts, Guides and Junior Forest Wardens. Most municipalities are co-operating by providing trash receptacles and arranging to clear them.

Close to 50 members of Outdoors Unlittered, will also be out and invite anyone with a truck to lend a hand. Organizing the campaign are Mrs. Katherine Sherman, chairman of the group, and Dave Larkey.

Areas where the groups will be working include Island View Beach in Central Saanich, Mount Douglas Park, Cordova Bay, Cadboro Bay and Uplands Park.

In Oak Bay, trash pickers intend covering the shoreline from Cattle Point to Bowker and Willows Beach, and in Victoria, from Clover Point to Beacon Hill Park as well as Gonzales Bay.

Up to 150 Scouts will turn out to work around Esquimalt Lagoon and about 20 Junior Forest Wardens will be at work around Witty's Lagoon.

Search Continues For Fisherman

A search of waters around Active Pass for George Ernest Hughes, 52, of North Pender Island, entered its third day today, RCMP at Ganges report.

Mr. Hughes is missing and presumed drowned following a fishing derby Sunday in the Gulf Islands.

Sooke School Rolls To Jump 36 Per Cent

Pupil population will jump 36 per cent over the next three years in the Sooke school district, superintendent Ernest Hyndman forecast Tyesday night.

He estimated another 44 teaching areas will be needed to meet enrolment.

Trustees set March 29 as the tentative date for a referendum which could be in the neighborhood of $2 million. Government grants will cover three-quarters of the total and ratepayers will be asked to approve long-term financing of the balance.

Mr. Hyndman made no cost estimate on the referendum and declined to speculate what the total might be beyond saying it would be over $1 million and "nowhere near" the forthcoming $4 million referendum in the Saanich penninsula school district.

In other business the school board authorized construction of three "emergency" classrooms for use by next September.

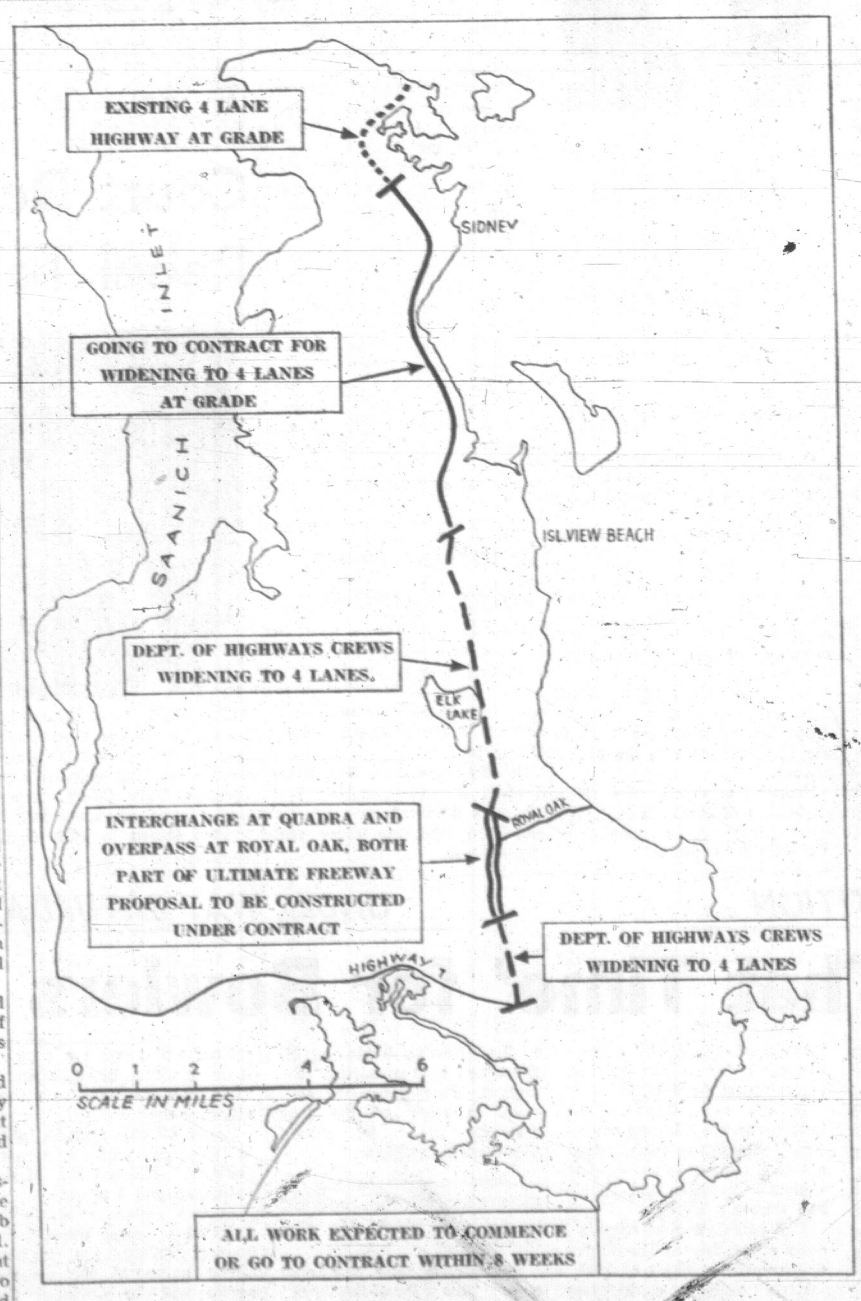

One will be at Colwood elementary and two at Savory elementary and all will be built by closing in existing covered play areas.

Enrolment in the school district is now 4,959 and the superintendent said it will climb to 6,740 by September of 1971. He estimated a 10 per cent increase in each of the next two years and 11 per cent the third year.

Work Starts On 4-Laner To Swartz Bay

Work has started on a $5 million widening of Patricia Bay Highway in view of increases in traffic of about 10 per cent annually. Map above shows route basically unchanged but with modern interchanges at Quadra and West Saanich Road intersections with the highway. Highways Minister Wesley Black says the project is an "interim measure" and does not detract from plans for a limited access divided freeway in the future. The job now starting just north of Elk Lake will continue until 1970. On completion the four-lane route will extend from Town and Country Shopping Centre to Swartz Bay ferry terminal. Mr. Black said during construction of the highway studies for a new route for the eventual freeway will be continued. But a new route would require at least six months just for the purchase of private lands, and the need for improvement is desperate. He said at present traffic volumes reach up to 22,000 vehicles a day. The highways minister said earlier that the road construction would entail some slowing of traffic by flagmen. But he said detouring cars to side roads is not contemplated. Some of the work will be carried out by highways crews and some by contract, as indicated in the map.

Ask The Times

Q. Is the RCMP the only federal police force in Canada?
—L.M.

A. Yes. The RCMP is under the control of the solicitor-general and its operations are directed by a commissioner from its Ottawa headquarters. To simplify control and administration, the force has divided the country into 12 alphabetically designated divisions with headquarters in provincial capitals. From these points policing of the provinces and territories is carried out through a number of sub-divisions and detachments.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps on antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

STATE LIKES LIQUOR TAX AMENDMENT

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — A state liquor board member said Monday he is encouraged by a U.S. senate amendment to a customs bill that, if enacted by this session, will permit the state to regulate sales of duty free stores near the Canadian border to stem tax losses.

There are currently seven duty free and tax free liquor export stores operating on Washington's northern border. Canadian customs law permits an American to bring 40 ounces of duty free liquor into Canada.

Canadians can return with the same amount every four months if they were out of the country for 48 hours.

$1,675 Raised By Choir

The first was held in Memorial Arena Sept. 13; the second in Metropolitan United Church Sept. 15. The Welsh choir's visit to Victoria was sponsored by the 800 Pacific Wing RCAF Association.

Tonight at 8:30, in their Wilson Street headquarters, Ken Cutler, president of the Wing, will present a cheque for the amount to Fred Tanner, president, and Gordon Empey, treasurer, of the clinic.

"Both concerts were an outstanding success," Mr. Cutler said. "The choir said they really enjoyed their visit here and hope to return next year."

Refitted Ship Now on Trials; Men Retrained

HMCS St. Croix has been refitted and is undergoing trials before commencing work-ups on Oct. 14.

While the destroyer escort was in dockyard this summer, most of the ship's company underwent extensive trade and training courses as a large percentage of the crew is new to the ship.

Cmdr. J. M. Cumming is commanding officer of the ship. He is a specialist in navigation and his last sea-going appointment was as executive officer of HMCS Annapolis on the east coast.

BANK GUARDS WOMEN CHARGED IN BIG THEFT

PENTICTON (CP) — Royal Bank of Canada officials have placed a 24-hour guard on a home occupied by two women charged Tuesday in connection with the disappearance of $492,000.

The women, bank employee Kathleen Spiller, 26, and Frances (Bambi) Shubin, 41, a bookkeeper, appeared in court Tuesday and were remanded to October 1 on $10,000 bail each.

Miss Spiller, a Royal Bank clerk for five years, was charged with falsifying bank records and theft over $50. Miss Shubin, bookkeeper for Oliver Industries, Ltd., was charged with theft over $50.

The two women shared a recently renovated home in the exclusive resort area of Naramata, about eight miles north of this Okanagan Valley city.

Defensive Role For Soviet Navy?

By DONALD M. McNICOLL

LONDON (AP) — The Soviet navy may have switched to a defensive rather than an aggressive role, the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships suggests.

In a foreword to the 1968-69 issue of this standard work of reference on the world's navies published today, veteran editor Raymond V. B. Blackman says:

"The Soviet navy has reached out to all the oceans of the world and at first sight appears to be poised for control of all ingress and egress about narrow waters."

Blackman noted that the Soviet Union how has 55 nuclear powered submarines, 325 conventional submarines, 25 cruisers, 100 destroyers and hundreds of other warships.

But he added: "There is believed to be a subtlety about the Soviet ever-widening sea ripple which is not generally appreciated by those laymen whose pulses of alarm never fail to be stirred by propagandists who build up the sea power of the U.S.S.R. as a threat."

"A study of Soviet warships and the weapons carried in them, together with an examination of where they are deployed, would now appear to indicate that Soviet maritime strategy is defence or containing, rather than provoking or aggressive," he said.

"Most recent Soviet warships were apparently designed for a self-sufficient limited role of being able to reply to any attack made on them rather than to pose an attitude of strike action."

Blackman, however, warned against ignoring the increase in the size of the Soviet navy and its formidable penetration of the Mediterranean and concentration in the Far East and elsewhere.

He also said the United States could effectively protect itself and its allies against the Chinese missile threat by building a few relatively inexpensive nuclear-powered anti-missile

The Pentagon was reported last year to have begun a study of whether such ships should be built in a project designated SABMIS—for sea-based anti-ballistic missile intercept system. No decision has been announced.

Blackman writes:

"The SABMIS concept provides for tracking-missile ships which could be deployed to intercept enemy ICBMs early in their flight before multiple warheads and penetration decoys break away from the launching rocket.

"Thus, a sea-based ABM—anti-ballistic missile—would have one target per enemy ICBM whereas a land-based ABM system in the target area would have to cope with several re-entry packages for every enemy missile which is fired.

New Boats Said Eligible For Licences

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salmon fishermen currently building vessels should have no difficulty in obtaining licences for their craft, Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Monday.

"If the owner can provide tangible evidence that construction was going on at the time, he stands a very good chance of having his licence approved," he said.

The minister said a permanent appeals board will be set up to handle fishing regulations so that fishermen may seek individual rulings on the licensing of their boats.

The board will decide on the status of boats now under construction by examining the owner's bank credits, building invoices and other matters before ruling on whether the boats should be licensed, the minister said.

Under new regulations, salmon boats must be licensed before they can be used for commercial fishing. The purpose of the regulations is to establish a moratorium on the number of boats in service.

Ottawa Efficiency Studied

By JAMES NELSON

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal statisticians hope to be able within a few years to measure how efficiently civil servants do their jobs and how much the government produces.

For years, statisticians have been able to measure the real output of the commercial economy, and draw up indexes which show gains or losses in productivity.

But many agencies and departments of the federal, provincial and municipal governments produce services which are impossible to measure.

Governments—and taxpayers—know what governments cost. But no one has been able to say what the output of government is worth.

The problem has been tackled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, working with several universities, municipal authorities, and the federal and Ontario treasury boards.

Writing in the latest issue of the Canadian Statistical Review, W. B. Bolton, director of the governments division of DBS, says:

"There is hope that within the next few years DBS will be able to formulate some standards of performance—units of work or such—which might permit some measuring of productivity in the government area."

MUST SET CRITERIA

What the statisticians hope to do is relate expenditures to the level of services provided, and so determine the administrative efficiency of government. This involves identifying all the programs of government, setting performance criteria for each, and then determine the efficiency of operations.

"The setting of performance criteria or work measurement standards is not an easy task, and relatively few such measures exist at present within government," Mr. Bolton writes.

"Apart from the necessity of making sure the work can be reduced to countable units, and that the work measure is valid for making budget projections, there must be a general agreement that the standard is fair."

J. L. Pickard, deputy treasurer of Metropolitan Toronto, has pointed to some of the difficulties. Work units must be countable, reflect work effort, be consistent, and be expressed in simple, familiar terminology.

How, for instance, can the output of the Bank of Canada be measured in assuring monetary stability? Or the food and drug directorate in policing the safety of medicines? Or the National Gallery in preserving and generating interest in art treasures?

The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities has commissioned a study of data on the range and cost of physical services. Professor Vladimir Salyzin of the University of Alberta has so far made only a preliminary report to the mayors.

The treasury boards of the federal and Ontario governments are developing standards of measurement for use within their governments.

NEW PILL BEATS HANGOVER

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — The possibility that researchers may soon develop a pill to prevent drunkenness, sober you up or cure hangovers was raised by a Swedish researcher at the 28th International Congress on Alcohol and Alcoholism here.

Dr. Leonard Goldberg, chief of research on alcoholism and drugs at the Karolinska Institute, said such qualities seem to be found in the common tranquillizer librium (chlordiazepoxide).

Goldberg said this was the only tranquillizer that seemed to help prevent drunkenness while all the others increased the effect.

He based his conclusions on tests involving more than 1,000 human volunteers who were given five ounces of liquor and then tested for sobriety. The tests involved such things as talking and physical co-ordination.

Those given librium, a prescription drug, experienced no alcoholic effects.

Goldberg also found that the drug cures hangovers and sobers up drinkers twice as fast as coffee or other home remedies.

However, Goldberg felt that further research is needed to determine if the mixture of drugs and alcohol is harmful.

THIRD IN LENGTH

The Rio Grande is the United States' third longest river. It falls behind the Mississippi and the Missouri.

GIRLS LOOK, TOO

Women at a show entitled Bonnie Clyde and her 38s, which recently ended a two-week run at the Pacific National Exhibition, when asked why they went, replied "to see if they've got anything we haven't" or "to see what the men see in it."

But the strippers have another theory: In every housewife lurks a secret desire to be a seductive, slinky belly-dancer, a la Little Egypt.

"After the show I've seen them in the washroom, trying out a few bumps and grinds in front of the mirror—they looked all embarrassed when they saw me," says Jennie Lea, a statuesque redhead.

Another stripper, a blonde who gives her name only as Marilyn, tells the housewives: "Don't worry, lady, I only get to boil the water—you get to brew the tea."

"It's a job," says Marilyn, who is working her way through college. Education costs money, she says, claiming that being a stripper has fewer hazards than being a waitress, a job many college girls take during the summer.

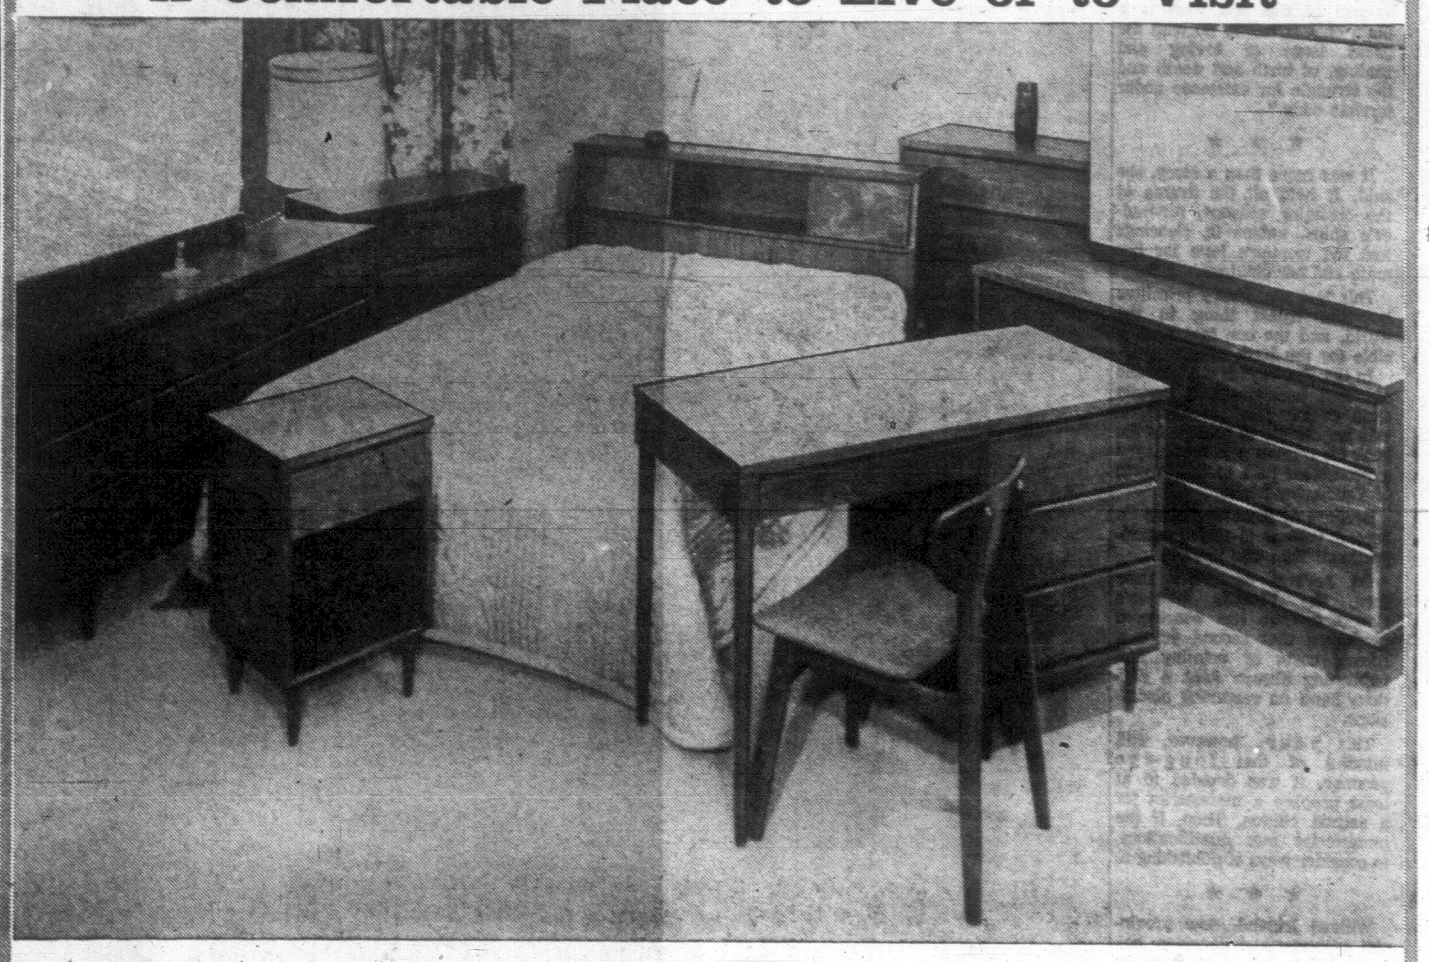

"Up here we're away out of reach," says Marilyn, explaining that girls who wait on table are much more liable to be pinched than strippers on a runway.
